18 KILLED AND 25 INJURED BY SOUTH AFRICAN MINE STRIKERS

Scottish Detachment Ambushed on Plantation at Benoni — Casualties in Fighting Friday Now Placed at 600, of Whom 80 Are Dead.

BOMB REPORTED DROPPED ON MEETING

Dispatch Received in London Says Airman Destroyed Hall Where Miners Were Meeting and Killed Many of Those Attending.

By the Associated Press.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, March 11.—A Scottish detachment was ambushed at Bennoni today by strikers hidden on a plantation, who suddenly poured a heavy fire into the soldiers, killing 18 of them and wounding 25. Most of the detachment were veteran service men.

The Rand Daily Mail places Friday's casualties at 600, of whom 80 are believed to have been killed. The casualties among the strikers are not known.

The situation is regarded as somewhat improved today.

LONDON, March 11.—The Trade Union Hall at Benoni, near Johannesburg, crowded with South African gold mine strikers, was bombed by an aviator today, says a Central News dispatch from Johannesburg. The majority of those assembled were killed and the building was destroyed.

Fear Strikers Will Try to Seize Entire City of Johannesburg.

Copyright by the New York Tribune News Service, 1922.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, March 11.—Gold mine strikers today control several outlying parts of Johannesburg and fear is expressed that they may try to seize the entire city. The local police force has been depleted by the dispatch of reserves to the strike-ridden districts of the Rand. One attack on the local electric light and power house has been made by the strike sympathizers and the newspaper offices are threatened. The Corner House, headquarters of most of the gold mining companies here, has been made a target of the strikers.

Rioting continued in many Rand cities and heavy casualties are reported. At Fordsburg the fighting was carried on all day. At Benoni and Brakpan, 15 miles north of here, the rioters dominate the city with their guns and ambulances have been unable to pick up the dead and wounded in the streets. At Benoni the disorders were worse than yesterday. Capt. Carey Thomas, an aviator, was shot down by the strikers. His machine, wrecked in the fall, was later blown up. Carey was shot through the heart.

The statement yesterday of Premier Jan C. Smuts that the fighting on the whole "is not going in the Government's favor," was born out by dispatches.

The whole Rand seems to be aflame with sedition, as the disorders are not confined to any one district. The natives have not risen on any large scale, although a few pro-Boer farmers are said to have joined the strikers. The Government is devoting strong efforts to keeping the natives calm as an uprising by them would be far more serious than the labor dispute. In general the agriculturkal districts are quiet.

SMOKE CLOUD SHROUDS CITY

An unusually dense smoke pall hung over St. Louis last night. Although accustomed to periodical visitations of the sort, many persons thought that some new condition or complication had arisen.

The cause, however, was that of all other smoke palls—atmospheric calm.

All the way from the stand where they were met by British and American Consuls and large crowds, their automobile was pelted with flowers. Cheering villagers surrounded them at the Villa Medici, where the couple will stay while in Florence.

MEANS TO WIPE OUT DIPHTHERIA FOUND THROUGH SHICK TEST

New York Professor Tells of Immunity in 95 Per Cent of Test Cases.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—A means of wiping out diphtheria, said to have increased from 50 to 100 per cent throughout the country during the last decade, has been found through use of the Schick test in the public schools, here, it was announced tonight by Dr. Abraham Zinghler, assistant professor of hygiene at New York University Medical College.

After eight years of experimentation, 95 per cent of the school children given the test in New York were made immune to the disease, Dr. Zinghler said. The length of time that a person was immune from diphtheria by use of the old serum was about four weeks, he added, while those given the Schick test eight years ago were recently retested and found still immune.

The test originated in Austria and improved here, consists of a series of injections of diphtheria toxin and anti-toxin. Four days after the first injection a red spot can be noticed over the place of the injection if a person is susceptible to the disease. If this spot appears, three injections are given at 10-day intervals. The test, Dr. Zinghler said, does not in any way supplant the work of the diphtheria serum which is given in active cases of the disease. It is used entirely to determine whether a child is immune from the disease and also to create immunity.

PLAN FOR VOTE IN ILLINOIS ON BEER AND LIGHT WINE

Petitions Placed in Circulation to Have Question Submitted in November.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 11.—A vote in Illinois upon a beer and light wine proposal as a modification of the existing Volstead act will be had in November if sufficient names are obtained to place the question on the ballot, it was made known today.

The petitions have been placed in circulation under direction of the Illinois division of the National Association opposed to prohbition. The proposal, the petitions seek to have submitted to popular State wide vote is as follows:

"Shall the existing State and Federal prohibitory laws be modified so as to permit the manufacture, sale and transportation of beer (containing less than 4 per cent by volume of alcohol) and light wines for home consumption?"

JUDGE ORDERS MIXED JURY PUT IN SEPARATE ROOMS

Wife of Wisconsin Sheriff Placed in Charge of Women Members for Night.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., May 11.—The problem of quartering mixed juries of men and women when unable to agree, was settled by Judge J. A. Hoppmann, in Dane County Superior Court here last night when he ordered the sexes segrated and given lodging in different rooms of a hotel. Nine men and three women were unable to arrive at a verdict in the case of Everett Westbury of Madison charged with highway robbery and at 11:30 o'clock last night the judge gave orders that they should be put in charge of Sheriff W. H. McCormick and his wife. While the sheriff watched over the men, his wife, who was deputized, stood guard over the women jurors to see that they communicated with no one.

LLOYD GEORGE IS CALLED DICTATOR BY THE FORMER INDIAN SECRETARY

Edwin S. Montagu, Whose Resignation Is Alleged to Be Connected With Government's Attitude Towards Gandhi, Makes Address.

PREDICTS COUNTRY WILL WIN DESTINY

S. N. Ghose, Director of Nation's Commission in Washington, Says Strikes Have Been Called in Larger Indian Cities.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 11.—Edwin S. Montagu, former Secretary for India, in a bitter speech before his Cambridge constituents, hit back today at Premier Lloyd George and Lord Curzon regarding his enforced resignation. The speech was delivered before the Liberal Club.

Montagu showed no penitence for the publication of the Earl of Reading's dispatch and scoffed at "the new creed of collective responsibility of the Cabinet." He asserted that he had been ignored on various occasions by Lloyd George himself and likewise Lord Milner, in connection with the Egypt report, and by Churchill.

"Cabinet responsibility is a joke," he declared. "We have been governed by a great genius, a strategist and dictator, who, scenting the air while waiting for pursuit, has thrown over the most inconvenient cargo."

Predicts India's Freedom.

India, said Montagu, would win her appointed destiny of freedom within the British Empire, to which there was no obstacle except disloyalty and non-co-operation, if an appeal were made to the British people. He pledged that there should be no vacillation in Indian policy, saying:

"We have been spreading Western education in India for 150 years. Don't let us turn around now to the Indians and say, 'We have lost faith in our democratic institutions and all our teaching was a mistake.'"

The meeting, which was attended by numerous Indian students, unanimously voted confidence in Montagu.

Resignation of Montagu Is Shock to Indian Public.

BOMBAY, March 11.—The resignation of Edwin S. Montagu as Secretary of State for India came as a shock to the Indian public. Among the non-co-operationists regret was expressed that India had lost the services of the statesman who had done so much for her. The Bombay Chronicle suggests that his resignation was due to his reluctance to agree to Gandhi's arrest.

The extremists here expect his successor to be a reactionary politician and believe that Montagu was sacrificed to the alleged anti-Turk policy of the Imperial Government. Little attention is paid by these commentators upon the constitutional issue to which his resignation was attributed.

The Advocate of India expresses regret at the India Secretary's downfall and considers that the recommendations of the Government of India regarding Turkey should be acted upon.

The Anglo-Indian newspapers speak warmly of Mr. Montagu's devotion to his ideals, but most of them think that India is not likely to suffer by his resignation.

An appeal to the public to remain calm, "as we shall show no regard for Gandhi, either by observing a hartal or going mad," was issued today by the native Congress Committee. The committee requests that the natives refrain from invoking a hartal and maintain "a peaceful, cordial attitude toward all."

A dispatch from Calcutta states that, at a meeting of the Negal Legislative Council today, the Indian members gave notice that they had passed a resolution expressing regret at the resignation of Edwin S. Montagu as Secretary of State for India and expressing appreciation of his services. The President of the Council refused a request for adjournment as a token of regret, whereupon the Indian members, with the exception of 11, walked out of the meeting.

MILLER REFUSES TO GIVE SCHOOL BOARD INFORMATION; DENOUNCED BY MOTHERS

Police Board Head in School Board Office and in Talk With Mothers

Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, as he emerged from the meeting room of the Board of Education yesterday afternoon.

Questioning of Miller by Members of School Board

THE Board of Education, after a two-hours' session yesterday afternoon with Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, gave out a brief list of questions and answers which took place in the latter part of the session, and which, the members said, summarized the discussion which had gone before. The matter given out by the Board was as follows:

Mr. Tobin: Why did you not make first to the Board of Education the statement that was printed in the public press as coming from you?

Mr. Miller: Because it involved matters over which the Board of Education had no control. It involved matters that happened not on the school premises, but outside of school hours.

Mr. Maddox: Does that include the principal and teachers of the school, that they are in no sense responsible?

Mr. Miller: Of course, they are not responsible.

Mr. Maddox: Why did you not make it to the principal?

Mr. Miller: For the same reason.

Mr. Tobin: Now, do I understand that statement, Mr. Miller, that neither the Board of Education, the principal of the school, the teachers of the school, nor anybody in connection with the administration of the public school system of this city, is responsible in any way for that condition?

Mr. Miller: Or could correct it.

Mr. Tobin: And for that reason you did not make your report to the Board of Education or to any of the other officers just enumerated, and that is strictly a question for the parents?

Mr. Miller: That is my reason.

Mr. Tobin: Your statement was never intended to convey the idea that there existed such a school organization?

Mr. Miller: That is correct.

Mr. McDonald: Mr. Tobin asked if Mr. Miller was prepared and willing to give his information to those who were vitally interested in the report.

Mr. Miller: I am willing to disclose all my information to a representative body of the parents of the Soldan High School, for the purpose of pursuing an inquiry. I will give such information as I may possess to those persons or organizations who can correct anything that the information may show to exist.

GOVERNOR IN 2-HOUR TALK WITH HIM ON HIS CHARGES

Police Board Head, Declining to Go Into Charges of Immorality Among Soldan High Pupils as Not a Matter for Board's Action, Says He'll Talk to Parents.

MASS MEETING AT SOLDAN AT 3 TODAY

Committee of Mothers Vigorously Denounces Miller After He Leaves Secret Meeting—"No Immediate Action," Hyde Says.

Gov. Hyde talked with Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, for two hours last night regarding Miller's charge, made in a church talk Thursday night, that there was an immoral club of boys and, he was informed, a similar club of girls, in Soldan High School.

Miller's meeting with the Governor followed a long secret session of the Board of Education, at which Miller refused to furnish the board any of the information which he said he possessed, as he declared that the board had no jurisdiction over the acts of pupils outside school hours, and that the principal and teachers were not responsible for them.

Mothers Confront Miller.

Six mothers of Soldan High School pupils confronted Miller in the office of the secretary of the Board of Education, after he left the board session, and denounced him vehemently. They demanded that he attend a mass meeting of parents, called for 3 o'clock this afternoon in the school auditorium. He said he would not appear at a public meeting, but that he would meet later with a committee of parents, to be named at the meeting, and would furnish them such information as he has. He had previously made a similar statement to the board.

The Mothers' Committee made an endeavor to get in touch with Gov. Hyde, to invite him to the mass meeting. The Governor said last night, after his conference with Miller, that he had not received any direct invitation to the meeting. He added that he was seeking information, and was not desirous of making speeches. His meeting with Miller was held in the office of George M. Hagee, a member of the State Tax Commission, in the Boatmen's Bank Building, with Hagee and Dr. E. B. Clements, chairman of the Republican State Committee, present. It lasted two hours, and Miller is said to have made to the Governor the full statement which he refused to make to the Board of Education.

"No Immediate Action."

"There will be no immedaite action," was Gov. Hyde's answer to various inquiries whether any official action on his part would result from the utterances of Miller, his appointee.

The Mothers' Committee furnished the most stirring incident of yesterday's developments in the Miller episode. The six mothers, with about 75 other men and women, stood in the corridor outside the board's assembly room from 3 to 5 p. m., waiting in vain for admittance to what had been announced as an open meeting. When the board adjourned and opened its doors, with the announcement that nothing had been learned, the mothers held a caucus and decided to issue a call for a mass meeting this afternoon.

They prepared letters to Miller and to Gov. Hyde, inviting them to attend the meeting. Miller had remained in the office of the secretary, talking with three members of the Board of Education, and the women

ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM SENT OUT FROM RADIO STATION AT POST-DISPATCH

Message From Hoover, Talk by Miss Rankin and Musical Numbers Received as Far Away as Vandalia, Ill.

A diversified program of entertainment was broadcast last night from the Post-Dispatch radio station, K S D. Early reports were that the numbers had been clearly received throughout St. Louis and as far distant as Vandalia, Ill., 60 miles east of St. Louis. The program was arranged and transmitted at the request of the Round Table Club, comprising business and professional men, which had installed a wireless receiving set at the St. Louis Club, its meeting place.

The occasion was the first on which the new transmitting studio of the Post-Dispatch had been put to use, and hence was in some respects a test. Important observations respecting the acoustics were made and defects discovered will be corrected at once.

Talk by Miss Rankin.

Notable among the numbers was a 10-minute talk on industrial legislation for women, by Miss Jeannette Rankin of Montana, first woman member of Congress. A message from Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover to the radio operators of the Middle West, was read.

Illustrating how closely wireless is in touch with news events, there was read a schedule of "news possibilities" lying at that moment (8:30 o'clock) before the managing editor of the New York World. It was explained that these items were yet to be developed, but that the full details would appear a few hours later in that newspaper, and be read at the Sunday breakfast table by New Yorkers.

Following preliminary announcements, the program opened at 7:45 o'clock with a piano solo by Charles Humfeld, and was followed by an operatic number by the Peerless Mixed Quartet, comprising Mrs. Rose Mortimer, Miss Alma Schulze, J. Glen Lee and B. E. Lemen, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Newman. The leading editorial in today's Post-Dispatch was read, and Mrs. Mortimer gave a soprano solo. Two numbers by the Tremont Male Quartet,

DOG SMELLS AUTOMOBILES IN EFFORT TO FIND MASTER

A white female fox terrier with a black spot in the middle of her back and a black and tan spotted head, who knows the smell of her master's gasoline, is looking for that master.

This terrier presented herself July 4, last year, at the home of a person who writes anonymously to the Post-Dispatch. It has been there ever since, except when it is at the filling stations of the neighborhood smelling the automobiles in search of its master's. It likes to ride in automobiles and would sleep in one if permitted. Anybody recognizing the description and symptoms is asked to call up Forest 5715J and establish ownership.

Written by Mrs. Ruth Kimball Gardiner, the article expresed doubt as to whether the modern dance steps and other amusements of the present generation are "proportionately more dangerous than the kissing games of bygone days."

3-HOUR DEBATE IN SENATE ON THE 4-POWER TREATY

Underwood, Democratic Leader, Makes Speech for Pact and Defends It in Exchange With Robinson.

READS LETTER FROM HUGHES

Secretary Declares There Is No Secret Connected With Agreement and Admits He Wrote the Draft.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The four-Power Pacific treaty, its purposes and possibilities and the manner of its negotiation, passed through another spectacular combat of argument and oratory today on the floor of the Senate.

Throughout the battle of wits the burden of defense was carried by Senator Underwood of Alabama, the Democratic floor leader and a member of the American delegation to the arms conference. Ringed by enemies of the treaty, largely of his own party, the minority leader stood for three hours in his place in the center of the chamber and replied in kind to the thrusts directed at him.

Among the weapons of argument used by the Alabama Senator was a letter written to him by Secretary Hughes, head of the American conference. Replying to charges that the treaty resulted from a British-Japanese plan to allay the embarrassments of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. Hughes asserted that he himself had prepared a draft of the treaty after consultation with the other delegates and that with minor changes, it became the final text as signed and submitted to the Senate for ratification.

The State Department Secretary further declared there was "not the slightest mystery about the treaty or basis of suspicion regarding it." He described it as "a straightforward document which attained one of the most important objects the American Government has had in view and is of the highest importance to the maintenance of friendly relations in the Far East upon a sound basis.

"I view of this," concluded Mr. Hughes, "its failure would be nothing short of a national calamity."

Robinson Leads Opposition.

The argumentative duel which followed the reading by Senator Underwood of the Secretary's letter, and which interposed itself in the Senator's prepared address was fought for an hour between the speaker and Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, who originally had raised the question of the origin of the treaty and who declared that the Secretary's letter had not dispelled evidences that the four-Power arrangement was inspired from London and Tokio. Other Democrats then joined in the questioning of their party leader, including Senators Reed of Missouri, Glass of Virginia, Walsh of Montana and Watson of Georgia. From the Republican side of the chamber their efforts were seconded by Senators Borah of Idaho and France of Maryland.

His support of the treaty, Senator Underwood said, was actuated by the same spirit that prompted him to vote for the treaty of Versailles with its League of Nations. He declared no alliance was contemplated, but added that he could see no objection even to an alliance if it were based on arbitration rather than force and effaced dangers that threatened American interests in the Pacific.

Negotiations in Secret.

To reject the pact because it does not bind the signatories to employ force, he asserted would be to revert to the reactionary philosophy of the past.

The Democratic leader conceded that the negotiations leading up to the treaty were carried on in "secrecy," but argued that such a course was necessary in view of the particular circumstances surrounding the effort of the American delegation to rid the world of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. In the main, he said, the arms conference was conducted more openly than any similar consultation in the history of the world.

Senator Robinson insisted, in turn, that the provision for consultation among the signatories to agree on a course of action in case of aggression by an "outside Power" could mean only that the force of all four was to be united against the aggressor. When any such consultation took place, he argued, and any one Power signified that it was not able to meet the attack alone, the only means the others could suggest was united action.

Pursuing his contention that the treaty is regarded as an alliance by the other parties to it, Senator Robinson read from a speech said to have been made by Earl Grey declaring that the Anglo-Japanese alliance had been "merged" into the four-Power arrangement. The Arkansas Senator also read a statement he said had been made by Prince Tokugawa just after his return to Japan, saying that "Japan has not lost her old ally, but has gained new ones through the four-Power treaty." Taken in connection with the Prince's more recent statement, Senator Robinson said, the opinion previously expressed showed a great facility to change positions.

Returning to Secretary Hughes' letter Senator Robinson asked what had suddenly inspired the Secretary to make a statement on the subject after remaining silent so long.

"After due reflection," said Robinson, "and after having told the newspapermen that it was nobody's business who wrote the treaty, he sends in a long letter saying he wrote it after hearing the suggestions of other delegates. At last we have information I do not say authentic or unauthentic as to who was its author. But he does not tell us why he did not speak sooner, and why he waited to thus inform the Senate and the country."

"Should there be an act of aggression by an outside Power and a conference be called," said Senator Robinson, "the first question to be answered would be by what means the situation would be met. The answer, of course, would be war. No one would think of answering an act of aggression any other way. If one party decides it is not sufficiently strong to repel the aggression alone, what is the result? That two or more join their forces. Of course this country could not go to war without a declaration of war by Congress, but nevertheless the purpose of this agreement is to give to each of the nations the strength of all in the Pacific."

Asked by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, what particular Power had been in view in the framing of Article Two, which provides for consultation in case of aggression by any outside Power, Senator Underwood replied that in his opinion no particular Power was feared and none would be in any position to exert any aggressive measures in the Pacific for some time.

"So far as the United States is concerned, added Senator Underwood, "I don't think Article Two means anything."

"Then would the Senator agree to an amendment striking it out of the treaty?" asked Senator Walsh.

"No," said Underwood, "because we cannot know what effect the striking out may have on the other signatory Powers. They may regard it of some value. There is many a treaty containing provisions which are of no value to one of the signatories, but which it accepts in order to secure other articles which are of value to it."

Treaty Life Ten Years.

Senator Walsh argued, nevertheless, that either the article must have been included with some particular Power in view or else it "had no purpose whatever."

Senator Underwood emphasized that the treaty's life was ten years and also declared that no Power in that time could challenge the four principal nations.

Senator Reed said Russia had 4,000,000 men under arms well officered and ought not to be dismissed lightly as a factor.

Underwood replied that Russia was without funds, that her army was "not more than a mob," and had no real government "except that of terror." Senator France, Republican, Maryland, argued that Russia had powerful resources.

Senator Underwood quoted Prince Togugawa to show that the Japanese spokesman did not regard the treaty as an alliance, but merely as an agreement for conference. Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, asked if the treaty "is as meaningless as the Senator says it is," why should Japan be satisfied to give up the Anglo-Japanese Alliance."

"I don't say its meaningless" Senator Underwood replied, emphasizing that it was solely for "conference and agreement" under a new spiritual feeling for peace prevailing throughout the world.

"It will make for the peace of our people, for the protection of the lives of our men," said Senator Underwood. "It will wipe out an alliance which if not a danger has been certainly an embarrassment. The man who votes to reject this treaty takes the responsibility upon himself of turning his back upon an opportunity to maintain peace in the Orient and to disciple the effective force of the Anglo-Japanese alliance."

Many Hear Speech.

The largest audience of Senators which yet has attended the treaty debates and also the largest crowd of spectators, filling every seat and overflowing in lines into the corridors, was present. In the diplomatic gallery was Lady Asquith and others from the diplomatic corps. Representative Garrett of Tennessee, Democrat floor leader in the House and many House members also followed Senator Underwood's address.

Because of a desire by many Senators to complete work on an appropriation bill, administration leaders did not carry out their purpose to force a vote today on the first of the proposed reservations and the treaty was laid temporarily aside without action. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts the Republican leader announced however, that on Monday he would attempt to secure an agreement for a time for voting, and should he fail would hold the Senate to "long sessions" until the debate had worn itself out.

Although they cared to make no numerical estimates, the Republican and Democratic floor leaders both remained confident tonight that no reservation except that drawn by the Foreign Relations Committee would be adopted and that the treaty would have a safe majority on the ratification roll call. They declared that more than the necessary two-thirds had pledged themselves to support it.

Newspaper Men Present Golden Shears to Hughes

Token of Appreciation of Secretary's "Kindly Assistance to Them in Their Work"—First Cabinet Member Ever Thus Complimented

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Washington newspaper correspondents presented to Secretary Hughes at the State Department today a pair of gold desk shears in token of their appreciation for his "kindly assistance to them in their work," since assuming office. The gift was said to be unique in that it was the first ever given a Cabinet officer during his incumbency by the newspapermen who come in daily contact with heads of administrations.

The gift, which was appropriately engraved, was presented on behalf of the correspondents by Matthew F. Tighe, who has been "covering" the State Department for more than 40 years. In delivering the shears, Tighe expressed the hope that the Secretary would make the use of the gift that Alexander made of his sword, "in cutting the Gordian knots of international diplomacy," to which the State Department head replied that he was quite sure the correspondents would not permit any knot, Gordian or otherwise, to escape his attention.

In his reply, Secretary Hughes took occasion to remind the correspondents of the difficulty public officials experienced in maintaining the proper contact with public opinion. "It isn't always easy to decide what should be done," he said, adding it should be realized that the Government was not "trying to put something over" when it was found necessary to refuse information on subjects prominently in the public eye.

Contact With Public Essential.

"Nothing is more difficult," he said, "than to maintain the proper contact on the part of a public officer, particularly in the great departments, with public opinion. Of course, it is essential that nothing should be done which would impair administrative work by improper or premature disclosures. You, as citizens, understand the importance of that, especially in connection with the work of the State Department. On the other hand, it is just as important that suspicion should not be allowed to get under way because of an undue reticence and a lack of proper appreciation of the time and opportunity for a disclosure to which the public is entitled. A public officer has always got to remind himself, and he ought to say every morning as he approaches his task: 'I am a servant and it is my business to see what I can do for the American people. I am not a boss, and my little authority or great authority that I happen to have for a day is not a personal perquisite.'

"So, of course, it is obvious to you, with your intimate contact with the department that we have to maintain this balance. It isn't always easy to decide what should be done, and there has to be mutual confidence between those who represent in their contact with the department the public opinion of the country, and the officer who is trying to administer the department, or else there will be a failure on both sides. There will be a failure of the public to understand and a failure of the public officer properly to discharge his duty. That means that when I tell you that there are certain things I can't say, that you will believe at least that I have a conviction that that is so, and that I am not trying to conceal something which you ought to know. And it means that when I say a thing to you to guide you, so far as I can, in your interpretation of the work of the department, that you know that I am not trying, in the language of the street, to put something over and get something to the public which will be in some personal interest of mine rather than making a straightforward statement of what we are actually doing.

Conference Position Difficult.

"I have been very happy to think, by reason of your generous relation to me since I have been here, that you have felt that I was trying to deal with this work in a manner compatible with our theories of democratic institutions and to make our work as intelligible to the public, as thoroughly understood by the people, as the circumstances of the case would permit. Of course, that was especially difficult during the conference. I was in the position of chairman of the conference. I was a responsible delegates. Anything I said was authoritative, not gossip or speculation. I knew the facts, and everybody knew that I knew; that what I said was not a mere supposition. I had to be especially guarded that I should say nothing which would give free course to inadvisable reports, or on the other hand, would be in any way a breach of that honorable confidence without which my usefulness in the department would soon be at an end."

Lecture Planned in Public Library.

Dr. A. G. Pohlman, professor of anatomy at St. Louis University, will address the St. Louis Natural History Museum Association in the auditorium of the Public Library, Fourteenth and Olive streets, at 8 p. m. Wednesday on "Some Peculiarities in the Development and Hatching of the Chick." The meeting is open to the public.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 11.—The Allied Finance Ministers signed an agreement this afternoon for the distribution of the first billion gold marks of German reparations. The agreement disregards the American claim of priority for its expenses in connection with the occupation of the Rhineland so far as the actual sharing of this money is concerned, but recognizes the claim by a special clause, which states that all the agreements on this question are subject to the American rights as the various governments may establish them, the Finance Ministers considering that they do not have power to decide this question.

The Ministers decided, after long discussion, that the question was not for the Reparations Commission to decide, because that body was acting solely under the provisions of the treaty of Versailles, to which the United States no longer was a party. Consequently, it was decided that the question was one for the various governments concerned to settle.

The Finance Ministers also concluded that it was impossible for them in any case to reopen the long and difficult deliberations which resulted in the present agreement, so they could only reserve the American right and leave the question for diplomacy to settle.

The agreement provides that the expenses of the armies of occupation after May 1, 1921, shall be divided as follows:

One hundred and two million Belgian francs to Belgium, £2,000,000 to Great Britain, and 460,000,000 French francs to France.

Deliveries in Kind.

The distribution of deliveries in kind by Germany in 1922 will be on the basis of 65 per cent to France and 35 per cent to the other allies. The Wiesbaden agreement will continue in force for three years, with the reservation that payments will not exceed 350,000,000 gold marks' worth of material in 1922, 750,000,000 in 1923 and 750,000,000 in 1924. Other Powers besides France, under the agreement are permitted to conclude arrangements with Germany similar to the Wiesbaden agreement, provided such agreements do not call for deliveries in kind in excess of the total amount fixed by the present agreement.

None of the Powers, the agreement provides, will be compelled to turn back any cash as a result of deliveries in kind received in 1922.

The first billion marks paid in cash are to be distributed as follows (leaving out of account the American claim): 500,000,000 gold marks to Great Britain as partial reimbursement for the expenses of her armies of occupation up to May 1, 1921; 140,000,000 gold marks to France, for the same purpose, and the remainder to Belgium, with the exception of 172,000,000 lire allotted to Italy.

Comment in French Circles.

The tendency of the Ministers to go back to the Cannes agreement almost textually which became known during the day, caused considerable comment in French political circles. The fact was pointed to that M. Briand fell as Premier on the criticisms of his policy at Cannes.

Berlin Amused by Demand Made On Allies.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Mar. 11.—The request of the United States for approximately a billion gold marks as reimbursement for the cost of maintaining its troops on the Rhine has occasioned amusement here, where it was presumed in official quarters that the Allies must pay the amount out of the reparations which already have been paid by Germany and, as one commentator expressed it, "largely spent by France."

The Tageblatt thinks this is another example of "discreet pressure" which America can bring to bear to show that the Genoa conference without her is simply useless. It declares it is another proof and a warning to the Allies that America can play cat and mouse with them, making their position as difficult or as easy as she wishes.

The amount demanded, in the opinion of the Tageblatt, is immaterial, the important fact remaining that something was demanded which caused consternation among the Allies.

Der Tag is of the belief the demand is an exhibition of the United States' displeasure over France's land armament policy, and is intended to help in real reconstruction of Europe's economic condition.

"If the American demand really means this," it adds, "we warmly welcome it."

SCHOOL BOARD GETS NO INFORMATION FROM MILLER, WHO IS DENOUNCED BY MOTHERS

Police Board Head Says Charges of Immorality Involve Matters Over Which School Authorities Have No Control.

Committee of Soldan Parents Vigorously Assails Him as He Comes From Session, Calls Mass Meeting for Today.

SOLDAN PARENTS TO HOLD MASS MEETING AT SCHOOL AT 3 THIS AFTERNOON

A MASS meeting of parents of Soldan High School pupils, for discussion of Victor J. Miller's charges as to the existence of immoral clubs among the pupils, will be held in the school auditorium, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue, at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Miller, when invited by a committee of mothers last evening to appear at the mass meeting, said he would not do so, but that he would meet a committee of parents, to be appointed at the meeting, and would place before the committee information in his possession, with a view to the correcting of the conditions which he professed to have discovered. The mothers prepared an invitation to Gov. Hyde, who will be in the city today, to attend the meeting.

entered and handed him the invitation, with their signatures. It read:

> We, the undersigned, the executive committee of the Mothers' Club of Soldan High School, representing the parents of the boys and girls of Soldan High School, request you to be present at a meeting of the parents at the school at 3 p. m. Sunday, March 12. The statement given out by the Board of Education signifies your willingness to present your information to a committee of parents. Such a committee will be selected at this meeting.

> MRS. J. A. KREBS, President,
> MRS. LOUIS G. KURTZEBORN.
> MRS. CHARLES A. POWERS.
> MRS. SILAS S. STEINER.
> MRS. ALBERT BROCH.
> MRS. EUGENE E. EVANS.

Says He'll Meet Committee.

Miller, who was seated and was smoking a cigarette, read the letter, then said to Mrs. Krebs, the spokeswoman:

"I will meet a committee and will disclose to it whatever information I have."

"Will you attend our parents' mass meeting?" Mrs. Powers demanded.

"I will meet a representative committee," Miller repeated. "I will not attend a mass meeting and make a public address. I do not think that would do any good."

"Mr. Miller," demanded Mrs. Powers, "why were you not as thoughtful as that before you made the statements you did in a public address, maligning our daughters?"

"And our sons," another member interjected. "They are just as precious to us as our daughters."

"I have made my reply," said Miller, keeping a conversational tone. "I will meet a committee and go about the matter with the committee in a manner that will correct this condition."

Tells Miller He is Coward.

"But," Mrs. Steiner interposed, "you are not willing to appear in public before the parents whose children you have slandered. Mr. Miller, you are a coward, and I wish I were a man so that I could deal with you."

"Come and sit on the platform, even if you don't want to say anything," said Mrs. Kurtzeborn. "You will see what the parents of our boys and girls think of your attack on a group of children as fine and pure as any in the city, or anywhere in the land. I want to tell you, Mr. Miller, that the people are seething with indignation over the way you have talked about their sons and daughters."

"I am the mother of four pure daughters," said another of the group. "Are you a father, Mr. Miller? I thought not," she continued, as he shook his head.

Miller remained seated, and did not raise his voice above a low tone, although the women had addressed him in voices of an emphatic and indignant pitch.

"I have not said a word against your daughters," he declared to the women. "There has been no stone cast at anyone except those who are guilty."

"Then why didn't you take the matter up in a way that would affect only the guilty ones?" one of the mothers demanded. "Why did you malign them all in a public talk?"

Question Is Repeated.

This question, in one form or another, was repeated by all the women, and Miller replied that he had said all he had to say, and reiterated that he would meet a committee. The mothers asked if he would meet the committee immediately after the mass meeting at the high school, and Miller said he was not sure that he would meet the committee so soon as that, but that he would get in touch with anyone whom they might designate, and would try to meet the committee as early as he could.

"Then," he declared, "I will give your committee what information I have, and it will be entirely for you to decide what you shall make public."

"But you have made the matter public already, in a way that reflects on every pupil in the school," Mrs. Powers exclaimed, and the others seconded her remarks with indignant expressions.

Miller remarked that the women before him had disqualified themselves to pass upon his remarks, as they had declared in advance that his statements were untrue. The women replied that they had gone to the Board meeting in order to hear facts presented, but had been excluded, and had then learned that Miller had told the Board nothing.

After leaving the office of the Secretary, the women endeavored to get in touch with Gov. Hyde by telephone or telegraph. In their written invitation to the Governor to attend today's meeting, they said that "the matter to be considered is of vital importance to the city and the whole commonwealth."

"Publicity Will Cure Evil."

Miller said, after leaving the Board of Education building, that he was not worried by the indignation shown by the committee of mothers.

"Publicity in this matter may be distasteful," he said, "but it is the thing that will curb this evil. In my talk Thursday night, I was speaking to grown-up persons, who had the right to know of conditions. I believe the conditions have been corrected and ended by the fear that this publicity has brought, and when this indignation subsides, it will be seen that good has been done."

A friend of Miller said last night that Miller would have definite information to place before the committee of parents. He will tell the committee, it was declared, of statements made to him by two boys attending the high school, who are said to have made admissions as to the existence of a club such as Miller mentioned, and a statement made by a physician as to conditions which had developed in the course of his practice, bearing on the conduct of pupils in the school.

The Board of Education meeting, a special session called for the sole purpose of questioning Miller as to his charge, was attended by all the 12 members of the board—John C. Tobin, president; Jesse McDonald, Harry A. Rosskopf, Dr. Henry L. Wolfner, Richard Murphy, Stephen M. Wagner, C. W. Johnson, Ben P. Stromberg, Henry Gettys, Joseph Joering, W. Palmer Clarkson and Mrs. Benjamin F. Bush.

Supt. Maddox, Principal Powell of Soldan High School, the Rev. W. C. Shupp of the Anti-Saloon League, and principals, teachers and parents were present, and the public seating space was filled when Miller arrived, shortly after 2:30.

A platform, which appeared to have been improvised for the occasion, was at the left of the rostrum where the president and secretary of the board sat. A single chair was on the platform, which was evidently designed as a witness stand. Miller was met at the door of the assembly room by Secretary Mason of the board, and was escorted to a seat near this stand. The secretary read the call for the special meeting, issued at a conference Friday.

Former Judge McDonald offered a resolution, stating that it had been charged that there existed, in Soldan High School, societies of girls and boys, the membership of which was limited to those guilty of immoral conduct, and moving that the board proceed to investigate the charge. This resolution was adopted.

Dr. Wolfner then moved that the board go into executive session, to consider its method of procedure. Wagner asked if this was to be anything more than temporary, and when it was repeated that the only purpose was to determine a mode of procedure, the motion was passed without dissent.

It took several minutes for those in the room to get into the corridor. Some members of the board assured the teachers and parents, as they went out, that they would be able to return "in a few minutes." Some left their hats and coats on the seats they had been occupying. Miller was sent out with the rest, and only the members of the board, Supt. Maddox, Attorney Burkham and Secretary Mason remained in the room.

At 3 o'clock, the secretary called Miller into the room. This indicated to the gathering in the corridor that the questioning was to begin, and expressions of dissatisfaction began, which grew in intensity as an hour, and then another hour, passed.

Occasional Reply by Miller.

A janitor guarded the assembly room door, in which a thin rim of transparent glass surrounds the sanded glass. Throught this rim, those who stood near the door could see Miller sitting, not on the witness stand, but at one of the members' desks, and various members of the Board talking to him and to the president, with an occasional reply by Miller, who some times stood and some times remained seated.

Some of the women in attendance went into offices near the assembly room and sat down during the long wait. The Soldan mothers remained in the corridor near the door, seemingly unwearied by the long ordeal of standing up.

A few minutes before 5, former Judge McDonald departed, saying as he left that no information had been obtained from Miller, and that the session would be over soon. The doors were opened at 5 o'clock, and as the wearied gathering from the hall filed in, President Tobin began explaining why the matter had been handled as it was.

Tobin said, and Supt. Maddox, Dr. Wolfner and others repeated, that it had not been intended, at first, to keep the public out of the room more than a short time. He said the Board had called Miller in, to learn what evidence he expected to present, and to settle the mode of procedure. When Miller refused to make any statement to the Board, he said, an unexpected situation was presented, and a discussion began, which was prolonged with remarks by different members, but which never reached the point of giving the Board any information, or of furnishing any occasion to call in the public.

Johnson "Thoroughly Disgusted."

"We know no more than we did in the first place," C. W. Johnson said. "I am thoroughly disgusted."

Tobin said the Board was unwilling to accept Miller's contention that the Board had nothing to do with the actions of high school students outside of school hours. He said the Circuit Court has held that the Board of Education has the right to regulate, or to prohibit, high school fraternities, which meet outside of school hours. The Supreme Court has not passed on this question, but he said the decision of the lower court should be accepted in the absence of a Supreme Court ruling. This point, it appeared, was argued with Miller at length, but Miller refused to make a statement to the school authorities, and said he would reserve his showing of facts for the parents.

Time Wasted, Members Say.

Several members characterized the long discussion as "time wasted," saying that nothing had been done and no apparent progress made.

The statement issued by the board, containing what was declared to be the essential parts of the discussion between members of the board and Miller, is printed elsewhere in this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

As Miller started out of the Board assembly room the Soldan mothers spoke to him. "Mr. Miller," one of them said, "we want you to face the mothers of the girls of Soldan High School."

"We want you to know what we think of you," another of the women said.

Miller made a remark which sounded like "I don't care," and a man then called, "You wouldn't say that to one of the fathers."

"Who said that?" Miller demanded, turning in the doorway. There was no response. He went to the Secretary's office, where he talked for some time with Stromberg, Dr. Gettys and Joering, and the mothers went into consultation with Principal Powell as to getting the high school auditorium for a meeting today. This was arranged readily, and the mothers prepared their letter, which they took into the Secretary's office and presented to Miller, with the denunciatory scene already described.

Miller's Refusal Surprise.

Miller's refusal to make a statement to the board was a surprise, as he had said a few hours before that he had received additional information since Thursday, and was "better equipped" than when he spoke Thursday night at the King's Highway Christian Church.

"I will not now divulge the information I have," Miller said yesterday morning to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "but I am prepared to give the members of the Board of Education something to think about.

"Since the publication yesterday of my remarks at the church I have received a number of telephone calls and letters commending my address, and some of them giving me information. As a result I am better equipped than I was Thursday, and I am prepared to go ahead."

HARDINGS ON YACHT CRUISE DOWN FLORIDA EAST COAST

Extent of Trip Depends on Weather and Demands of Official Business on the President.

By the Associated Press.

NEW SMYRNA, Fla., March 11.—President and Mrs. Harding, with their vacation guests, left tonight on the houseboat of E. B. McLean, Washington publisher, on their cruise down the Florida East Coast. Just how far the cruise will extend was uncertain, apparently depending upon the weather and the demands of official business.

During the day the party stopped at Ormond for a round of golf and then came here by automobile, where nine more holes were played. Those playing with the President were Speaker Gillett of the national House of Representatives; Under Secretary of State Fletcher; McLean and occasionally his secretary, George B. Christian Jr.

HEFLIN READS POST-DISPATCH EDITORIAL INTO RECORD

Article Supported Alabama Senator in Demands for Reserve Board Inquiry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Heflin of Alabama read into the Record this afternoon an editorial from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, supporting him in his demand for an investigation of alleged political activities of the Federal Reserve Board. Heflin said he would shortly introduce a resolution calling for an inquiry into "propaganda by the reserve board to intimidate men in this body who dare to tell the truth."

He declared that the board had exceeded its rights by setting aside a fund for publicity purposes. The Senate should find out, he said, the amount of this fund and to whom it was disbursed.

RUSSIAN TRAIN 21 DAYS LATE

MOSCOW, Feb. 16.—Americans who fume when trains arrive late at their destinations should come to Russia and learn patience. The Tashkent express has just come in 21 days late, a new record, even for Russia, where trains eight to 10 days behind time are common.

The locomotive of the Tashkent express broke down in the Ural Mountains and the train was stalled there three weeks until it could be repaired, it was explained. Sir Benjamin Robertson, an Englishman who had been on an inspection tour of the famine districts in the Volga and who was a passenger on the delayed train, was informed that 25 passengers died of typhus, cold and hunger during the delay.

Ordered to Beat When Low Bidder, in Which V. J. Miller Is Stockholder of Record, Loses Contract.

BOARD HEAD DENIES FINANCIAL INTEREST

He Says, However, He Is Attorney for Firm and Friend for Many Years of J. M. Wolff, Its President.

The Wolff Printing Co., 310-312 Market street, of which Victor J. Miller, president of the Police Board, is a stockholder of record, failed to land the contract for printing the Police Relief Association's entertainment program, on its low bidder, and, as a result, Patrolman Matthew A. Connors, secretary of the association, as was published exclusively in the late editions of yesterday's Post-Dispatch, was ordered to don a uniform and patrol a beat.

Twelve bids were submitted by printing firms on the program for the entertainment which is to be given at the Odeon the week of April 19. The special committee of seven members of the department considered the bids, and accepted that of the O'Hara Printing Co., which was $4525.50. This was $784 in excess of the bid submitted by the Wolff Printing Co.

Two Bids by Wolff Concern.

The Wolff concern submitted two bids. The first was rejected on the ground that the quality of paper offered was not in compliance with the specifications previously announced. Later John M. Wolff, president of the company, submitted a new bid, but it was placed before the committee after all the other bids had been announced. The committee refused to consider the second Wolff bid, and awarded the contract to the O'Hara company, which is now preparing the programs.

Miller said last night that, although the records in the corporation department of the Secretary of State at Jefferson City show that he holds five shares of the stock of the Wolff Printing Co., he does not own any stock in the company.

"Wolff and I have been friends for many years," he said, "and I am attorney for the Wolff firm. Under the law a firm applying for articles of incorporation must have at least three incorporators. That is why the records show that Wolff holds 254 of the 260 shares, that I hold five shares and that Harris H. Johnston holds one share, but I do not actually own any of the stock in the companay. The only thing bearing on Connors' dismissal as secretary was that the Wolff bid was lower than the bid accepted."

President Miller added that aside from the fact that the Wolff company's bid was the lowest, Connors had demanded that the Program Committee consider only the bids of concerns that could supply the union label on their work. He said that he did not purpose to see Conners dominate the committee.

To Quit Relief Job.

Connors said yesterday that in accordance with the Police Board's order he will formally resign as secretary of the Relief Association upon completion of an audit of his books.

The secretary of the Relief Association is elected by the executive board, consisting of a patrolman representing each police district, a Sergeant, Lieutenant and Captain. By permission of the Police Commissioners he devotes his entire time to the office, although he is still carried on the Police Department payroll as a patrolman. The Police Board's order directing Connors to walk a beat automatically makes him ineligible to serve as secretary of the association.

MAN PARDONED BY PRESIDENT IN 1919, PUT UNDER ARREST

Charles Howell Taken in Connection With Recovery of Loot in Iuka, Ill., Bank Robbery.

Charles Howell, 58 years old, who was pardoned by President Wilson in 1919 while serving a life sentence at Leavenworth prison for robbing a mail car in the state of Washington in 1909, was arrested last night in connection with the recovery of stolen War Saving Stamps last Tuesday from the office of John T. Murphy and John A. Larisey, lawyers in the Title Guaranty Building. Murphy told the police that the stamps were brought to the office by Howell.

They were part of loot totaling $15,000 taken Dec. 10 in the robbery of the State Bank of Iuka, at Iuka, Ill. Larisey was arrested when he tried to sell a folder containing some of the stamps, and said that Murphy gave them to him to sell. Folders containing $800 worth were found in the office.

Howell, who has been rooming at 6707 Manchester avenue, was arrested in a restaurant near there at midnight. A man companion was also arrested. Howell made no attempt to conceal his identity or his record, but denied any knowledge of the stamps. Federal warrants charging conspiracy to defraud the Government were issued yesterday against Larisey, Murphy, Tony Farasey and Clete E. King.

KANSAS CITY DEMOCRATS NAME F. H. CROMWELL AS TICKET HEAD

Slate for Spring Elections Slides Through Without a Ripple of Opposition.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 11.—The Democratic city slate for the spring election went through the convention late this afternoon without a ripple of opposition.

As expected, Frank H. Cromwell, president of the Cromwell Butter and Egg Co., was nominated the mayoralty candidate. He received 479 votes. His nearest opponent was Judge Edward J. Fleming of the South Side Court, who received 87 votes. The only other name placed in nomination was Ruby D. Garrett, who received 37 votes.

After Cromwell was nominated there was much applause and cheering. The first ward, stronghold of the "goats," placed Cromwell in nomination when Charles Clark, a member of the delegation, said "the first ward casts its 88 votes for Cromwell."

Dennis Carey leaped to his feet, shouting that the 50 delegates from the second ward favored Fleming. The third ward announced for Cromwell, the fourth for Fleming.

When the ninth ward announced all its votes for Cromwell, Miss Violet Thompson, member of the delegation, challenged the vote. Roll call showed 33 votes for Cromwell, 3 votes for Fleming. The 34 votes of the tenth ward went to Garrett. He received 3 other scattering votes fro mthe various delegates.

M. J. Kilroy, an attorney, was nominated by the convention for Judge of the North Side Court, now presided over by John M. Kennedy, Democrat. Edward J. Fleming, "rolled" for Mayor, received the nomination to succeed himself as Judge of the Southside Court. Ben Jaudon was renominated as City Treasurer, and John T. Smith, renominated as City Comptroller.

Shortly after the Democratic convention began its afternoon session the 16 lower house Aldermen and 8 upper house Aldermen were nominated. Eleven of the nominees were new candidates. Five are holdovers. The various ward delegations made the nominations, after which the names were ratified by the convention. The Upper House slate met with no opposition.

The afternoon session started a half hour later than scheduled, due, presumably, to a delayed report by the Platform and Resolutions Committee. The first item of business at the afternoon session was the report of the Credentials Committee, of which Miss Violet Thompson was the chairman. After the report there was a brief band concert.

WASHINGTON U. PROFESSOR AND WIFE INJURED BY AUTO

Prof. and Mrs. E. G. Swift Struck by Machine After It Strikes Car.

Prof. Edward G. Swift, an instructor at Washington University, and his wife, were injured last night when they were struck at Skinker road and the University car tracks by an automobile driven by Arthur E. Williams, 21 years old, of 1426 Devlin street. Prof. Swift's right shoulder was dislocated and his wife's right ankle was sprained. Both were taken to Barnes Hospital. Prof. Swift and his wife were waiting at the crossing to board a City Limits car when Williams' machine struck the rear of the car and turned into the crowd, striking them.

Williams, who was cut about the face and head by glass from a broken windshield, was taken to the city hospital and held a prisoner on a charge of careless driving.

Hoover's Message on Future of Radio

An authorized message from Herbert Hoover, Secretary of the Department of Commerce, to the people of St. Louis and the Mississippi Valley:

"The field of future usefulness of the radio is limitless. Cities will speak together, and city will speak to farm. The growth of radio telephone listeners in our homes from a few thousand a year ago to over three-quarters of a million today promises that a few years hence every farm will have a radio set. Dwellers on distant prairies will hear the music of great orchestras; sermons will be preached to unseen audiences scattered over a vast territory; news will be distributed more quickly and more widely than a generation ago was believed possible. I congratulate the territory served by the Post-Dispatch on the installation of this miracle-working new agency of communication.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

RADIO ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM SENT FROM POST-DISPATCH STATION

comprising Lee, Lemen, Albert Koeppe and R. J. Kratky, followed.

Miss Tillie Campbell of the Morse School of Expression, offered two humorous readings, and several tenor solo numbers were given by James J. Rohan, accompanied by George Devereaux. An excerpt was given from an interview with Emma Goldman, departed anarchist, denouncing the Communist regime in Russia as an autocracy.

Following a Harry Lauder impersonation by Lemen, the weather forecast and time signal were sent at 9 o'clock, and Miss Rankin's address closed the program. She traced the course of woman labor legislation in Congress, and told of present efforts now being made by the National Consumers' League, of which she is field secretary.

Previously, a message was read from J. O. Smith, chairman of the council of organized amateur operators in the New York district, in which the wireless convention in session there sent its greetings through the Post-Dispatch to the amateurs of the St. Louis district.

Early reports received last night by telephone indicated, curiously enough, that the less powerful of local amateur sets had received the program more clearly than the more powerful ones. The waves were so strong that the larger instruments sometimes blurred. It is possible, however, for even this disproportion to be corrected.

After the Post-Dispatch had "signed off," members of the Round Table Club heard a lecture by Prof. Ralph Upson, professor of electrical engineering at Washington University, explaining some of the aspects of wireless telephony, and outlining the prospects.

The broadcasting shudio of the Post-Dispatch will not be open for public inspection until all necessary adjustments have been made, which will be announced later.

Dramatic Critic Seriously Ill.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Louis DeFoe, dramatic critic of the World, is dangerously ill in Hahnemann Hospital, where he was taken last Wednesday morning suffering with a severe cold.

Dr. E. D. Klots, his physician, said tonight that pneumonia had suddenly developed, and only faint hope could be held out for his recovery.

STATE TAX EXEMPTION ON LIFE POLICIES IS FIXED IN DECISIONS

Supreme Court Holds Dividend on Participating Annual Dividend Policies Are Revenue Free.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 11.—The State Supreme Court in banc today held that life insurance companies do not have to pay to the State taxes on dividends allowed to holders of participating annual dividend policies, and which ostensibly are deducted from the annual premiums of those policy holders. It is estimated this will reduce the annual receipts in the State from insurance tax, which is 2 per cent on premiums paid, by $100,000 a year.

The decision, writtten by Judge David E. Blair and concurred in by Chief Justice J. T. Blair and Judges Graves and Elder, was in a suit of the National Life Insurance Co. of Montpelier, Vermont, against Ben C. Hyde, State Superintendent of Insurance, and L. D. Thompson, State Treasurer, to compel them to accept payment of taxes on premiums less dividends. A peremptory writ of mandamus ordering acceptance of the taxes under those conditions was issued. Judges Walker and Woodson dissenting from the decision.

Judge Blair wrote that "under the plevalent rule that taxing statutes must be strictly construed, the State is not entitled to tax premiums received on the basis of premiums contracted for."

The decision will enable this particular ocmpany to save $987 on its taxes, its business for 1921 in this State having consisted of premiums of the face value of $417,325, of which $368,407 was cash and $48,918 was represented by dividends to the policy holders.

LLOYD GEORGE A DICTATOR, SAYS FORMER INDIAN SECRETARY

in India, will not check the revolution, it was said tonight by Sailende N. Ghose, director of the American commission to promote self-government in India.

"Gandhit's place as leader of the Indian nationalist movement has been taken by Abdul Kalam Azan, one of the most prominent Mohammedans of Indian," said Ghose. "He will direct the movement under powers of virtual dictatorship granted to Gandhi and his successor at the meeting of the all-Indian National Congress last December.

"By the terms of that decision, Azan, or if he is arrested, his successor, has power to proclaim a republic, order armed resistance to the British or take any other measures he sees fit.

"It is worth noting, too, that while such leaders have power to declare for active revolution, instead of the passive revolt that has been going on, they are not empowered to make peace. That can be done by the congress alone. Because of that limitation placed upon the powers of the leaders, their arrest cannot intimidate any leader into making peace. As an active factor in the revolutionary movement Gandhi has now passed, but in prison his personality will still have a powerful effect on the people."

$3,000,000 Hotel for Kansas City.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 11.—A $3,000,000 hotel, to be one of the finest between New York and San Francisco, is to be built here, it is announced. Work is to start this summer, according to plans being perfected by E. M. Statler of Buffalo, N. Y., a prominent hotel man who operates establishments in several cities.

FEW ASSETS IN ESTATE OF J. C. VAN BLARCOM

Property of Banker Inventoried at $4,044,501—Some Court Records Missing.

In connection with the search for files missing from the records in the Probate Court concerning the estate of Jacob C. Van Blarcom, it was disclosed yesterday that few assets remain in the estate.

Van Blarcom, who was president of the National Bank of Commerce, died 13 years ago and his estate has remained open pending settlement of litigation in which it is involved. An inventory showed personal property valued at $4,044,501.79, consisting of the following: Notes, $187,173; accounts, $4434.35; cash, $4915.65; bonds and coupons, $45,730; stocks not pledged, $1,786,797.83, and bonds and stocks pledged $2,015,450.

Statement of Lawyer.

Robert E. Moloney, who, with former Judge H. S. Priest, was attorney for Mrs. Van Blarcom, said that the actual value was much less than the par value of the securities. The pledged stocks and bonds were with various banks and were used to cancel the loans for which they had been hypothecated as security, the lawyer said.

Moloney said that other claims arising out of business deals in which Van Blarcom was concerned made the estate virtually insolvent. A greater part of the unpledged stocks, he said, was of doubtful value, commonly known as the "cat and dog" variety. This stock is still in the estate.

The Thompson Trust Co. has a claim against the Van Blarcom estate for $100,000 and the estate has a claim for an accounting against that company growing out of a business deal in which Van Blarcom, H. Clay Pierce and other financiers were interested. If these claims should be adjusted in favor of the Van Blarcom estate it might add at the most $500,000 to the assets, which at present are virtually nothing, it was stated by Moloney.

The only benefit his widow is said to have realized from the property was the commissions, amounting to over $100,000, she received as executrix, in addition to revenue from oil property which was sold at a profit. She also owned the Van Blarcom home at 1 Westmoreland place, which was sold for $100,000.

Will Search for Missing Files.

A. M. Frumberg, one of the attorneys for Frederick Van Blarcom, the banker's son, who was adjudged of sound mind by a jury last week, said that renewed search would be made for the missing files, as they were essential in the event his client should ask for an accounting of his father's affairs. Moloney said that he could supply copies of the originals and also that the court records contained a detailed showing of every transaction.

Walter J. G. Neun, administrator of the estate of Van Blarcom, said he had not seen the original files, but that their absence was of little importance because copies and record entries were made of the originals. He said he understood that the St. Louis Union Trust Co. had in its possession stock and bonds of a value of $35,000 to be turned over to him as administrator. These securities were the individual property of Van Blarcom.

A search for the missing files was begun last April by Probate Clerk George Brand and has been continued at intervals ever since. Brand questioned various lawyers connected with the estate, but they denied having the missing documents.

Wrapper Only Original Paper.

Records of the Probate Court show that the inventory is out on receipts signed by Randolph Laughlin, one of the attorneys for Frederick Van Blarcom, but there are no receipts for other documents. The only paper in court of the original files is the wrapper, Brand said. However, most of the original records, including various settlements, have been copied in the records of the court, it was stated.

The St. Louis Union Trust Co., which is trustee of the $300,000 estate of the banker's widow, the late Mrs. Mary Van Blarcom, recently obtained notations from the various court records for the purpose of filing a settlement in the J. C. Van Blarcom estate. Mrs. Van Blarcom was executrix of her husband's estate, and after her death a year ago it became the duty of the executor of her estate to file a settlement for her in her husband's estate.

INQUIRY INTO RECENT TRIALS OF LABOR LEADERS ORDERED

Chicago Judge Tells Special Grand Jury of "Gross Miscarriage of Justice."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Declaring that some Chicago labor unions are ruled and controlled by professional criminals, Chief Justice Scanlan of the Criminal Court today charged a special grand jury to investigate what he termed "gross miscarriages of justice" in recent trials of labor leaders here.

Judge Scanlan declared that "a vast conspiracy" existed among the labor leaders to place themselves above the law.

The special grand jury was impaneled at the request of Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, who, in a petition to the Judge, declared that there had been wholesale bribery of jurors, perjury by witnesses and subordination of witnesses and jurors in the trials of William Quesse, Simon O'Donnell and Thomas Walsh. Walsh, a labor leader, was found not guilty of one murder, although witnesses testified to seeing him do the killing, and now is on trial for another murder. O'Donnell, former head of the Building Trades Council, and three other labor leaders were indicted for graft.

Reed Does Not Trust Maps but Is Sure Russians Will Attack Isle of Sakhalin

In Debate on Four-Power Treaty, He Accepts Word of Encyclopedia, Even Though It Is British Book.

By CHAS. G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Senator Reed doesn't even trust maps.

Speaking again today of the four-Power pact, Senator Reed made caustic reference to the ignorance displayed by proponents of the treaty regarding the location and character of the island of Sakhalin. He had been looking up this island, he said, and had found that the strip of water separating it from the Siberian mainland was so narrow as to be almost indistinguishable on the map.

"But," said the Senator, "you can't trust maps. They are almost as uncertain as those who come forth with prophecies of the millennium."

Therefore he had looked up the island in the encyclopedias. He had learned that it was indeed very close to the mainland—so close that the freezing of the narrow straits in the winter would permit Russian Cossacks easily to cross over and attack the Japanese on Sakhalin, in the war which he predicted would begin with the rising of Russia from her sick bed.

Oddly enoug, Senator Reed accepted as authentic the information he found in the Encyclopedia Britannica, a volume of which he had with him. The Britannica, as the name implies, is a British work.

Remarks Are Brief.

Reed said in the course of his remarks—which, being brief, could hardly be called a speech in the senatorial sense of that term—that he hadn't any patience with those who were preaching the near arrival of the millenium. He took issue here with Senator Underwood, who, in arguing for the treaty, had developed the idea that it exemplified the substitution of a Christian spirit for force in the dealings of nations one with another.

"We are dealing with a practical world," replied Reed. "The doctrine of Christianity is not a sufficient safeguard when dealing with a nation that does not believe in that doctrine, a nation that has just completed the ravishment of China, that broke faith in Korea and attacked Russia before she declared war. Let these cold facts go out along with the beautiful picture of the dawn of a new day ushered in by this military alliance.

Opponents of the treaty, led by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, persisted throughout the debate in characterizing the proposed compact as a dangerous military alliance. Also, much stress was laid on published reports indicating that the Japanese and British peoples and other Governments were satisfied with the results of the conference. Since they were satisfied, the speakers implied, it was quite evident that something had been "put over" on the gullible American delegates and the American people ought to beware.

Senator Robinson again made much of the recent decoration bestowed on Arthur Balfour. He appeared to assume that Mr. Balfour (now Sir Arthur, as the Senator rarely failed to add) could not have served the British Empire in a manner to warrant his elevation to the Order of the Garter unless he had rendered a corresponding disservice to the United States.

Senatorial Wit.

This acceptance of knighthood by Mr. Balfour—now Sir Arthur—has given a great opportunity for the display of senatorial wit. A keen bit by Senator Norris of Nebraska is typical. "Mr. Balfour accepted the decoration at this time," said the Nebraska solon, "evidently because he needed a new garter." This brought a few snickers from the galleries.

Opponents of the treaty have taken two main lines of attack. One is that the treaty is meaningless and the other is that it is full of deadly concealed meanings.

The fight has made some strange political bedfellows. Senator Robinson, who battled stanchly for the League of Nations, is now shoulder to shoulder with Borah, its most efficent enemy. Senator Reed is again on excellent terms with the so-called Wilson group of Democrats. He was seen in amicable conversation today with Senator Glass, who is supposed to reflect the former President's views more accurately than any other Senator. Glass had just made a few derogatory remarks about the pending treaty, saying he didn't know whteher he would vote on it at all.

The day's debate brought forth a succession of hair-splitting arguments which, had they been heard by former President Wilson, must certainly have confirmed him in his well known opinion of conventional legalistic methods.

Wilson Name Brought In.

The former President's name incidentally, was brought into the debate, giving it another touch of similarity to the League of Nations discussion. Senator Robinson declared that Prince Tokugawa, one of the Japanese delegates to the conference, whom he described as a great Shogun, had shown a skillfulness in changing his viewpoint only excelled by that of the learned intellectual genius, the Senator from Massachusetts.

Senator McCormick interrupted him with a sneer about Wilson and the "He kept us out of war" slogan of 1916.

Robinson flared up at that, and berated McCormick for having, as he said, sought to drag the former President into the discussion by giving inspired interviews to the newspapers. He declared that after both he and McCormick had been buried in oblivion, the memory of Wilson would be cherished by all who loved liberty and justice. No insinuation by the Senator from Illinois, said Robinson, could detract from the fixed place of Wilson in history.

"I leave to the Senator from Illinois," said Robinson. "Any feeling of pride he may derive from that interpellatfon into my remarks."

McCormick did not reply.

The debate left the situation unchanged. It still looks as if the treaty will be ratified, with the Senate brand on it in the form of the reservation proposed by the Foreign Relations Committee, by a narrow margin. But, as has often been said, sometimes in language more picturesque than printable, you never can tell what the Senate will do.

JUNIOR PLAYERS MAKE HIT IN "BRAVE LITTLE TAILOR."

Grimm's Fairy Tale Is Adapted Under Direction of Miss Belle Waddell.

The Junior Players struck a merrier tempo than usual yesterday afternoon in the initial presentation of "The Brave Little Tailor," a play adapted by Miss Belle Waddell from Grimm's fairy tale. The performance was alive with comedy and action, and evoked an animated response from the juvenile audience.

Miss Waddell wisely made free with the original. Taking the story of the tailor who, upon his exploit with a fly swatter, proceeded to emblazon his coat with the motto: "Seven at one stroke," she interwove a pretty love story, and compressed the action into the shortest performance of the series. The play had an uproarious climax in the slaughter of the giants and the capture of the monster, which created pandemonium in the house.

Margaret Clare McGinnis, a bewitching minx of some 8 years, gave an incredibly polished performance in the role of the Princess Deirdre, and Doris Remspecher and Max Williams were excellent, while Weldon Pavitt, making his first appearance, promised larger things. The story is given an Irish setting, the dialect proved troublesome and hence diverting. The piece was directed by Miss Alice Martin. Dawson Dawson-Watson did the scenes.

NEGRO, MINUS AN EAR, IS FOUND

Kidnaped and Taken to Country, Where Member Was Cut Off.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., March 11. — John Smitherman, negro, a former Deputy Sheriff and police officer, who was seized early today by a band of white men, forced into an automobile and taken to the country, was found this evening at Claremore and brought back to Tulsa, authorities announced.

NO TRACE DISCOVERED OF SHOWMAN'S SLAYER

Police Unable to Connect Murder of John T. Brunen With Taylor Killing.

By the Associated Press.

RIVERSIDE, N. J., March 11.—Authorities tonight were still without a direct clew in the death of John Theodore Brunen, circus showman, who was shot and killed last night while reading near a first-floor window of his home.

Baltimore police, it was said, had been requested to locate a man who had been employed there in the Doris & Ferrari Shows, which Brunen owned. According to Col. Harry Mohr, a partner, Brunen and the employe recently engaged in an altercation.

Mrs. Brunen asserted today that she had an idea who was responsible for her husband's death and had told the police. Her information was not made public, but she expressed the opinion that the slayer will be captured shortly.

Widow Recalls Threats.

Police also are attempting to attach a robbery committed at the Brunen home in July, 1920, to the crime. Two men held up Mrs. Brunen and had compelled her to reveal where money and jewels were hidden. She recalled today that one of them said upon his departure that they would come back to "get" Brunen.

The showman was said to have been an intimate friend of William Desmond Taylor, slain motion picture director of Los Angeles, but efforts to link the Taylor mystery with that of Mrunen's death were soon abandoned.

The belief was expressed that Brunen had been shot by a man who had fled in an automobile in which two other men had been seen shortly before the shooting. Two empty shotgun shells were found within 75 feet of the window through which the shot had been fired, although only the prints of one man's shoes from the window to the place where the shells were found were made.

Known as "Honest John."

Brunen was known throughout the country by circus and carnival men as "Honest John" Brunen, due, it is said, to aversion to gamblers and illegal devices attached to his shows. Showmen at Williamstown, where his circus was wintering, asserted that he had a variable temper, being easily angered.

Reports from Mount Carmel, Pa., stated that he shot and killed a man there four years ago during a fight in the midway of his show. However, he was acquitted, the reports said, on a plea of self-defense.

AGUINALDO HOST TO WOOD AT DINNER ON TAGATAY RIDGE

2000 Former Rebels With Man Who Was Their Chief Attend Affair.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, P. I., March 11.—Veterans of the Philippine insurrection, approximately 2000 in number and headed by the leader under whom they fought in that uprising, Gen. Emelio Aguinaldo, gave a dinner in honor of Governor-General Leonard Wood, Major-General William M. Wright, commander of the troops in the Philippines, and several others today on Tagatay Ridge, one of the most famous points in these islands.

From the ridge, which rises about 3000 feet above Cavaite Province, both the Pacific Ocean and the China Sea are visible.

Veterans and guests rode ponies up the narrow pathway to the highest peak of the ridge, the scene of the dinner. The veterans came from all over the three adjoining provinces to attend the function.

HARDING WEARIES OF WAY CONGRESS VIEWS LEADERSHIP

Displeased That He Is Regarded as "Wavering"—Assumes Stand-Pat Attitude.

ALSO SORRY HE STOOD FOR BONUS PRINCIPLE

Main Reason for Florida Trip Was to Give Congress Free Field to Bicker Over Treaties.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1922)

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The showdown in leadership between President Harding and Congress has come.

Hints from St. Augustine correspondents that the President took a trip to Florida at this critical moment in affairs of state for reasons other than a needed rest are confirmed by developments in the national capital itself. The truth of the situation is gradually coming out—he is getting weary of the estimate which certain leaders in Congress are placing upon his leadership.

There is reason to believe that the President isn't at all happy about the persistence of Representative Fordney, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, in pushing to the front proposals that may let Congress out of its dilemma but only put the burden of a distasteful action on the head of the party itself.

Mr. Harding is sorry he committed himself to the principle of a bonus but he means to go through with it just the same. What he cannot understand is why House leaders insist upon trying what appear to him to be impossible schemes for the raising of the money. The President is in favor of the sales tax for many reasons. He believes it will easily collect the money for the bonus and he thinks it may get a trial sufficient to prove to the country that a sales tax would be a good substitute for most all forms of taxation.

Differences With Fordney.

The differences between the President and Fordney are by no means of recent origin. They began with the start of the administration itself. Fordney insisted on pushing the tariff issue to the fore at a time when the executive thought it was wiser to defer action. Similarly embarrassment arose with the revenue bill carefully framed at the executive end of the avenue by Secretary Mellon and his experts. The Treasury made a tax bill that wouldn't mean a deficit. Fordney much against the wish of the President rewrote the bill and waved aside the argument that it provided a deficit by saying the deficit was a negligible one.

Nevertheless President Harding in his address to Congress publicly expressed his disapproval of the revenue law and indicated that he wanted changes at the earliest possible moment. Again and again leaders have come from Congress to talk with the President in the hope that he will help them pull political chestnuts out of the fire, or that he will take a stand which will mean increased instead of decreased taxation. All the statements from the Treasury to the effect that the Government cannot stand a bonus at this time unless the taxpayers want additional levies made upon them through a sales tax have been swept aside as merely argumentative by leaders in Congress. The expectation has been that Congress could go ahead and pass whatever bill it wished and the President would be bound to approve it.

President and House Bill.

When Mr. Harding announced that he wasn't in favor of the present House bill, men on Capitol Hill said: "Oh, he will come around to it, all right—let's go ahead and pass it." This impression of a wavering executive was carried to the President, who was unable to conceal his disappointment that such an idea about him should prevail in Congress. Stirred by these reports, Mr. Harding decided to stand pat and let Congress take full responsibility for what happens next, politically or otherwise.

The same situation exists with reference to the treaties. The President feels that he and Secretary Hughes did the best they could with an acute situation of an acute character. The price of ending the Anglo-Japanese alliance was a four-Power treaty. The President and his advisers think it was good diplomacy to get rid of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and substitute what appears to them a harmless four-Power pact.

The President has been told the treaties are in danger of defeat—he refuses to lobby for the treaties or to try to coerce Congress. If Congress adopts reservations that do not nullify the pact itself, Mr. Harding will accept them. He doesn't want to be around while the bickering is going on if he can help it. The next two weeks will see the fate of the treaties decided and the bonus measure transferred to the Senate.

Mr. Harding will tackle both when he comes back with a feeling that he has a free hand and that his views have not been entangled in the cloakroom arguments of Republican leaders who have been variously interpreting the intentions of the chief executive.

Egyptian Prince and His Prize-Fighting Private Secretary Who Won Job by Knocking Out Predecessor

AT the left at the top is Louie McCloskey, known from Philadelphia to Cairo as "Blink," a two-fisted boxer of great skill, while at the right, in boxing poise, is Prince Mohammed Ali Ibrahim, nephew of the Sultan of Egypt. The Prince is a sporting man and his private secretary of several years has been a boxer. When "Blink" went to Cairo some time ago, he learned of the Prince's hobby and, inquiring if he could have the place by knocking out the secretarial incumbent of his Highness and being informed that the place was always open on this condition, proceeded to demonstrate his boxing superiority over the incumbent, whereupon he was nominated by his Highness as successor to the fallen rival.

The chief duty of the secretary is to teach the manly art to the Prince and keep him in fighting trim. He persuaded the Prince, who has an income of $200,000 a year, to come to America to see some real fighting as well as the greatest country in the world and they arrived in New York during the past week. Below is a closeup of his Highness.

FORD TO MODIFY PLAN FOR REORGANIZATION OF RAILROAD

Decision Leaves Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Line in Situation It Was In at Time of Purchase.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Henry Ford, whose purchase and operation of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad has been followed with considerable interest in the railroad world, has decided to modify his original plan for its corporate reorganization, according to indications given by Interstate Commerce Commission records.

Shortly after purchasing the railroad, the automobile manufacturer organized a new company called the Detroit & Ironton, for which he secured Interstate Commerce Commission permission to issue $1,000,000 in capital stock and to build a new line of railroad in Wayne County, Mich., supplementing the original system. In addition, Ford sought permission to turn the entire properties of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton over to the new corporation under lease, and to have the company guarantee outstanding securities issued of the old railroad.

Certain minority stockholders of the old company, opposed to Ford's reorganization plans, entered objections in the commission's investigation of the matter and the commission recently issued an order stating that "the applicant (Ford) requested that these matters (the granting of the lease) be held in abeyance, and accordingly no action has been taken."

The commission also noted that "it does not appear that the applicant desires to press the mattter to a conclusion at this time, and in order to close the record applications will be dismissed."

The action of the commission consequently leaves the Ford railroad properties exactly in the situation that they were in when Ford acquired them.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION DESIRED

Volunteers Asked for to Aid City Hospital Patient.

Transfusion of blood will be necessary to facilitate the recovery of Ed Brewer, 44 years old, 3914 North Eleventh street, who has been suffering from pneumonia at the city hospital for three months.

An operation was performed to remove pus which gathered in his chest two months ago, which greatly weakened him. Surgeons at the hospital have found it necessary to increase his blood supply, and Dr. Rolla Henry, manager of the hospital, has asked for volunteers for the operation.

MASONIC EDITORIALS ANSWERED BY REED

Senator Says He Did Not Refer to That Order in Remarks About Pelletier Case.

The Missouri Freemason, a State organ of the Masonic order, yesterday printed a letter from Senator Reed, in which he denied that he had referred to the Masonic order in saying that the recent prosecution of District Attorney Pelletier of Boston for malfeasance in office was due to "an organization that belonged to the Dark Ages."

The Senator was quoted as having made such a statement in the course of an address before the Knights of Columbus in St. Louis. Pelletier is a leader in the Knights of Columbus. The Missouri Freemason charged in editorials that Reed referred to the Masonic order, and pointed out that Pelletier's predecessor, who was removed from office, was a Mason, and that two of the Judges who heard Pelletier's case were Roman Catholics. Senator Reed's reply follows:

"I not only did not mean the Masonic fraternity, but I never understood that the Masonic fraternity was engaged in persecuting any man on account of his religion. I did not have the Masons in mind. I have never been a critic of Masons, but have often defended them. Moreover, I thought so well of the Masonic fraternity that some time ago I took the first two ranks of the order, intending, if permitted, to proceed through the various degrees. I became so involved with the labor incident to my profession and my public duties that I simply could not get time to prepare myself for admission.

"Hence, for the time being, I abandoned the work, expecting to renew it when opportunity offered. This is my attitude today. I am writing this letter in an entire spirit of candor and frankness. I recognize the fact that you could have been impelled by no sinister object and by no personal motives."

The first three degrees of the Masonic order must be taken to constitute a master Mason.

Legion Post Favors Beverage Tax.

The Walter Runge Post of the American Legion adopted a resolution Friday night favoring a tax on light wines and beer to raise money for the soldier bonus. The resolution says the manufacturer of wines and beer would provide employment for former soldiers out of work. A copy was sent to the Missouri Senators and Representatives at Washington.

SPENCER GETS FAME AS BEST DRESSED SENATOR

He Is Wonder at Keeping His Trousers Pressed, Says New York Sun.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Senator Selden Palmer Spencer of Missouri is getting fame of at least one sort. The Sun thus features him is a dispatch from Washington:

Thus the wife of a Senator is talking to her husband about clothes:

"I know, John, but somehow or other your clothes don't look right. I know you pay enough for them. They are of fine material, but you don't look dressed up in them. Why don't you ask Mr. Spencer who his tailor is? He always looks right."

The Spencer referred to is Senator Selden Palmer Spencer of Missouri, the sartorial expert of the Senate, the last word in what to wear and when to wear it. He might well appear as a model for any enterprising Fifth avenue merchant tailor. Morning, noon or night, he wears the right thing at the right time and wears it well. Not only that, but he has an air. Jaunty, you might call him, debonair or what not.

Nothing of the burlesque about him, as there was about former Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois. No pink whiskers and red hair. No affectation of knowing that he is well dressed. He just is, thats all. His coal black hair, streaked with silver gray, his general confident carriage, his brisk step and appearance of unconcern make him look more like a Wall street banker than anything else, if the banker is the type that he is supposed to be.

He just has a way of inspiring confidence without being conscious of it. This might explain how in 1918 and 1920 he defeated successively Joseph W. Folk and Breckinridge Long, the two strongest Democrats in his home State of Missouri, with apparent ease for the senatorship. There certainly is some extra legal explanation, for Missouri only now and then has been Republican.

With all this Senator Palmer Spencer is a small "d" Democrat. That is shown by the fact that his town conveyance is the town type of a popular automobile known as a flivver. He even disdains to have a chauffeur. Drives himself wherever he goes. Had an accident once when a street car tried to run through him, but keeps on driving just the same.

Some members of the Senate might find themselves in coventry if they essayed to own flivvers and dispense with the services of high-priced chauffeurs, but not Senator Spencer. He can and does get away with just about anything, because there is no business of concealment about him, no attempting to be what he is not. He thinks a flivver is convenient and economical and he drives it. In the meantime he wears the ultra plus clothes and somehow or other never seems to soil them or spoil the razor edge of the trousers press. He is a wonder in that line.

By profession Senator Spencer is a lawyer. He had not been at the game long when he diverted for a while into medicine and lectured on medical jurisprudence until he got an honorary M. D. degree.

INTERESTING CAREER OF KELLAR, THE MAGICIAN

His Genius Was Shown in Invention of Apparatus Used in Illusions.

Livley anecdotes from the life of Harry Kellar, world-famous magician, and hero to three generations of schoolboys, who died Friday in Los Angeles, at the age of 73 years, were related to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by Howard Thurston, who was formerly associated with Kellar, and whose own show appeared last week at the American Theater. Thurston remarked that some of the chief properties in his show were invented by Kellar, whom he called "the father of American magic."

Numerous stories have been told respecting the picturesque career of Kellar, himself accounted one of the best story tellers living. He had toured virtually every civilized country, and several that were not civilized. He had matched tricks with the Yogi mystics of India, and reported that their heralded powers were mostly buncombe, and their best tricks were childishly crude compared to those of experienced stage magicians.

He was an implacable enemy of spiritualism, and for many years had a standing offer of $5000 to any spiritualist medium who would materialize any phenomenon that he could not reproduce within 24 hours by natural means. The money was never won.

Showed Genius in Invention.

The more mystifying effects of magicians are usually obtained by means of elaborate mechanical apparatus, and it was in the invention of these that Kellar showed his genius. Among those for which he is best remembered was the levitation act, by which a girl was made to appear to rise from a couch and remain suspended in space while the magician apparently passed hoops around her body to demonstrate that no wires were used. Thurston still uses the apparatus, which he purchased 16 years ago from Kellar, when the latter retired, albeit, he said, it had been improved.

Kellar had a scene which he called the "Blue Room," in which he performed some astonishing feats of illusion. In one of these, he would sit in a chair in the center of the stage, and remark "And this is how I will look 100 years from now!" As he waved his arms, the outline of his form would fade, and the audience would see the chair occupied, seemingly, by a gesticulating skeleton. The skull would leap into the air, bob about, then return to its place, and in a few seconds the smiling, Mephistophelian countenance of Kellar would materialize.

His career as a conjurer began early. At the age of 9, when living in Erie, Pa., the place of his birth, he obtained a job as errand boy in a drug store. In the absence of the proprietor, he experimented with various combinations of chemicals behind the prescription counter. The ultimate outcome of this research was an explosion which resulted in the burning of the store. The youth was loath to face his "Pennsylvania Dutch" father, and departed forthwith for Buffalo, N. Y., carrying the weight of a guilty conscience and a full 10 years.

Joined a Magician's Show.

After selling papers for some time he answered an advertisement in a newspaper by a magician who went under the title of "The Fakir of Avon," and who wanted a boy assistant. Kellar remained with this show 10 years, and there he gained the groundwork for his future role.

Later he joined the Davenport Bros. show, with which he started on a trip around the world. Leaving Australia, the ship was wrecked, and the show properties were a total loss. Kellar finally arrived at New York, by way of London, "broke." He had heard that he elder J. Pierpont Morgan was interested in magic. He visited Morgan, whom he had never met, laid his case before the financier, and obtained an unsecured loan of $5000, with which he established a show of his own.

He became a competitor of "Hermann the Great," and the struggle between them was spectacular. They took turns following each other on tour, each exposing the other's tricks, which tickled the showgoing public greatly, but was ruinous to the magicians themselves, for one, by explaining the mechanics of an illusion employed by the other, could render a valuable piece of apparatus totally worthless. The rivalry ended in 1896, with Hermann's death.

Thurston With Him a Year.

For many years thereafter, Kellar was without serious competition. His tours took in South America, Australia, India, Japan, Egypt and the European countries. He joined, about 17 years ago, with Thurston, a much younger man, and for a year they were associated. Thurston related that, upon their appearance in St. Louis, a local newspaper critic pronounced Thurston a better magician. At lunch that day, Thurston attempted to introduce a prominent citizen to Kellar. "No!" shouted Kellar. "I don't want to meet any of your friends. Get out!" Later, to atone, he purchased his colleague a fine gold watch.

Kellar was a gourmet. Once, when dining at the Hotel Astor, in New York, he ordered a baked potato. The one he received was unsatisfactory, and he sent it back. The second was worse. Plunging his fork into it, he brandished it over his head, and shouting: "What! Do you call this a potato?" he pursued the frightened waiter across the dining room.

He retired with a fortune of $400,000, but could not divert his mind from magic, and spent most of his time experimenting with new illusions. He had just completed a very elaborate one for a gift to Thurston, the latter said.

RATE LEVEL INQUIRY TO CLOSE TOMORROW

Oratory Before Commission Overran Limits, Causing Wind-up Postponement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Oratory expected to wind up the Interstate Commerce Commission's investigation into general rate levels, overran limits set for it today, and the closing of the proceedings was postponed until Monday. Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the Railway Executives' Association, will make final argument then.

Glenn L. Plumb, spokesman for railroad labor unions, joined the shippers' representatives in urging lower rates. He insisted the lower rates could come without lower wages through reduced operating costs and from the power which he contended the commission had to revise the valuations it has found for railroad property.

Arguments for Lower Rates.

I. W. Prickett of the Utah Railroad Commission, speaking on rates assessed against ores, bullion and grain and flour products, and former Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, discussing the charges on watermelons, advanced the argument that lower freights would increase traffic.

W. S. Bronson, opening rebuttal for the Eastern carriers, atftacked principally the arguments made for decrease in coal freights. Lower coal freights, he contended, would have only an infinitesimal effect in cutting prices of manufactured commodities, and could not be expected to increase rail traffic or improve business.

In Better Shape Than Carriers.

Not a single manufacturer testifying before the commission, he said, had promised to reduce the price of his product if given lower freight rates. A 10 per cent reduction in coal freights would only reduce production costs of steel and iron 64-100 of 1 per cent, he estimated, and while manufacturing industries might be slightly benefited, the great prosperity they enjoyed from 1914 to 1920, left them "much better able to stand temporary adversity than the carriers."

HONORS FOR NEGRO COLONEL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Memorial services will be held tomorrow by negroes throughout the United States to commemorate the birthday of Col. Charles Young, who recently died in Lagos, Nigeria, on the west coast of Africa. Col. Young would have been 57 next Sunday. He was one of the three negro graduates of West Point Academy, being a cadet at the same time with Gen. Pershing. At the time of his death Col. Young was United States military attache to Liberia.

He served in the Spanish-American war, was at one time military attache in Haiti, saw service in the Philippines and led the Tenth Cavalry, U. S. A., into Mexico during the "punitive expedition."

Although retired by the Government before the World War, when the war began Col. Young immediately offered his services and rode on horseback from Wilberforce, O., to Washington to prove his physical fitness. He was assigned to Camp Grant, Illinois.

Tributes signed by President Harding, Gen. Pershing and other high officers of the army will be read at the memorial service here.

FRISCO DOUBLE TRACKING AND GRADING COMMENCES APRIL 1

Revision Work Costing About $2,000,000 Announced by President Kurn.

Double tracking and grade revision work, costing $2,000,000, will be begun on April 1 by the St. Louis & San Francisco railroad, President Kurn announced yesterday.

The work contracted for includes double tracking for five miles from Windsor Springs to Valley Park, at a cost of approximately $750,000; double tracking between Paola and Spring Hill, Kan., a distance of 13 miles, at a cost of $745,000; new double track from Swedeborg to St. John, Mo., 3½ miles; the reduction of the present grade at Crocker, Mo.; reduction of grades and elimination of the Meramec Highlands tunnel, "fill-ins" and cuts and the cutting down of the grade at Garnsey, Mo.

These grade reductions will permit the eastbound trains to carry 500 tons more load than at present and will also do away with all delays at meeting points of trains. It will greatly assist in expediting the movement of traffic between the Southwest, Kansas City and St. Louis.

The 'Frisco will, when this work is completed, have a complete double track from Kansas City to Paola, a distance of 43 miles. The ultimate plan is a double track across the entire State of Missouri.

67 PNEUMONIA DEATHS IN WEEK

Births reported last week totaled 306 and deaths 300. Pneumonia caused 67 deaths, heart disease 45, Bright's disease 39, cancer 18, tuberculosis and apoplexy 14 each, and influenza 16. The influenza total is high for St. Louis since the epidemic of 1918, but this is said by health officials to be not alarming, because all cases in which the disease is even a contributing cause are listed as influenza deaths.

The number of new influenza cases for the week, 43, is not high. Accidental deaths totaled six, and there were four homicides and one suicide.

FOUR MEN HELD AFTER SEIZURE OF GOODS

Police State That Men Arrested Admit Shipment Is Stolen Property.

A shipping case arrived at the Cotton Belt freight house, Main street and Cass avenue, yesterday afternoon, bearing, as the name of the shipper, "John Smith, 4212 South Broadway."

A sharp-witted receiving clerk recognized 4212 South Broadway as the number of the city workhouse. He notifed the police, who now have in custody Morris Weinberg, years old, who sells men's and women's clothing at 3022 Easton avenue under a promise of "a little better for a little less;" his son, Louis, Louis Roster, 53, of 717 South Boyle avenue, an employe of the Missouri Pacific railroad on its bound platform at Broadway and Chouteau avenue, and Hyman Clark, a merchant of Galveston, Tex.

Police Get Explanation.

The younger Weinberg told the police, his father corroborating him, that the case and another delivered to the platform after the arrival of the police, contained what they were told was "hot stuff" stolen goods purchased from Roster, with whom they had had similar transactions over a period of nearly two years. Roster declined to comment on the charges.

The Weinbergs also named another man whom they said had bought other "hot stuff" after an introducetion by Roster.

One of the cases, which were taken to the freight house by the younger Weinberg contained 30 men's suits from which he said he had removed all tags which would indicate their origin; several boys' suits, three automobile tires, a quantity of shirts and two automobile batteries. The Weinbergs said that they had sold this lot to Clark for $261.

The second case contained a cash register, six automobile tires, 40 inner tubes, 75 boys' suits and two dozen overalls, which the Weinbergs said they sold for $167.

The younger Weinberg said that within the last two weeks he had bought 30 men's suits from Roster for $75, 75 boys' suits at $1.50 a suit and six dozen shirts at 25 cents each.

Bargains in Accessories.

He said that he had bought from the man introduced by Roster nine automobile casings at $5 each, 40 inner tubes at 25 cents each, two automobile batteries at $3 each, and a cash register for $25.

Clark told the police, who found him at Hotel Statler, that he did not know the goods were stolen. He was confronted with the elder Weinberg.

"I told you tnose goods were 'hot stuff,'" Weinberg said. "That was why they was so cheap."

"You don't call $400 cheap, do you?" Clark retorted.

"For goods worth $1000, yes," Weinberg declared.

Alexander Zellinger, 43, a shoe merchant at 718 North Ninth street, was in Clark's company at the hotel. Weinberg had named him as the man who brought Clark to his store. Zellinger denied knowledge of the transaction, but was held also.

The elder eWinberg said that in 1916 he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on a charge of having received furs stolen from Stix, Baer & Fuller. He said he was paroled by Gov. Major at the end of one year.

When the fact that the cases bore the workhouse address was brought to his attention, the younger Weinberg said: "I just put down an address that slipped into my mind."

ALTON MAN TELLS OF SCENE WHEN POPE WAS ELECTED

David Sparks Was in Throng in Piazza of St. Peter's When White Smoke Was Sighted.

EVERYBODY PATIENT DESPITE COLD RAIN

Rich and Poor of Rome to the Number of Hundred Thousand, Greeted New Pontiff With Applause.

Richard Sparks, president of the Sparks Milling Co. of Alton, has just received from his brother, David, the following account of how the vast throng in the Piazza of St. Peter's, Rome, greeted the election of Cardinal Ratti as Pope. Mr. Sparks, who is a veteran of the World War and has been traveling recently in Europe, arrived in Rome on the morning of the election, and hastened to the Vatican to observe the crowds there, little dreaming at the time that he was about to witness such an historic scene:

By David Sparks.

I arrived in Rome on Sunday night, and on Monday morning, before reading a newspaper, set out to Saint Peter's. That the conclave to elect a Pope was in session I had not forgotten, but in traveling I had known other interests; and had besides not believed this meeting to be an event which would affect anyone in Rome except the Cardinals of the church. So much for the average American's point of view on an event which, from another point of view, is of deep, of almost overwhelming importance.

When I found the vast ellipse-shaped piazza, or square, before Saint Peter's, filled with people, I believed surely that a Pope had been elected. What other happening could bring so many people together? This piazza of which I speak is so wide that when a man stands on one side of it he appears to be an observer on the other as a very small object. So that I think—for, as I have said, the piazza was full—there must have been gathered there under a cold rain a hundred thousand people.

I stopped at the edge of the crowd. Most of its members were good, middle-class Italian people—a handsome, neatly dressed, pleasing type. In lesser numbers I observed people of the very rich classes, and of the very poor; and a considerable sprinkling of foreigners whose company must have represented most of the nations of the world. About half the number of people there carried umbrellas. The whole effect was that of black mushrooms springing up numerously among thick set blades of grass.

The Silence Was Impressive.

Silence reigned for the most part, a silence by which I was impressed. It was not, I felt instinctively, the awed silence of men and women waiting for a new Pope to bless; or a silence born of standing wearily in the rain. I can only say that the assembly was silent through some spiritual force.

I worked my way a little toward the front of the church until I came upon a group of young men—evidently members of the American College—dresesd in clerical garments and speaking English.

"Can you tell me who has been made Pope?" I asked of one of the group, a sandy-haired, blue-eyed American with mobile lips which uncovered his teeth pleasingly when he spoke.

"The Pope isn't elected," the man replied, with something, I thought of a smile of understanding.

"But why are all these people here?"

"They always come. They are watching the result of the voting. See the little chimney over there above the chapel? After each ballot is taken the slips are burned in a furnace specially constructed to throw heavy smoke from the chimney. When there is no result, the smoke is black. But when the Pope is elected, a signal of light smoke comes."

"But," I objected, "it is not an exciting way to spend a rainy morning. Surely all these people"——

"They wait here," he cut in with a faintly audible note of impatience in his voice, "not because of excitement, or because of special interest in the result of the election, but because they love the Pope."

"They do not much care, then, who is elected?"

"Exactly. They love not the man, but the Pope, and wait here because of their love."

Then the White Smoke Arose.

"I will stay," I said, "to see the smoke from a ballot."

"As you like," he answered quietly, already composing himself to continued waiting.

Ten minutes—slow minutes, I thought—passed before a wave of movement undulated across the crowd, a vibration as though each man and woman, tensing, had leaned forward a little. From the slender chimney which rises above the Sistine Chapel issued a puff of smoke. The wind carried it away. A denser cloud, light in color, drifted upward, and the people watched it, at first anxiously, and then, I saw, ecstatically. A long second elapsed, however, before they gave sign of what had come to them.

"Bianco! Bianco!" (White! White!) cried someone, the exclamation of the single voice shrilling against silence before it died, drowned in a long restrained roar of cheering.

I turned to the American with whom I had spoken. His gaze was concentrated on the fast disappearing smoke as he took a single step forward. The face of a young woman on my left brightened in a smile, gentle, strangely peaceful. The cheering lulled, but now the first premonitory movement which had undulated across the crowd came again, vigorously, and carried the people up the steps, close to the church.

Greatly worthy of remark it is that at neither the moment in which the election was announced, nor later, did that vast assembly, through any sound or action, relinquish its dignity. Cheering there had been, and later, at various times during the ceremony of the public blessing, came storms of cheering and applause. All this, however, was restrained and infinitely respectful. Even the forward surge of the mass toward the church, though swift, was in some way gentle.

How New Pope Was Received.

After 20 more minutes of waiting, two swinging doors high up in the facade of the church opened, and in the balcony to which they gave exit from the church appeared half a dozen men. Swiftly two attendants carried forward a rolled-up banner which they poised on the rail of the balcony and allowed to drop, fold upon fold. During a restless moment men moved to and fro across the balcony. Below them, among the people pressing against the church and spreading back across the piazza, sounded the hum of conversation and some sporadic applause. Then after a warning hiss from many lips, came the silence, almost, of eternity.

Framed in the darkness behind the high up, open doors, I saw a golden cross. All about me, men removed their hats. The crucifix, borne by a Cardinal, moved forward out of the darkness into the light. Bareheaded, garbed in the purple robe of mourning, another Cardinal approached the edge of the balcony, and raised his hands in greeting, then, slightly turning his head that he might read from the book supported by a Cardinal on his left hand, he gave the message of the Pope.

Applause Greeted Ratti's Name.

The reading lasted but a moment. Of it I recognized the words "Ratti" and "Pio," the utterances of which brought enthusiastic recognition from the people. The last of the message died to the sound of more applause. Stirring then, the people would have swept down, in their third great movement, upon the doors of St. Peter's, save that the Cardinal who had given the message smiled, and raised his arms in a slow gesture which read, "Back! Back!"

This I feel to have been the most impressive moment of the morning. I doubt that any message since that given at Gettysburg has been more grandly received. For the cheer which welcomed it followed not until after it had been in a far deeper sense welcomed by the tribute of silence.

And so, the Pope, preceded as had been his emissary, by the golden cross shining in the darkness of the church, came out to his people and blessed them as, bareheaded, without kneeling, they stood in the square, and turned back, leaving on the faces of those who loved him and had waited, the look which lives in the faces of children who are loved.

Senate Passes Civil Service Bill.

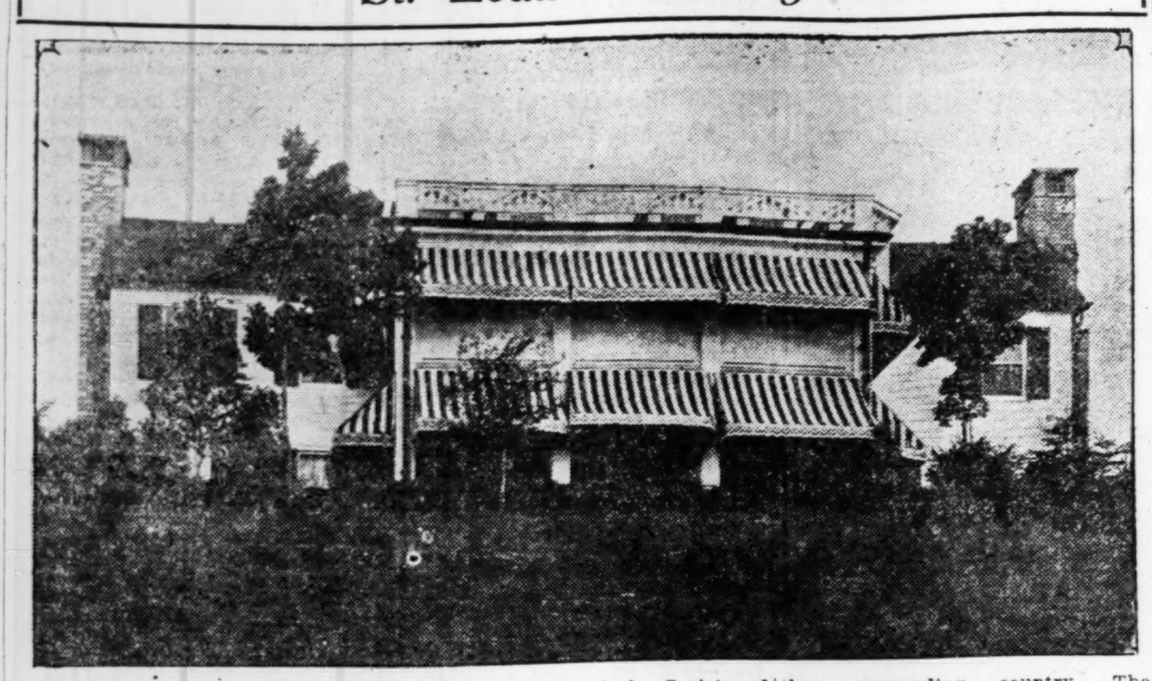
WASHINGTON, March 11.—The Senate today passed and sent to the House the bill of Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, extending civil service retirement privileges to Government employes appointed by executive order. The bill is designed to meet conditions resulting from Attorney-General Daugherty's ruling that only employes appointed under competitive examinations are eligible to retirement benefits.

"White House" in County Bought by St. Louis University as "Retreat"



THE 75-acre tract in St. Louis County six miles south of Jefferson Barracks, long known as the Christopher country estate, has become the property of St. Louis University, and will be used by the Jesuit Fathers as a social study center for the members of the Laymen's Retreat League, an organization of Catholic men conducted under the direction of the Society of Jesus.

The Christopher estate is one of the most highly improved tracts in that section of the county penetrated by the Telegraph road, and its main building, long known as the "White House," is one of the show places of that neighborhood, standing, as it does, on an eminence high above the Mississippi River, and commanding a magnificent view of the stream and the surrounding country. The grounds are improved with orchards, sunken gardens, ample outbuildings, water and electric plants, and other conveniences that go to make the modern country estate.

The negotiation for the property was conducted by the authorities of the university direct with the former owners of the tract, now residents of New York City. The price is said to be in the neighborhood of $45,000.

CITY AUTO ORDINANCE IS SUSTAINED BY COURT

Ruling Forbidding Automobiles to Pass Stopped Street Cars Upheld.

A city ordinance forbidding automobiles to pass a street car which has stopped to take on or discharge passengers, was upheld yesterday by Judge Hochdoerfer in the Court of Criminal Correction, in passing on the appeal of Frank O. Saunders, 207 Chemical Building, who was fined $10 and costs in Police Court, Jan. 10.

Judge Hochdoerfer, however, dismissed the case on payment of costs, stating that the evidence showed that Saunders did not intentionally violate the law, but was acting under a misunderstanding.

Saunders' defense was that the city ordinance was rendered void by the new Missouri motor vehicle law, which permits an automobile driven at slow speed to pass a stopped street car if there is a clearance of eight feet.

Judge Hochdoerfer ruled that section 24 of the State laws give municipalities power to formulate additional traffic rules. Roy Britton, counsel for the Automobile Club of St. Louis, stated that the Legislative Committee of the St. Louis Safety Council is at work on a revision of the city motor vehicle ordinances in an effort to make them conform to the State laws.

The first gold star certificate offered by the committee will go to Elizabeth Gambrill, 14 years old, 5642 Cabanne avenue, a student of Mary Institute, who yesterday turned over $42 she had collected. Those collecting under $20 will receive a silver star certificate and over that amount a gold star certificate.

Give the Kids a Chance

Can the children play on the floor in your flat without freezing the Spanking Spot? If not, then the heating boiler in that building is a loafer. It isn't making enough heat to kill the drafts. Ergo, it can't be a Kewanee.

Of course, Pop, you don't care to play on the floor, but it is the inherited right of every American kid. And all the new Series "B" of American restrictive laws can't stop him. Nor will what the doctor says stop him. So it's up to you, Pop, to make it easy for the boy.

How? Why by LOOKING IN THE BASEMENT FIRST—before you rent your flat. Find the Kewanee Boiler and thus prepare in advance for your heat happiness in the Winter time. Think of your wives and children first. Of course it's unusual, but it's a grand thing to be original.

Builders of flats and other buildings are advised that Kewanee Boilers establish the renting and selling value. They are all-steel boilers not subject to the fluctuations of the weather market.

Write to The Old Man Behind the Boiler and he will take you deeply into his confidence—and furnish proof that it is "as wide as a church door and as deep as a well."

FOUR INDICTMENTS IN STATE EXPENSE PADDING INQUIRY

One Employe of Beverage Department and Representative E. G. Davidson Said to Be Persons Named.

HACKMANN CASE REVIEWED IN REPORT

Four Jurors Make Supplemental Statement as to State Auditor's Typing Fees Exacted From Counties.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 11.—four indictments against alleged participants in expense account padding in the State Beverage Inspection Department, and a report dealing with its investigation of the charges of official irregularities in the office of State Auditor Hackmann were filed with Judge Slate in the Circuit Court of Cole County here today by the regular March grand jury, whose members then were excused by the Judge with the statement that they probably would not be recalled.

It is reported on reliable authority that Luther G. Wilson of Jefferson City, a deputy inspector in the Beverage Department, and Representative Edward G. Davidson of St. Louis are the persons indicted by the grand jury, the charges and specific nature of the indictments being inaccessible for the present. It is known, however, that Attorney-General Barrett has telegraphed to Charles G. Revelle of St. Louis, former Supreme Judge and attorney for Davidson, to produce his client here, which was generally interpreted to mean indictment of the Representative.

Davidson Already Indicted.

Davidson already was under indictment in St. Louis on two charges of third degree forgery growing out of supposed padding of the expense accounts of two Deputy Beverage Inspectors in St. Louis, placed on the payroll of that department at his instance and whose accounts were said by them to have passed through his hands.

As to Hackmann, the 12 grand jurors related in their report that they had found "that while many of his employes contributed from their salaries, all of these employes stated that the payments were made by them voluntarily and under no compulsion and in each instance intended for campaign purposes." They reported further that the Auditor had made occasional trips to the cities to register bonds about to be marketed by brokers and "received for those trips payments to cover his expenses, but it was not developed that on these trips the expenses were also charged against the State, and the receiving of the sums from the bond houses is not in itself deemed a violation of the criminal law."

Hackmann had exacted payment from counties whose accounts had been audited by his examiners, for stenographic work incident to these audits, the grand jurors wrote, some of this money having been paid out for extra stenographic work done on the audits. "What became of the balance after it reached the Auditor's hands, that was not paid out for work on the audits, the grand jury was unable to ascertain from the testimony available," the report said.

Hackmann had told reporters for the Post-Dispatch that of the $1129 he had received on typing charges from 12 counties whose accounts had been audited and which cases were under consideration, part been paid to stenographers in his office as extra compensation for extra work on the audits, part to extra stenographers employed on that work and the remainder, more than half, as part salary to a negro janitor in his office.

Some Jurors Not Satisfied.

Four members of the grand jury, stating that they were not completely satisfied with the principal report, which they had signed, however, went a step further in a supplemental report in which they declared "that any sums that the State Auditor has collected in addition to money actually paid out to stenographers and examiners for the work of typing audits, he collected without any authority whatever."

In its discussion of charges of falsified expense accounts in the Beverage Department, the principal report of the grand jury stated that "it was apparent that in numerous instances the State had paid for hotel rooms where the names of the parties were not shown upon the hotel registers," but observed that the offenses, if any, in nearly all instances were outlawed by the statute of limitations. It declared that where "the fraudulent items were of recent date it was impossible to determine" who had profited from the padding.

The investigation of the Auditor's office and the Beverage Inspection Department by the grand jury grew out of preliminary inquiries made by Attorney-General Barrett on instructions from Gov. Hyde. Barrett himself instituted a survey of the Beverage Department last November, laying the matter before the Governor and receiving instructions from Hyde to proceed. Hyde conducted the first inquiry into Hackmann's official acts through L. F. Dehart of Cameron, formerly one of Hackmann's examiners and now a field agent of the State Marketing Bureau. The facts disclosed by this investigation were exclusively published in the Post-Dispatch Sunday, Feb. 4.

No Statement by Hackmann.

Hackmann at that time termed the whole matter the result of a "political plot" against him and declared that he invited the fullest inquiry. State Senator Irwin of Jefferson City, Hackmann's attorney, said today that he did not care to make any statement for his client, on the result of the inquiry.

The grand jury whose report was filed today and convened last Monday afternoon by Judge Slate and spent about three days in the examination of a large number of Hackmann's employes and former employes, as well as T. S. Mosby, State Beverage Inspector, and a number of his office employes, besides several others. These included Fred M. Tate, investigator to the Attorney-General.

Opinion at State Capital.

Public opinion in Jefferson City is not very responsive toward investigations of charges of official misconduct, and throughout this grand jury inquiry as in similar instances previously, the general opinion expressed on the streets and in gathering places was that "there won't much come of it." Guilt or innocence of any person involved in this inquiry appeared not to be uppermost in the public consciousness, nonchalant observations about "politics" often accompanying discussions of the case.

Judge Slate in his charge to the grand jury declared that "I am informed and it is presumed that you are advised also that some of the matters and things to be presented to you smack largely of politics." The Judge also went on, however, to add that "whatever there might be of this should in no wise concern you nor be taken into consideration, and I know it will not be."

Judge Slate later on in his charge reviewed the history of two previous official investigations here, saying: "The experience this county has had in recent years has not been too closely akin to success in the regulation of affairs and things in and around the State Capitol. In my recollection two supreme efforts along this line have been made in the last Eighteen years for alleged misconduct in office. These investigations cost the taxpayers of Cole County $26,000 besides what it cost the State in the payment of fee bills and the result of it all has been the conviction of one man whose punishment was assessed at a fine of $100. However, you will be governed by the evidence before you."

Attitude of Hackmann.

Hackmann made one direct effort to appear before the grand jury and another maneuver which Barrett interpreted in a public statement as an indirect effort to achieve the same result. He did not suceed in either instance, however. The Auditor had declared that he would raise no objection to any indictment that might be returned against him because of his having appeared before it, as the matter he desired to present had no connection with his own case.

Tuesday the Auditor compelled Barrett to bring his investigator, Fred M. Tate, for 20 years a Government secret service agent, to Hackmann's office, ostensibly for an inquiry to determine whether Barrett had a right to charge the investigator's salary and expenses to his appropriation for the enforcement of prohibition. Principal interest attached to that inquiry came out of repartee between aBrrett and Hackmann's attorney and between the latter and Tate, whose testimony was taken.

Further Testimony Rejected.

A St. Louis newspaper Friday printed a statement attributed to Hackmann, who denied having made it, but supposed to have been made while Hackmann was in St. Louis Thursday night, to the effect that the Auditor had received a message from Jefferson City telling him that the grand jurors had refused to indict him.

Barrett today, before the grand jury had reported, offered to present witnesses with regard to the suspected "leak," and also offered to present the testimony of Otto Lanfersieck, chief examiner in the Auditor's office, which previously had not been available, but the grand jury took neither testimony. Lanfersieck had gone to a hospital for treatment the day the grand jury convened and was not about the streets until Friday.

Davidson to oG to Jefferson City Accompanied by a Bondsman.

Edward G. Davidson of 2007 Easton avenue, Representative in the State Legislature from the Fourth District, said last night that it was his understanding that he was one of those indicted by the Cole County grand jury at Jefferson City yesterday. He said he supposed the charge was the same as that for which he was indicted in St. Louis Dec. 14 last—forgery in the third degree, a charge covering alteration of the contents of a document which already had been signed, but not covering the forgery of a signature.

The St. Louis indictment grew out of the investigation resulting from the Attorney General's disclosure that Deputy State Beverage Inspectors had made affidavits charging that expense accounts submitted by them had been altered and cashed for larger amounts than the expense they had actually incurred.

Davidson said he planned to go to Jefferson City tomorrow to give himself up, if he is wanted. He said he would take a bondsman with him to obtain early release in the event he is arrested immediately upon arrival. His attorney, Charles G. Revelle, is in Southeast Missouri trying a murder case, he added. Davidson said he had no doubt he would be acquitted of the charge, because he is not guilty. He is chairman of the House Committee on Life and Accident Insurance.

THEORY THAT ATOMS CANNOT BE BROKEN BY MAN, BLASTED

Experiments of Two Men at University of Chicago Said to Prove Alchemists Right in That Nature of Metals Can Be Changed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Transmutation of metals, sought throughout the ages, finally has been accomplished, it was announced in a paper read today at a meeting of the Middle Western sections of the American Chemical Society, at Northwestern University.

Tungsten, which is used in the filaments of electric light bulbs, has been definitely and permanently changed into another element, helium, through treatment in temperature of between 50,000 and 60,000 degrees, it was declared in a report on experiments conducted by Dr. Gerald L. Wendt and C. E. Irion, working at the University of Chicago.

"It means that the alchemists, who tried to turn the baser metals into gold, were right on one point—that the nature of metals could be changed," said Paul N. Beech of the Chicago section of the chemical society, in commenting on the paper. "But, of course, it has nothing to do with the assertions of scalawags that the baser metals can transmuted into synthetic gold.

Age-Old Theory Blasted.

"It does, however, actually blast the theory that the atoms of elements, supposed to be absolutely indestructible, cannot be broken up by men. It opens a vast new field to science and may result in many far-reaching and important scientific developments. We cannot yet foresee what these developments may be, of course. Up until 1895 it was believed that no decomposition of elements was possible. At that time, however, it was found that radium, which is one of the about 90 known elements, naturally decomposes into lead. Nature, however, performs that change, and until Dr. Wendt and Irion completed their experiments, man had never been able to produce a similar result.

"The heat developed to break down the tungsten atoms and change them into helium is the greatest ever known. The heat of molten steel is about 2000 degrees; the temperature of the sun is about 9000 degrees and that of some of the hottest stars is about 30,000 degrees.

"But these scientists have, by means of artificial lightning, such as Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz recently produced, have developed the hottest known spot in the universe.

Star Condition Reproduced.

"Astronomers long have known that while in general the materials which compose the sun and stars are the same as those known on earth, the list of substances and chemical elements becomes shorter and shorter when the hotter stars are examined.

"On the brilliant white or blueish stars, which are masses of gas at about 30,000 degrees, only the simplest elements are present. They seem to consist entirely of the gasses, hydrogen and helium. The heavier metals, such as iron, are not present.

"To determine whether this was due to decomposition by the great heat, Wendt and Iron reproduced conditions such as are believed to exist on the stars and actually succeeded in reaching a temperature twice as high as that of the hottest star and found that ordinary metals are decomposed into the simple gases, particularly helium.

"The method used was the same as that used in producing artificial lightning, recently announced by Dr. Steinmetz of Schenectady, and was originated by Dr. J. Anderson of the Mt. Wilson Solar Observatory at Pasadena, Cal.

Method of Experiment.

"It consists in charging a large electrical condenser to 100,000 volts and discharging this large quantity of electricity at high speed through an extremely fine metallic wire. The wire explodes with a deafening report, as if struck by lightning—which in a minor way it is. The flash is about 200 times as bright as direct sunlight, but it lasts less than a hundred-thousandth of a second. The pressure developed is about 1000 pounds a square inch and the temperature is momentarily more than 50,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Under such conditions the atoms which compose the wire decompose into simpler ones and the result is the change of metallic tungsten into gaseous helium.

"One of the first laws of chemistry has been that the so-called elements are permanent and unchangeable. The failure of the alchemists, after centuries of effort, to change such common metals as copper and iron into gold convinced chemists that the metals couldn't be decomposed.

"Great advances, as the result of the work of Wendt and Irion, in discoveries on the nature of the matter that composes the universe are confidently predicted."

Dr. Wendt was born at Davenport, Ia., in 1891, and was educated at Harvard and in Paris. He was for a time engaged by the United States Bureau of Mines to work on radium production in Colorado. He was a Captain in the chemical warfare service and since the war has been associate professor of chemistry at the University of Chicago.

GOVERNMENT MAKING EFFORTS TO GET GOLD FROM AIR

It Is Believed Much of Precious Metal Can Be Saved by Refining Mint Exhausts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Getting gold out of the air is being attempted by the Government at the New York assay office, according to a statement tonight by Director of the Mint Baker. Tests of a new process are being carried on there, he declared, by which the air smoke and dust which escapes from the molten gold carries off minute particles of the precious metal can be refined so that none of the gold is lost.

Good progress is being made in the tests, he declared, and it is believed a considerable saving to the Government will result from the new process, while extension of the method to commercial plants should make possible the utilization of all gold employed in minting.

The tests being made in New York should be completed next week, Baker said, when it will be possible to demounstrate the actual amount of gold that can be extracted from the atmosphere of the assaying plant.

DECLARES BONUS BILL IS NOT UNDERSTOOD

Congressman Green of Iowa Refers to Provisions Affording Loans to Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Provisions of the compromise soldier bonus bill, relating to bank loans to former service men, have been "either misunderstood or misrepresented in some quarters." Representative Green of Iowa, who is ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee and who helped revise the measure, declared today in a statement.

While the Iowa member made no direct comment on the announced intention of Comptroller Crissinger to advise banks not to accept adjusted compensation certificates as security for loans, it was generally regarded that the statement was a reply to the opinion of the bill's provisions as expressed by Crissinger.

Report Set for Monday.

Coincident with Green's declaration, Republican leaders in the House declared that, despite rumors reaching the Capitol that President Harding was opposed to the present draft of the bonus bill, there has been no change in plans which call for a report of the measure on Monday by the Ways and Means Committee and passage of the bill by the House a week later. Reports as to the President's attitude toward the bill will not shake the determination of those in charge of the legislation to proceed with their program without alteration.

Representative Mondell, Republican leader; Chairman Fordney and other members of the Ways and Means Committee, said that to their knowledge the President had given no indication, directly or indirectly, to any member of Congress that he would veto the bill if it were passed without a sales tax provision.

Provision for the Needy.

Representative Green in his statement said:

"When the Ways and Means Committee struck out the cash provisions of the former bill, to which so much objection had been made, it was thought advisable to make some provisions for soldiers who were, or should become, in need, and for this purpose the bank loan provision was inserted.

"It seems to be assumed by some that all of these loans would run to Oct. 1, 1925, but that date was merely inserted as the very latest which might be fixed for the maturity of loans by the banks, in order that transactions with the banks might thereafter be closed. It was not intended that the banks would make the loan in the first instance for more than the time usually given on commercial paper, although a savings bank might do so. The Government agrees to cash these notes if they are six months overdue."

MEININGER TO ASK COURT FOR CHANGE OF VENUE

Lawyers Say He Cannot Get Fair Trial in St. Louis or St. Louis County.

Arthur D. Meninger, indicted cashier of the closed Night and Day Bank, will request a change of venue to remove his case from the jurisdiction of St. Louis and St. Louis County, when it comes up for trial in the Circuit Court March 20.

His counsel, in formally notifying the Circuit Attorney yesterday that this step was to be taken, stated that the citizens of St. Louis and St. Louis County were so prejudiced against Meininger that it would be impossible for him to obtain a fair and impartial trial at the hands of a jury in either place.

The Circuit Attorney informed the lawyers that he would oppose the application and would produce witnesses to support the State's contention that Meininger can obtain a fair trial here. There are 39 indictments pending against Meininger, the charges including grand larceny and embezzlement, accepting deposits after the bank was insolvent and making false report to the State Finance Commissioner.

Trials of the indicted directors of the bank also are set for March 20.

Japanese Dynamiters Sentenced.

HONOLULU, T. H., March 11.—Fifteen Japanese, convicted of criminal conspiracy here last Saturday, today were under sentence of from four to 10 years' hard labor each. In passing sentence, the Court said the seriousness of the crime made it impossible to grant the jury's plea for clemency for all but one of the defendants. The charges were made in connection with the dynamiting of the house of J. Sukazaki, a Japanese, who opposed a strike of sugar plantation workers.

COMMITTEE DISCUSSES CAUSES OF CRIME WAVE

Assurance of Justice Urged to Deter People From Taking Law Into Own Hands.

(Copyright, 1922.)

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The conclusions of five of the leading members of the American Bar Association, appointed as a committee by that organization to inquire into the causes of the present crime waye and suggest a remedy, are:

1. That the crime wave is the natural outgrowth of the war.

2. That the crime wave, instead of being an outgrowth of the war, is merely one of the causes which led to the war and which is continuing, in aggravated form, after the war has ended.

3. A growing belief on the part of the masses throughout the country that the courts are only for the rich and deny justice to the poor, with the resultant tendency on the part of the poor man to take the law into his own hands.

4. That the trouble is largely with the members of the bar themselves. Many men practicing law today, the committee has been told, ought to be in jail instead.

5. That conviction for crime in the courts is difficult and that the criminal, once convicted, is not punished sufficiently to deter others from repeating his offense.

Plan Corrective Measures.

The committee, consisting of W. B. Swaney of Chattanooga, Tenn.; former Gov. Charles S. Whitman of New York; Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh of Chicago; Charles W. Farnham of St. Paul, and Wade H. Ellis of this city, having concluded a session at Mr. Ellis' office here, is to meet again shortly to devise a program of relief from present conditions. They base their conclusions on first-hand investigation, and upon scores of communications, written and verbal, from criminologists throughout the United States.

The committee has uncovered sensational facts—for instance, it has found that within the past four years crime in Cleveland, O., has increased more than 300 per cent, according to Mr. Ellis, spokesman for the meeting. It has found, through Judge Kavanaugh, that the arrests for crime in the city of Chicago in one year exceed such arrests throughout all Great Britain.

Crime in Chicago.

"In Chicago, for instance," Mr. Ellis said today, "Judge Kavanaugh found that within a single year there were 119 arrests for criminal assault. Now, the city of Chicago has a population about equal to that of the Province of Quebec. In that province there has been but one arrest for criminal assault—and that one arrest covered a period of 65 years.

"We have been told," Mr. Ellis continued, "that there is in Chicago a band of pickpockets who engage counsel with an annual retainer to defend their members. Such a charge against a member of the bar is almost unbelievable, yet such is the testimony."

The committee has heard so much about conditions in Chicago, where Judge Kavanaugh, one of its members, is Judge of a trial court, that it plans to visit that city early next month. On April 10, Mr. Ellis stated, the entire committee, through the courtesy of Judge Kavanaugh, will sit with him on the bench and follow the cases that pass before him.

Somewhat similar action will be taken later on in New York. There the committee plans to meet at the headquarters of the Bar Association and examine witnesses.

Mr. Ellis was asked if the committee had decided upon a remedy.

"Not as a committee," he replied. "We are considering several suggestions, however.

Assurance of Justice.

"It seems to some of us that the way to check the crime wave is to insure the administration of justice to everybody in the United States, rich and poor alike. When a man is sure that he can get justice the chances are that he won't want to take the law into his own hands. We want to strike at the root of the trouble and that, it seems to me, is the root.

"Accordingly, we are considering a proposal that the American Bar Association take action at its next meeting to insure the administration of justice to the poor man by placing at his disposal the services of its members, free of charge, if he is unable to pay a fee.

"We should like to have in every community of the United States a group of lawyers pledged to render such service to man or woman, rich or poor, in civil or criminal cases. We want those lawyers to be of the highest possible type. We want their names published in the newspapers, stuck up in the courthouses and police station and elsewhere, so that they may be thoroughly known to the public."

DEAD SOLDIER FOUND TO BE RELATED TO 4 PER CENT OF TOWN

Payment of $5000 Policy Will Give $1.92 Monthly to Each of Many Relatives.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.

IN investigating the record of Bennie F. Taylor of Crystal Springs, Miss., a soldier who died at Camp Beauregard in 1918, the United States Veterans' Bureau believes it has come across something unique in the way of family relationship. Among other facts divulged was Taylor, exclusive of cousins, was closely related to four per cent of the total population of his home town of 1,395 residents.

Taylor named as the beneficiary of his Government term insurance policy his father, who died, leaving the insurance to his next of kin. The Veterans' Bureau requested from the family the names of these relatives falling in the "permitted class" and in reply received a list five feet long containing the names and addresses of 9 brothers, 6 sisters, 6 uncles, 6 aunts, 23 nephews, 6 uncles, 6 brothers-in-law, 8 sisters-in-law and a stepmother, 54 of whom bear the names of Taylor. The same Christian names, however, were seldom found twice.

Under the new adjustment for the payment of Taylor's $5000 policy, the stepmother and fifteen brothers and sisters will each receive monthly installments of $1.92.

SOUTHERN OHIO OPERATORS REFUSE TO MEET MINERS

Decline Secretary Davis' Request for a Joint Conference on Interstate Wage to Avert Strike on April 1.

COAL BODY OFFICER OUTLINES POSITION

Different Conditions and Alleged Questionable Method of Arriving at Scales Are Reasons for Refusal.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., March 11.—Southern Ohio coal operators today declined the request of Secretary of Labor Davis to meet with miners in joint conference to arrange a wage scale for the central competitive field.

"The operators of Southern Ohio cannot participate in such a conference," a reply to Secretary Davis' letter requesting the meeting said, "but they will meet with the representatives of the mine workers of this district at any time to discuss a wage scale and working conditions that are fair to the miners and operators of Southern Ohio, with the understanding that such a conference would not discuss the check-off."

The letter declares the present demands of the miners have been rejected by every interstate conference in the last three years, and that the United Mine Workers of America have "violated every agreement made by them since 1916."

The position of the Southern Ohio coal operators was outlined in a letter written to Secretary Davis by Walter D. McKinney of Columbus, secretary of the Southern Ohio Coal Exchange.

History of Situation.

The threatened suspension of bituminous coal mining resulted from action by the southern operators in first refusing to join in a central states wage conference that was to have been held at Pittsburg in January, and in a later conference scheduled for Cleveland early this month. Other districts followed the action of the Southern Ohio operators and the conferences, which were asked for by President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, were called off.

Following their failure to obtain a joint wage conference, the United Mine Workers announced that unless a new central competitive field wage scale was formulated by April 1, the miners would suspend work at that time.

Such a suspension would completely tie up the bituminous coal mines of Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois, the largest soft coal producing districts in the country. Approximately 215,000 miners would be affected. A vote now being taken by the United Mine Workers in these districts is reported to be almost 10 to 1 in favor of a suspension of work April 1 if a new agreement is not reached by that time.

McKinney Gives Reason.

Secretary McKinney's letter today informed Secretary Davis that the "economic and competitive conditions in Southern Ohio are in no way identical with the other districts, with which the Southern Ohio operators are asked to participate, and neither the miners nor operators of Southern Ohio could justify any agreement that may eb arrived at in such a joint interstate meeting."

The letter further pointed out "that the method of arriving at wage scales by interstate agreement has been challenged in the Federal courts as a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law."

The Southern Ohio operators contend that because the West Virginia coal fields are not organized, while the Ohio fields are, the West Virginia operators are able to sell their coal for less money. The Southern Ohio operators declare they must have a wage agreement with the miners that will permit them to place their coal in open market at such a price as to compete with West Virginia coal. Such an agreement, they claim, cannot be had in an interstate conference agreement.

Illinois Miners to Decide on Answer March 15.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 11.—A definite reply from the Illinois miners to the coal operators' proposal of a separate State conference to negotiate a new wage scale, will be made following a meeting of the district executive board of the miners at Springfield on March 15, President Frank Farrington notified the operators today.

A telegram to Farrington from the operators yesterday urged immediate acceptance or rejection of the conference proposed by the operators.

Outside Operators Said to Favor Negotiations With Miners.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Receipt by the Department of Labor of a large number of communications from coal operators' associations and individual mine operators, outside the central competitive field, favoring negotiations with the miners' union was reported today by department officials.

Davis is said to be not ready to take further steps in the endeavor to bring the coal operators and the Miners into conference and it is regarded as likely that the department may wait on results of the conference between the anthracite mine operators and miners' union, scheduled for March 15, before taking further initiative in the bituminous industry, where the prospects for a disruption are looked on as being graver.

Nine-Tenths Vote for Walkout April Is Predicted.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 11.—The strike vote of soft coal miners was completed last night by local unions throughout the country, and although the exact returns will not be known for a week, officers of the United Mine Workers of America here believed nine-tenths or more of the workers voted for a walk-out April 1, unless a new wage agreement is made.

FEDERAL INTERVENTION MAY BE RECOMMENDED IN THE EVENT OF A COAL STRIKE

By the Associated Press.

DAYTONA, Fla., March 11.

GOVERNMENT intervention to insure sufficient fuel for the movement of trains and the running of essential industries may be recommended to the administration as a proper course of action in the event of a coal strike, it was declared here today by a member of the party accompanying President Harding on his Florida trip.

It was explained, however, that this view did not necessarily reflect the opinion of the President, who has made no comment on the situation resulting from the expiration of the wage contracts the last of this month.

Consideration also might be given if the emergency warranted, the official said, to a program which would provide for a commission representing the operators, miners and public to arbitrate the controversy. Failure of arbitration, it was added, might result in a suggestion for more drastic action, even to the point of operation of the mines by the Government.

COUNTY UNIT BILL OPPOSED

Resolution Adopted by School Officials at Clayton.

Presidents, secretaries and clerks of the 94 school districts in St. Louis County at their annual meeting yesterday in Judge McElhinney's courtroom at Clayton, unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the County Unit bill, which will be put to a referendum vote in November. Under the resolution a committe of five was appointed to bring about a State conference of county school superintendents to discuss the bill, and the various school boards are constituted local committees to organize sentiment against it.

Probate Judge Sam D. Hodgdon of Webster Groves said he believed that every district superintendent in the county, except in districts which, having a high school, are not affected by the bill, was opposed to it. He said that the bill took the schools entirely away from local direction, and placed them in the hands of State-controlled county boards. Another speaker against the bill characterized it as "undemocratic and un-American."

SEEKS MARRIAGE ANNULMENT

Father of 16-Year-Old Bride Would Have Ceremony Canceled.

Roy Gaskill, father of Mrs. Virginia Gaskill Zumwalt, 16 years old, who married her chum's father, James Preston Zumwalt, 42, at St. Charles, Feb. 23, filed a petition for annulment of the marriage at Clayton yesterday, stating that the girl was an invalid.

According to Gaskill the marriage ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Frey. The couple lived together less than two days, the girl returning to her parents' home. Zumwalt is the father of two children, one of whom, an 18-year-old daughter, was Virginia's chum, according to the petition. Gaskill said his daughter regarded Zumwalt as a father.

QUESTIONS ABOUT SCHOOL TAX ELECTION ON MARCH 28 ANSWERED FOR VOTERS

People Will Vote on Continuing Present Rate for Four Years—Money Needed for New Buildings and to Maintain Schools.

What is this proposal relating to the school tax, which the people of St. Louis are going to vote on March 28?

What is the Board of Education going to do with this tax money

The Post-Dispatch presents the following answers to these questions, for the information of voters and others.

The proposal on which taxpaying voters will act at the special election March 28, and which requires a majority vote for adoption, will not increase the present tax rate, if it is approved. It will serve only to continue the rate for four years at 85 cents on the $100 assessed valuation. Failure of the proposal would mean reversion to the minimum rate of 60 cents.

Heretofore it has been necessary to conduct the schools on the minimum rate or have the people grant a higher rate at annual elections, as have been held for several years past. After the present rate was fixed at a special election last April the Legislature made it possible to make the rate last four years. The general increase of all costs due to the war made it necessary to get some increase of school taxes. The war is also held responsible for the inability of the Board of Education to keep its building program abreast with the increase in number of school children.

Reasons for Continuing Rate.

Superintendent of Instruction Maddox declares that the reason the schools are in imperative need of the continuation of the present tax rate is twofold. The present broad use of the school system as a nucleus of community life should be maintained, and adequate buildings should be supplied, he said.

"We must catch up immediately with the need for buildings," Supt. Maddox said. "The complete building program has not been prepared, being held in abeyance until the tax is assured. The people need have no fear that any element will be neglected when it comes time to prepare the building program. It has been announced, indeed, that two new high schools are to be erected, in North St. Louis and on the South Side, and that two elementary schools, the Long and the Walbridge, are to be built, but these are planned to meet the immediate requirements.

"The present enrollment of the five white high schools, the negro high school and the junior high school, is 13,930, whereas the seven buildings together were built to accommodate 9600 pupils. The surplus is 4330. This is felt the most in McKinley, Yeatman and Sumner (negro) high schools, because these buildings are smaller. Probably Yeatman and McKinley will be converted into junior high schools when the two new high schools are built.

"Irregular Accommodations."

"The number of pupils receiving instruction in what we call 'irregular accommodations' is 6977. These accommodations include classes held in portable buildings, rented rooms and buildings, school corridors, storerooms and basement rooms, and three cases of half-day sessions in regular rooms. Just as soon as we can we want to get rid of all these irregular accommodations.

"We want to make adequate provision for the instruction of crippled children, as has been made mandatory by the Legislature. We have a chart showing the homes of all crippled children of school age whom we know of. There will have to be arrangement to transport many crippled children to school. There are at least 200 crippled children who are eligible for the special school.

"The ultimate program will make adequate provision for negro school children, and will eliminae long car rides to school which many have to take now. There is an enrollment of 12,000 negro school children. The population of negroes between the ages of 5 and 19 in the city increased 5650 in the last six years, and 5000 of this increase were taken into the schools. Most of the increase was due to the influx from East St. Louis after the riot.

"St. Louis has always tried to build schools from current revenue. Only once the city diverged from this system. In 1916 bonds for $3,000,000 were issued. We will catch up on buildings with only the tax money if the proposal carries.

Activities Added in 10 Years.

"The other great need is for the maintenance of the present activities of the schools. We don't feel there is any danger to the carrying on of instruction in regular day classes, but all the other activities depend on the tax rate. Here is a list of activities added by the board since 1912:

"Open air schools, school gardens, extension of evening high schools, opening of school buildings to wider use for community gatherings, instruction of tubercular children at Koch Hospital, House of Detention, city hospital and city sanitarium; dental clinics, continuation schools for children between 14 and 16 who must work, instruction for children defective in speech, opening of social centers, Americanization work.

"The Americanization work has reached 1500 persons, in 41 classes, this year alone. Supervisors are provided for the social centers. There are more than 20,000 pupils in the evening high and elementary schools. There are 2500 boys and girls in the continuation classes. The combined wider activities of the schools reach 600,000 persons now, in addition to the regular school pupils.

"The building program will be met and the activities kept up if the people pass the proposal. Nobody knows what will happen if the people don't pass it. The board cannot conceive that it won't pass."

Would Reduce Rate Eventually.

Officials of the Board of Education have said that the result of failure to pass the proposal would would be calamitous. It will be possible eventually to reduce the tax rate, after the requirements are stabilized. To show the conditions that have had to be met, Supt. Maddox quoted the increase in prices on numerous staple school supplies since 1916, the average increase being 66 per cent.

A citizens' committee has been organized to carry on the campaign for adoption of the proposal. It is under the chairmanship of Melville L. Wilkinson. Much interest has been shown by school pupils and they are carrying the word of their desire for the good of the schools to voting relatives. School children have drawn posters, coined slogans and written songs in the furtherance of the campaign.

Many civic and other organizations, including groups of school "patrons," have indorsed the proposal. The Educational Committee of the Chamber of Commerce is one of the most recent to take such action.

The Board of Directors of the Real Estate Exchange has adopted a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the exchange that operating expenses of schools should be met from general taxation, but that buildings and land should be paid for by bond issue.

COMMUNITY COUNCIL DENIES PROMISING JOBS TO CRAFTSMEN

Reply to Lammert's Statement Asserts Contact With Painters' Council Came After Wage Cut.

The Community Council of St. Louis, composed of 85 charitable, philanthropic and civic agencies, has written a letter to Charles J. Lammert, Secretary of the Carpenters' District Council, in reply to a statement by Lammert concerning jobs for painters and paperhangers, in which it is stated that the Community Council made no promise of employment to the craftsmen who reduced their wages from $1.25 to $1 an hour.

What the Community Council did, the letter says, was to interest itself in the situation as a problem of unemployment to be dealt with, and within its membership discussed measures for reducing unemployment, the official contact of the Community Council with the Painters' District Council coming after the men had reduced the wages.

WEBSTER'S BOXWOOD TREE TO BE TRANSPLANTED, OLD CHESTNUT CHOPPED DOWN

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.

WORKMEN today began clearing the site of the house which Daniel Webster occupied while Secretary of State, to make way for the immense building which is to be the home of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The celebrated old chestnut tree in the old-fashioned garden, which has been pointed out to thousands of tourists, is to be cut down because it cannot be preserved and moved. The big boxwood tree, beneath which Webster used to sit and read, is to be transplanted Monday to a place on the great greensward at the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park, which is to be dedicated May 30. Both old trees are in the Hall of Fame for trees with a history of the American Forestry Association.

The site of Webster's home is just across Lafayette Park looking north from the White House, and near the home of Slidell, one of the Confederate Commissioners, and just a few steps from the home of John Hay. Across the street stands the home of Commodore Decatur of Tripoli fame, which is next door to the house that Theodore Roosevelt occupied while the White House was being remodeled.

THEODORE DANIELS, 43 YEARS OLD, of 300 South Seventh street, saloon keeper, was arrested there yesterday when, policemen reported, he broke a bottle containing a liquid in a sink and kicked over a quart mason jar containing the same kind of liquid in a rear room, breaking it. The police reported they saved enough of the liquid in broken pieces of both vessels for analysis.

DRIVER HELD FOR DEATH OF WOMAN

Louis Gross Charged With Criminal Carelessness by Coroner's Jury.

Louis Gross, a tinner, 2107 Carr street, was held for criminal carelessness by the verdict of a Coroner's jury which yesterday investigated the death Friday of Mrs. Christine Sutter, 64 years old, of 2809½ Wash street, who was struck by an automobile driven by Gross Feb. 20.

Gross, who declined to make a statement at the inquest, was placed under $5000 bond pending action of the grand jury.

Witnesses testified Gross was driving south on Grand avenue and that he turned east into Cass avenue. He cut the corner short, instead of making a long turn, they said, and the right side of his machine struck Mrs. Sutter as she was crossing Cass avenue. Gross took Mrs. Sutter to the Mullanphy Hospital in the automobile.

Cardinals Open Spring Drive by Beating Indians

Barfoot's Fine Pitching Features Rickeymen's 4-3 Victory Over the Cleveland American League Club.

RECRUIT HURLS THREE SCORELESS INNINGS

Heine Mueller Leads the Attack With 2 Doubles—Hornsby Reports and Performs at Second Base.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DALLAS, Tex., March 11.—With both clubs playing a mid season brand of baseball, the Cardinals today vanquished the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3 and thereby got off on the right foot for 1922. The battle was close throughout with the Indians only a step from victory in the ninth inning when "Tink" Riviere faltered and almost lost out. Each team used three pitchers. For the Cardinals, Barfoot, late of Houston, Reinhart, last year with Los Angeles, and Riviere worked three innings apiece, while Speaker employed Mails, Bagby and Keefe, last year with the Athletics.

Cleveland was helpless before the assortment of pitching Barfoot handed out. They scored two of their runs off Reinhart, though one tally was hardly the southpaw's fault, and added their third off Riviere. Also, they came too close for comfort to making several more in the ninth. Three of the St. Louis runs were manufactured while Mails was pitching and the other was made off Keefe. The Cardinals had the bases full with none down in the ninth and failed to score and the Indians crowded the bases with two down in their half of the final, but just fell short of scoring.

Mails a Generous Bird.

A burst of generosity on the part of Mails gave the Cardinals two runs in the first. With Smith out of the way, Mails prevailed on Adams, Stock and Hornsby to accept free transportation to first and Adams counted on Mann's hot shot for a single through Wamby. Stock rolled home on McHenry's sacrifice fly to Speaker. With one out, in Cleveland's first, Wamby doubled to left, but his two following colleagues left him stranded. In the second, both teams were helpless. With two out, in the Card's third, Hornsby got his first hit of the year, a line drive over second. Mann sent a triple to the fence in left center and Rogers staggered home. In the second and third, Barfoot had the Indians completely "buffaloed" and not a hit was made off him. In the third, with one out, he passed Bagby, batting for Mails, but Jamieson and Wamby rolled out.

Reinhart for St. Louis and Bagby for Cleveland were the pitchers when the fourth inning began.

Two Runs Off Reinhart

Bagby held the Cards in the fourth but Reinhart, more sinned against than sinning, was not so fortunate. Speaker started with a double which took a bad bound past Stock. McInnis popped out but Sewell got a single which just escaped being snared by Hornsby. This might have been counted an error for Rog but the springtime is not the season for being harsh. Speaker went to third on the alleged hit and scored on Gardner's long fly. The Cardinals did not get to Bagby either in the fifth or sixth. In the sixth, the American Leaguers crept up a bit, scoring a run on a pass to McInnis and Gardner's long double. This inning ended the work of Reinhart and Bagby and the seventh saw Riviere and Keefe in action.

Keefe held the Cards but only a wonderful play by McHenry kept the Indians from tallying. With two out, Speaker rammed a double to left and McInnis slashed to left for a base. McHenry picked the ball up cleanly and his line throw to Clemons caught the speedy Speaker ten feet from the plate.

Both teams counted in the eighth. For the Cardinals, Stock was safe on Sewell's bad throw but was forced by Hornsby. Rog scored through the medium of hits by Clemons and McHenry. Riviere hit Sewell in the foot in the last half of the inning and Joe got around on a pass to Gardner and Nunamaker's single.

Barfoot There With Both Feet.

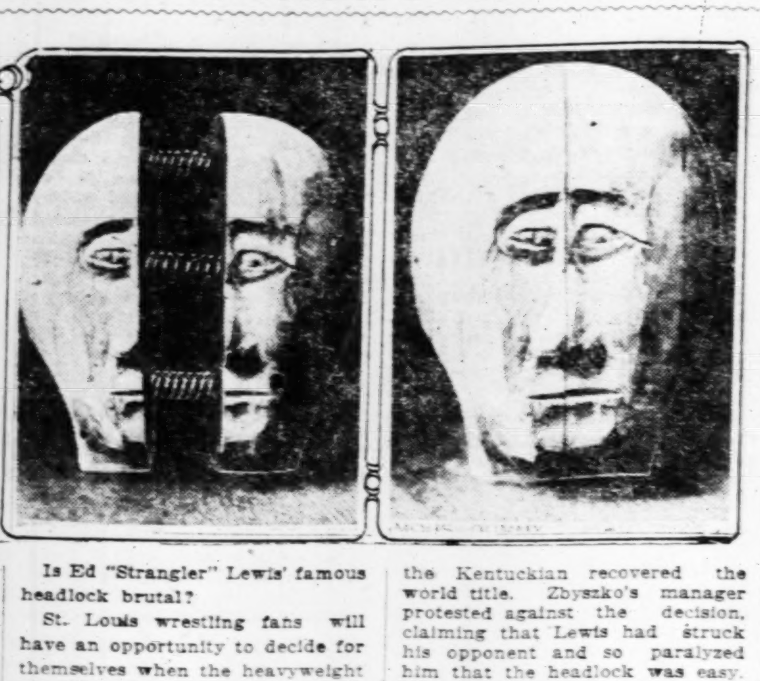
Both teams filled the bases in the ninth but neither scored. The Cards got theirs on with nobody out but Stock flied to Sewell, Hornsby gave the crowd a chance by fanning furiously and Clemons forced Adams at second. Two were down for Cleveland when Riviere suddenly went wild and after McInnis had hit safely, passed Sewell and Gardner. McNulty, an Ohio State University product, ended the battle with a long foul fly to McHenry.

The Cardinals made 10 hits to their opponents' 7, but Cleveland was handed eight bases on balls by Rickey's hurlers. The pitching of Barfoot was the outstanding feature of the game. Clarence Mueller slapped out two doubles and thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon.

After the second and last game of the series, tomorrow, the Cardinals return to Orange.

Mat Champion and Device He Uses to Practice Headlock

"STRANGLER" ED LEWIS.



Is Ed "Strangler" Lewis' famous headlock brutal?

St. Louis wrestling fans will have an opportunity to decide for themselves when the heavyweight wrestling champion of the world makes his initial visit at the Odeon here, tomorrow night. Lewis will go to the mat with Jack Jurka, champion of Australia, in the final event. Jim Londos, Greek champion, and Jatrinda Gobar, the Hindu champion, will be the semifinal attractions.

It was the headlock with which Lewis conquered Stanislaus Zbyszko, the Polist giant, at Wichita, Kan., recently, in which match the Kentuckian recovered the world title. Zbyszko's manager protested against the decision, claiming that Lewis had struck his opponent and so paralyzed him that the headlock was easy. This claim has been disputed by sport writers who witnessed the bout.

In the above illustration Lewis and the device he used to develop his forearms, are shown. The headlock requires tremendous strength in the arms and the wooden dummy head is equipped with powerful springs which tax the champion's full sertngth to compress them to the chosing point.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S HEALTH IS IMPROVING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 11.—Christy Mathewson is improving in health daily and sees his ultimate complete recovery from the ravages of the white plague in sight and reach.

In the first personal telephone interview that Mathewson has given since he went to Saranac, Matty gave that assurance today to George "Hooks" Wiltse, former New York National League twirler and now manager of the Buffalo International League.

"I'm really feeling fine now," declared Mathewson to Wiltse over the long distance. "I'm gaining in strength every day. I'd like to go South this spring to see the boys prepare for the campaign, but I haven't reached that stage of recovery just yet. But, old-timer, I'm getting there."

Mathewson's voice, strong and hearty, gave evidence that the treatment he is taking is proving most effective.

Mathewson and Wiltse were roommates during the seven-year period that they traveled together with John McGraw's club.

Pari-Mutuel Baseball Betting Arrives.

THEY have a new one in Chicago. No, not of the kind that is born one a minute. However, the one-a-minute lads will fall for it, heavily.

It is pari-mutuel baseball betting. A Chicago solicitor visited St. Louis, recently in the interest of the proposition, but quickly backed out because of police vigilance here. To get away with the new game the gambling censors must be blind in both eyes, or looking discreetly the other way.

In Chicago the game has its headquarters. The promoters of pari-mutuel baseball pools do not do the gambling—they merely sell the fixtures, the schedules and the tickets to cigar and other counters that handle betting schemes.

The plan purports to be a "saving" for betttors in as much as he divides all of the profits—if he wins—except 10 per cent. The clever Chicagoan who explained the system stated that in the Windy City the bettors in the "Derby" and the "Great American," two of the big weekly pools operated there supposedly under "protection," get only 28 per cent of the receipts divided among the winners.

The new system provides for the sale of tickets on the daily winners. There are 16 possible combinations of four winning teams in each league, as shown by the "schedule" furnished by the operator. The bettor selects the four teams he thinks will win. Other bettors do likewise. The holders of tickets on the winning four teams divide the total of the wagers on all the other 15 possibilities—less 10 per cent.

That's the baseball pari-mutuel.

Willie Is With Us.

WILLIE HOPPE, world's greatest all-around cueist, even though he did lose one of his championships to the son of the once marvelous "wizard," Jake Schaefer, will be with us again today to begin training for his drive to regain the lost 18.2 balkline championship in a match with "Young" Jake Schaefer at Chicago, March 27, 28 and 29. With his customary thoroughness and patience, Willie has planned a regular training campaign which will involve physical as well as practice preparation. Hoppe has always contended that a perfect body conduces to better mental concentration; and his successful career has seemed to bear out the truth of this theory.

Tests Not Long Enough.

HOPPE'S next match will be a better test of relative merits of the two men, although not as long a one as might be desired. It is to be 1500 points, played 500 points each night.

In England they play championships of from 12,000 to 15,000 points; and it must be said that this would seem to be a truer test than short sprints for the title.

However, the 1500 points will be enough to show whether Schaefer's remarkable work during the recent tournament and during the year previous in exhibition matches was just a "streak" or was due to a solid improvement. If the advance recorded was genuine, there is little doubt but that Willie, great as he is, will have to be at the peak of his technique to beat Schaefer. That player, with an average of 31 for the entire tournament, shattered all records for brilliancy. And it was not his first notable effort during the previous twelvemonth.

Willie will probably be able to play as good billiards in the coming match as at any time in his career. If he loses it will then doubtless be due not to his decline, but to the advance of his rival.

Schaefer can hardly be the popular favorite that Hoppe has been for 15 years. His disposition has not in the past been equable. And there are those who will see in this fact a cause to wager against the young Chicagoan. For, in sporting circles, it is an axiom that champions, whether horse or man, always have the right temperament.

Boxing Moves Out of Cleveland.

CLEVELAND'S Mayor, having refused to move in favor of professional boxing in that city, the Cleveland promoters have moved the boxing game to a more favorable site, to-wit, 10 miles from the Cleveland loop center, to a suburban village, where a 15,000 arena with street cars and everything is available.

Ringside Observation.

SMALL wonder the referee comes in for some severe "panning" by spectators at boxing matches. At the recent Wills-Norfolk bout in New York, tried critics testified to the following misleading facts:

1. That Wills was dropped with a six-inch jolt to the body.
2. That he was knocked out by an uppercut that traveled at least one foot.
3. That Wills struck first a four-inch blow to the body then converted it into an uppercut.
4. That Norfolk fell to the floor without being struck.

All this from men seated in the first row at the ringside and trained in pugilistic observation.

To complicate matters even more, the referee said it was short body punch. Wills said he "hit him where it hurt." Norfolk didn't know what struck him.

And there you are.

When expert observers fall out over what they see at ranges varying from six feet to 20 feet, how is the spectator, seated half a block distant, to tell what really occurred.

An honest referee's word is worth more than that of any other individual in the hall and should not be subject to criticism by spectators, who are in most cases not close enough to obtain a direct view of all that occurs in a contest.

We're Strong for This.

NEVERTHELESS, it is this same distant spectator who pays and thereby helps keep the game flourishing. The promoters and everyone in the ring are obligated to make clear to this paid admission person, every doubtful thing that occurs, in so far as possible.

To this end, as we have suggested before, there should be an explanation before the show as to the exact basis on which the decision is to be rendered; the referee should then tell spectators on just what grounds he awarded the verdict.

It is a weakness of professional boxing that there is no common standard in use by which the efforts of boxers are judged. And this, too, makes it imperative that each particular referee should inform the crowd, where there seems any doubt as to his ruling, on what points he decided the issue.

Harry Greb May Upset "Form" by Beating Gibbons

Odds Range From 8 to 5 to 2 to 1 That St. Paul Fighter Will Win Tomorrow Night.

By Bert Igoe.

The Post-Dispatch's Eastern Boxing Authority.

NEW YORK, March 11.—"Arry-o'-the-Wisp and Dead-Eye Tom—that will be Harry Greb and Tom Gibbons when they meet in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. An amazingly fast chap against one who likes to settle into his tracks, feint the other fellow into a blundering gap in an otherwise faultless defense. These are the ring manners of the pair and as unalike as any two men that ever glared at each other over a set of groggy gloves.

It ought to be a tremendously interesting bout for this very reason. Greb with his smack-'em-on-the-chops-come-chase-me-Tommy style against one of the cleanest hitters in the world. An up to date Jack O'Brien against a man of the Joe Gans technique. Greb will mix, wheel and whirl; mix, wheel and whirl back again.

This writer was talking to young Fitzsimmons at Hot Springs lately. Not the son of old Bob, but a western product among the middles. He fought Greb once.

"There's the busiest man in the world when he's in the ring," said Fitz. "There is no resting your arms when you are in there with that fellow. He is coming from everywhere, all the time from all directions. I can't describe his boxing any other way and as for hitting him, there, try, I say and do it. Hardest man in the world to hit and consequently the hardest to whip. He's a wonder."

And most of the men Greb has fought will tell you the same. Gibbons may catch him, but Gibbons will have to change his pace or he'll never accomplish it. Except that he is a light hitter, Greb reminds one of Stanley Ketchel. There is much of his ring action that is like Steve's. Shifting, moving this way and that, he is at times a ringer for the good old Assassin.

Gibbons Has Great Kayo Record.

Gibbons, of course, has run up a knockout record that looks impressive enough to win him a crack at Dempsey. Twenty-two or 23 blokes belted into submission in one long row, is a bit of hitting that even a man of Dempsey's steel-fisted ability can't sneeze at.

Of course, they were not all Jess Willards nor yet Georges Carpentiers. Nothing like it, but over they went and for an unbroken string.

It's against the law to wager on a bout in a New York club, but that isn't preventing the lads from betting on the men on the outside. Gibbons rules favorite at 8 to 5. By ring time they expect to see Tom's convincing work batter the price to 2 to 1. George Engel, Greb's manager, had a good old laugh over these odds yesterday.

MORE MONEY OFFERED FOR JOE DUGAN THAN WAS PAID FOR RUTH, FRAZEE SAYS

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 11.—Harry H. Frazee, president of the Boston Americans, says he has rejected a proposal for player's purchase that would surpass all others of the kind.

"I have been offered and have refused more money for Joe Dugan than I received for Babe Ruth," dispatches from Hot Springs, Ark., the Red Sox training camp, quotes Frazee as saying.

That is taken to mean that approximately $150,000 was placed as the value of the shortstop, who came to the Boston club during the winter in a three-cornered trade, after making his mark as a member of the Athletics. Frazee has been credited with having received between $125,000 and $150,000 for Ruth.

Frazee said Dugan would not be sold. He would not indicate the source of the offer.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 11.—Joe Dugan, recently acquired shortstop of the Boston American club, left here today for the Red Sox training camp at Hot Springs, Ark. Dugan has been convalescing at his home here after a two weeks' illness with influenza.

GEIBEL WINS TWO RACES IN COLLEGE SWIM MEET

By the Associated Press.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., March 11.—Leo Geibel of Rutgers today not only won the 50-yard dash and 50-yard backstroke events in the Middle States intercollegiate swimming championship races, but he helped Rutgers to win the 200-yard relay by swimming anchor and beating out the Lehigh, Johns-Hopkins and Swarthmore representatives. Giebel's time in the 50-yard dash was 26 1-5 seconds and in the backstroke event 35 4-5 seconds.

Harmon of Lehigh won the 220-yard event, while Baxter of Swarthmore won the fancy diving contest. The Rutgers team winning the relay race was made up of Rosetti, Ross, Anamder and Geibel, and the Lehigh team was second and Swarthmore third.

Fitzporter-McBride Win.

Dr. Fitzporter and McBride, representing the Knights of Columbus, defeated Gouvain and Gouvain, North Side Y. M. C. A., 21—1 and 21—3, in the municipal handball tournament at Macabees Hall yesterday. Two matches will be decided today. Cook and Foss play Devey and Allsworth, and Kammann and Sanford oppose Hawe and Powers. The finals will be decided this week.

Sisler's Steal of Home Is Feature of Browns' Victory

Fohl's Regulars Start Season With 11 to 4 Win Over Mobile Club—Bayne Yields Only One Hit in Three Innings He Labors on Hill.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MOBILE, Ala., March 11.—George Sisler furnished the fans of this city a real thrill in the ninth inning of today's game by stealing home as pitcher Roberts was winding up. Only five hundred baseball enthusiasts were present, but everyone enjoyed the act immensely. Incidentally, the Browns experienced very little trouble defeating the Southern League outfit, 11 to 4.

Up to and including Mobile's half of the second inning the contest was interesting. After that the locals went all to pieces and the St. Louis crowd ran up the score in the easiest kind of fashion.

Elam Vangilder and "Slats" Hollingsworth were selected for mound duty at the start of the battle. Vangilder traveled only three innings, while his opponent put in five rounds of hard labor.

Mobile registered a pair of runs in the second with one out. Nixon walked. Manager Bert Niehoff singled to left. Kenneth Williams made a wonderful peg to third base and Nixon was nailed sliding into third. Wickham then lifted the leather over the right field fence, Niehoff scoring ahead of him. Schulte, catcher for the locals, and a St. Louis boy, ended the inning with a roller to McManus.

Hughes' Error Helps Browns.

The Browns evened the score in their half of the third. With Gerber out of the way, McManus drew a walk, and took second on a wild pitch. Vangilder hit to Boll and the throw was dropped by Huhn. McManus scored on Tobin's infield out. Ellerbe singled to left, sending Vangilder across the pay-off station.

Starting the fifth, McManus walked for the second time. Bayne sacrificed, Hollingsworth to Huhn. Tobin drew a pass. Ellerbe was tossed out, Niehoff to Huhn. Sisler poled a triple to right, sending McManus and Tobin home, and George scored a moment later on a wild pitch. Kenneth Williams was called out on strikes.

Billy Bayne pitched the fourth, fifth and sixth and the left hander allowed only one single and a walk during his stay on the mound. Roy Davis next took up the pitching burden. The right hander from Herrin, Ill., was rather wild. Niehoff walked, but was immediately nipped off the bag. Then Roberts, the pitcher, walked. Bennett Tate, catcher, tapped to Davis for an easy out. Lorens, a St. Louis boy, connected for a home run over the left field fence, sending Roberts home ahead of him. In the eighth Davis had but little trouble disposing his his opponents. Hubert Pruett pitched the ninth and the young lefthander fanned three men in a row, pitching only 11 balls.

Browns Put On Storm.

McManus started the ninth for the Browns when the St. Louisans batted around. Four singles, two walks, two errors and three stolen bases were crowded into the inning before the third out was made, the Browns sending six runs over the counting station.

Billiken Boxer Wins A. A. U. Title In Heavy Class

Western District Champions Crowned at Armory—Several to Be Sent to National Tourney.

R. G. Howlett, representing St. Louis University, and weighing 211 pounds, won the heavyweight championship in the Western A. A. U. amateur championship tournament at the Armory last night, knocking out Charles Patrick, 239 pounds, representing the 138th Regiment, in the second round.

Howlett, for a big man, showed exceptional speed, and went after his heavier opponent from the start. The St. Louis U. student floored his rival three times in the first round. At the start of the second Patrick came up groggy and was immediately sent to the mat. Howlett slipped to the floor, but upon arising sent Patrick down twice more before finally sending a right to the chin, ending the bout.

"Wild Man" Disqualified.

One of the feature bouts of the evening was the final in the 145-pound class between Roy Baum and Private Jaworsky. The bout was a give-and-take affair until the third round, when Referee Neist disqualified Jaworsky, after repeatedly warning the soldier against hitting while holding.

Jaworsky, by his showing in the earlier rounds, had been termed the "Wild Man of Borneo," but Baum put on a storm of his own in the first round and held his own. In the second round Baum slipped to one knee and Jaworsky swarmed all over him. At one time during this round both boxers were on the floor at the same time, mainly due to their own wild swinging.

With the start of the third round, Jaworsky floored Baum with a right to the face and then sent his opponent to the mat with a stomach punch. After the second knockdown Neist stepped in and disqualified the Jefferson Barracks soldier.

Wurtz Defeats Moose.

In the 135-pound class Charles Wurtz proved too rugged for Joe Moose of the S. B. A. C., and was awarded the decision. Moose proved to be a clever boxer and it was his cleverness alone that saved him from a knockout in the final round, when Wurtz punched him all around the ring. In the first two rounds Moose had piled up points by using his left to good advantage as a counter.

Ray Alfano of East St. Louis won the 115-pound championship by default, physicians deciding that Sincoff, who had previously battled three hard rounds in the semifinal, was in no condition to participate in another bout.

A. Downard and Joe Hess put up a good fight in the 158-pound class, with the former winning. Hess had a peculiar style and was hard to hit. Downard, however, broke through the defense and put in some good, solid punches.

Lee Perricone seemed heavier and a harder hitter than Ben Kauff, and won the judges' decision after three rounds in the 125-pound class.

About 1200 persons attended the show last night and Tom Watts, A. A. U. district chairman, said prospects were bright for sending a large representation to the national tournament at Boston in April. The proceeds from the tourney here will determine the number to be sent.

Belleville Quint Wins Washington Basket Tourney

Takes Mississippi Valley Basketball Title by Defeating Sparta High in Final, 15 to 13.

VICTORS OVERCOME LEAD IN SECOND HALF

Webster and Cleveland Fives Are Eliminated in Semifinal Round by Top-Heavy Scores.

Belleville (Ill.) High School won the championship in the second annual Mississippi Valley interscholastic basketball tournament, which was completed on the Washington University court last night, by defeating Sparta High School, 15 to 13. Belleville overcame an early margin to capture the title.

With the start of the contest, Sparta put on a spurt and ran up eight points before Belleville was able to score. Then a foul was called on Cox, Sparta forward, and Gundlach counted the first point for Belleville. The first half ended with Sparta on the long end of the score, 8—3.

The Belleville quint came to life with the start of the second half and field goals by Winkler and Kaiser cut the Sparta lead down to one point. At this point, a foul was called on Gundlach, the Belleville forward. Reid made the toss and brought the score to 9—7. A field goal by Kaiser put Belleville on even terms for the first time during the contest.

Belleville Overcomes Lead.

Belleville at this point was forced to take out time because of an injury to Gundlach. With the resumption of play, a foul throw was netted by Reid and Sparta again took the lead. Reid came back with another free throw, but Winkler's field goal made it 11 all as the third quarter ended.

At the start of the fourth quarter, Ehret of Belleville tossed a free throw, putting his team ahead for the first time during the contest. Another free throw by Ehret made it 13—11. A free throw by Cox put the score at 13—12. Shortly thereafter, Belleville was awarded a free throw. The toss was missed, but Winkler pushed the ball into the basket for a field goal. Reid's foul throw made it 15—13 and the game ended a few minutes later.

Cox High Point Scorer.

As a result of its victory last night, Belleville gains a leg on the Leacock trophy, which last season was won by Webster High School. The team also was awarded a silver loving cup, while the players of the team received miniature gold basketballs. The Sparta players were given silver basketballs.

Cox, the Sparta forward, was the high individual point getter of the tournament with 61 to his credit.

The game was so fiercely contested that in the fourth quarter, Senne, one of the Webster guards, fell unconscious and had to be carried from the floor. Earlier, he had been accidentally hit on the head in a collision. Winkler, Belleville forward, with 10 points, was the individual star of the game.

Sparta gained a lead of 15—10 against the St. Louis High School champions in the first half and increased this during the second. Cox, one of the Sparta forwards, played an exceptionally strong game, and was the individual star, scoring seven field goals for a total of 14 points.

FINALISTS GAIN FOUR PLACES ON "STAR" TEAM

Indoor High Jump Record Is Broken

Dartmouth Athlete Sets New Mark in Intercollegiate Meet at New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Leroy Brown of Dartmouth tonight set a new world's indoor running high jump record of 6 feet 4⅞ inches in the intercollegiate championship meet of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America.

The old record of 6 feet 4¾ inches was held jointly by Brown and Johnny Murphy of Notre Dame. Brown tried to clear the bar at 6 feet 5⅞ inches but failed.

Marion Shields of Pennsylvania State College won the one mile run. Shields, in a 100-yard sprint at the end, caught Malcolm Douglas of Yale, a yard from the tape.

For the first time at an intercollegiate meet, the timing was by tenths of seconds.

KANSAS OFFICIALS VOTE AGAINST PLAYING TIGERS IN TITLE BASKET GAME

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., March 11.—The Athletic Board of the University of Kansas today voted against acceptance of an invitation of the University of Missouri to meet Kansas in Kansas City in a single game to break the tie now existing between the two teams for the Missouri Valley basketball championship.

Chancellor E. H. Lindley of K. U., president of the Athletic Board, issued a statement declaring that while the game might be a big thing financially, yet at present he believed it paramount that the people of the country come to know that colleges do not exist primarily for athletics, and that inasmuch as the basketball season is officially closed and the track season is already opening, it is not fitting that permission for further basketball games be given.

PRINCIPIA FIVE BEATS WESTERN IN FINAL TILT

X-Ray Disclosed Kaiser's Injury

Slight Fracture Discovered on Second Examination Causes Withdrawal From Match.

Carl Tremaine, who will substitute for John "Peewee" Kaiser Tuesday night at the Coliseum, in a 12-round bout against Jabez White, the Albany bantam, is due in St. Louis today and will workout lightly Monday.

Tremaine's manager, Jimmy Dunn, who for years had charge of the featherweight champion, Johnny Kilbane, will not be here until Tuesday. Tremaine is one of the most dangerous men of his weight in the game as a long and excellent record attests. He is an aggressive boxer with a solid punch that knocks 'em dead when it clanks on the enemy bean. White is a clever, cautious fighter, given to safety-first tactics when the enemy is a hard hitter.

Kaiser's hand will remain in a plaster cast for at least 10 days. Kaiser's physician told a Post-Dispatch representative that he had examined Pewee's hand cursorily after his bout with Walker and thought that the pain Kaiser suffered was due to a sprain. When it failed to disappear after two weeks an X-ray was decided upon. Day before yesterday this was taken and revealed a slight fracture of one of the metacarpal bones. Kaiser will not be allowed to box until his salary wing has been healed thoroughly.

Buddy McHale and Grub Whalen will try to drive the cuckoos out of one another's belfries, in the semiwindup, while Happy Howard will confront Chick Saunders with a beezer that is just recovering from its ninth operation.

Knockout Punch Is Essential to Ring Popularity, Edgren Finds

Leonard, Jeffries, Fitzsimmons, Gans, Nelson, Kilbane and Others Who Have Won Public Favor, Have Had Ability to Drop Opponent—"Kick" Furnishes Thrill That Public Likes.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1922.)

"IT'S the champion with the punch who gets all the popularity," said Freddy Welsh a few nights ago, as he watched Rocky Kansas being rubbed down after losing a 15-round decision to Benny Leonard.

"Leonard is making a great record," Welsh went on. "He always has the punch. After winning the title from me he went right along winning fights with knockouts. He hasn't needed decisions. In the decision fights he has fought he has stopped Welling and Ritchie Mitchell, and has outpointed Rocky Kansas. But he flattened Kansas in the eleventh round, and it's something to put that human battering ram on the floor. I never made a hit with the crowd that Benny makes, and only because I didn't have the 'kick'."

Welsh said a lot there in a few words. Looking back over the long list of champions in different weight classes, it's easy to see how the possession of a K O punch commanded respect and popularity. The crowd likes action—plenty of it—excitement—thrills. And there is nothing that puts a thrill into a boxing contest like the possibility of a decisive punch that may slip over at the most unexpected moment.

John L. Sullivan was world famous because he won his fights with crashing knockouts. There are few decisions in John L.'s record. Jim Corbett was popular for a while, after beating Sullivan and knocking out Charlie Mitchell. But he never had a real K. O. punch, and it wasn't long before harder hitters took his place in public esteem.

Tom Sharkey had nothing but strength and a punch. He once knocked out Gus Ruhlin with the first blow struck. He knocked out Kid McCoy after McCoy had dropped him twice. He was always dangerous. There were just two men he couldn't knock down.

It's the Snap That Counts.

One was Bob Fitzsimmons, who was too crafty to get in the way of Sharkey's swings, and who was the hardest hitter in the world at his weight—perhaps the hardest at any weight. The other was Jim Jefferies. Sharkey hit Jeff often enough, but he couldn't make an impression on Jeff's tremendous frame. In his prime Jeffries was the strongest man ever seen in a ring, and no fighter living in his time could hit hard enough to upset him.

Jeffries had a great punch. He often held it back, being afraid of injuring his opponents if he used all his hitting power, but when he needed the punch he could deliver it.

There is a peculiar thing about punching power. The weight of the blow counts for nothing.

The snap with which it is delivered gives it the stunning effect.

When Fitzsimmons was training at Carson to fight Corbett for the heavyweight title, I boxed with him one day, and had several samples of Bobs terrific body blows. The punches I landed on Fitz didn't worry him much.

After boxing we had a discussion about hitting power, and went downtown to try it out on a punching machine with a registering dial. I was more a shot putter and weight thrower than a boxer, and this is where I slipped one over on Fitzsimmons.

Bob hit the pad on the punching machine some mighty swats, and the needle flew up and registered about 400 pounds. When my turn came I had sized up the working style of the machine, and instead of driving my fist into it with a snappy boxer's blow, I lunged with a shot putting drive, registering approximately 800 pounds, or twice the punch delivered by Fitzsimmons.

A Puzzle to Fitz.

Fitz couldn't understand it at all. He couldn't believe that anyone could hit harder than he did, so he kept on pounding the machine for nearly an hour. Finally Fitz had a bright idea.

"Look 'ere," he exclaimed, "you can't be 'itting 'arder than I am. When I 'it it I 'it it so 'ard the needle flies once around so quick we don't see it, and then it goes slower for four 'undred pounds more. I'm 'itting once around the dial—that twelve 'undred pounds—and four 'undred more—sixteen 'undred pounds."

And Fitz stuck to his claim. The fact was that his 400-pound hit was a blow and my 800-pound hit was a shove. My hit would have upset a man without hurting him much—but Fitzsimmons' hit would have jarred the senses out of any man it landed on. Naturally, Fitzsimmons never hit as hard a blow at a moving target as he did at the padded cushion on the machine.

Dempsey has earned a place among the world's greatest hitters by establishing the cleanest knockout record ever held by a champion. His punch has earned him fame.

Look at the lightweights. Benny Leonard is the most popular champion the class ever had—and he nearly always wins with a punch. Joe Gans was a great lightweight champion because he could get up from a knockdown and even when reeling snap over a winning knockout blow. He did that twice with Dal Hawkins.

The Little Fellows.

Gans was a marvelous counter hitter.

Battling Nelson was a popular champion because he won his fights via the K. O. route, but it took Nelson years to work his way into real popularity, because he took so long to win. Some of his battles went over 40 rounds. His other qualities, stubborn courage, aggressiveness and self-confidence gave him popularity he couldn't win with the more spectacular punch.

Johnny Kilbane could hit when he wanted to. He liked the clever stuff, the dancing, looking around, smiling, kidding. He lost most of his popularity at one time by fooling too much—showing off to a tiresome extent, contenting himself with clever work.

But when he realized that the public was beginning to count him a has-been without a punch, he took on a match with the most dangerous hitter in his class, George Chaney of Baltimore, and knocked him out in three rounds. Kilbane's popularity came back with a bound.

Jem Driscoll of England had a wonderful punch and the crowd loved him.

Terry McGovern is still counted the greatest little fighter ever known in the bantam and feather weight classes. McGovern fought like a fury every step of the fight, and had a K. O. punch as sudden and decisive as a rifle shot. George Dixon was another great hitter, and "Little Chocolate" was the idol of his day.

The greatest and most popular middleweights were Kid McCoy, Tommy Ryan, Stanley Ketchel, Billy "Thunderbolt" Papke, Frank Klaus, Sam Langford and Mike Gibbons—all men with speed and a punch.

Bob Was Humane.

Of the welters, Mysterious Billy Smith, Joe Walcott, Honey Mellody, all great hitters, were the men in the class whose names made lasting places in ring history. The present champion, Jack Britton, has been a great puncher, but is reaching the point where he likes to win by outboxing his opponents.

Bob Fitzsimmons spent years studying the efect of different blows. Bob had a theory of his own about the knockout.

"I 'ate to 'urt anyone," Bob used to tell me, "so I always look for a chance to land a clean knockout. No 'arm in that—not even a 'eadache when you wake up."

After all, boxing is the art by which an unarmed man can defend himself—and defense is best conducted by defeating the attacking party—which can't be accomplished by dancing around and tapping lightly "for points." The punch is the best thing in the game.

Tee, Fairway —and— Green

By Charles "Chick" Evans

(Copyright, 1922.)

The oldest golf course in the world is not the St. Andrew's course in Scotland, as many players think. Also, the oldest golf course comprised neither nine nor 18 holes, nor a division of either of those units. It had seven holes.

I do not know just why the customary 18 holes came to be decided upon as the right length for the golf links. As nearly as I can determine, the choice seems to have been rather due to an accident.

The Royal Blackheath course, the oldest golf club in the world, has always possessed just seven holes. Three rounds of the course are played on medal-play days. The course is very difficult and the scores look to be extremely high, until one recals that the medals rounds require three extra holes.

The famous Brestwick course originally had 12 holes, and there were three rounds of play over this course to determine championships. Many open championships have been contested there.

History of St. Andrews.

Old St. Andrews course has gone through a strange career, as to holes. It started with six holes. Then it added—and added still more—until 22 holes in all made up the course. Then four of the holes somehow were tossed in the discard, and the famous course became an 18-hole links. Apparently this process of adding and eliminating holes at St. Andrews was really the deciding factor in giving us, today, the regulation 18-hole course. I have never been able to find any other beginning of the standard that calsl for 18 holes, and undoubtedly this accidental allotment of holes at St. Andrews had a good deal to do with it.

We modern golfers are so accustomed to playing over modern courses of nine and 18 holes that few players, I dare say, have ever thought of any course having any other number of holes.

The smallest course I have ever been able to find an authentic record of is the original course at Musselburgh, which numbered five holes. The biggest golf course the world so far has boasted was the Montrose links, which at one time had 25 holes.

There may be golf courses in the United States and Canada of fewer than nine holes, but I have never heard of one. There used to be a course of 15 holes at Kenosha, Wis. The full round was completed by playing the first and second holes over again and a slightly lengthened fifteenth for the eighteenth hole.

Shorter Courses Abroad.

Shorter courses are more common in England and Scotland than on this side, because land for golfing purposes is not so scarce here as it is over there. The game here, especially in its earlier development, was also the favorite pastime of the wealthier people, and they were able to provide for themselves the very finest and most spacious courses. In Europe the poorer people have played golf for many years, and that factor brought into existence the great number of smaller courses. But even as golf stands on this side, in its present development, it is never hard for the club to find the required ground for the extra nine holes, and it is the common practice now for all new clubs, starting with nine holes, to plan at the outset for the time when the second time will be wanted.

I don't think it is absolutely essential for a club to stick to the nine or 18-hole rule at all. There is no hard and fast rule on this as far as I can learn. I see no reason why a club shouldn't have 30 or 40 holes on one course, or, perhaps, 15 or 20 holes—dependent entirely upon the ground available. My idea is that the club should put in all the good holes the space allows—the more holes the course has the greater the variety of play. If the club thus found itself with an odd number of greens—that is, odd as reckoned against nine and 18 holes—the Rules Committee could designate just how a full round of 18 holes, in tournament play, was to be accomplished.

If you know of any course with an odd number of holes I should like to hear of it.

Rules Committee Abolishes Goal After Touchdown

Football Elevens Hereafter Will Scrimmage From 5-Yard Line for Extra Points.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Abolition of the free trial for goal after touchdown, substitution therefor of a play from line of scrimmage on or back of the five-yard line of a defending eleven, and clarifying changes in the rules regarding shift plays, clipping from behind, and substitutions were announced today by the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee.

The action of the committee in abolishing the trial for goal after touchdown, the most radical step taken since the introduction of the forward pass in 1906, has been recommended by the Association of Football Coaches of American following its meeting here last December.

The revision had been demanded by a majority of football experts for years, and since the abolition two years ago of the punt-out, many of the leading coaches took up the campaign for abandonment of the play. They declared that it was useless as it stood and harmful to the game. It was understood that W. W. Roper, Princeton coach, suggested the play for the point from a line of scrimmage.

In regard to the change in the shift ruling, the opinion of some football men was that it would tend to put a damper on the playing style of some of the leading Western college elevens, especially that of Notre Dame, whose weird shifts have puzzled opposing elevens for several years.

Kickoff Regulation Altered.

The initial kickoff regulation was altered so that if the side winning the toss selects the goal, the other team has the choice of either kicking or receiving. Heretofore when one captain elected to defend a goal the other side was obliged to kick off.

The darkness rule was altered to allow the referee, with the consent of both captains, to decide between halves to shorten the fourth period or both periods in the second half. Heretofore a shortening of the time previously agreed upon could be made only before the game began.

Rules governing substitutions were changed so that a player cannot return to the field in the same half in which he is removed. It is not necessary that he should return at the beginning of a period.

The "one man in motion" regulation was rewritten so that any player leaving the scrimmage line before play begins, must be at least five yards behind the line when the ball is snapped.

Numbering Not Made Mandatory.

Among the rulings approved by the committee was one that officials should whistle as soon as convinced that the ball had crossed the goal line, or, in the case of forward passes, when the pass is completed behind the line.

The committee decided to have interpretations of rules made by the General Interpretations Committee printed Sept. 1 each year, and that thereafter interpretations for officials would be made only upon request, their formal aproval or rejection to be made later at the annual meeting of the Rules Committee.

No action was taken on the proposal to make the numbering of players mandatory.

The personnel of the Rules Committee was not changed.

E. K. Hall was re-elected chairman and Walter Camp secretary and rules editor.

Local Coaches Favor Change.

George L. Rider, Washington University coach, and Steve O'Rourke, footbal mentor at St. Louis U., announced themselves in favor of abolishing the goal after touchdown.

"I consider the action of the Rules Committee quite an improvement," said Rider. "Often a team which played a far better game throughout, lost at the last minute by the kick. This is done away with now. I always have opposed the kick."

"In my opinion, it is a much needed change," commented O'Rourke. "A new field for scoring is opened up. Now a coach can get his head working and have his men score the point in a number of ways, instead of just one."

John F. Meehan, Fred Luehring, Minnesota; H. H. Huebel, Pacific Coast Association; Ewald O. Stiehm, Indiana; Claud Thornhill, Stanford; T. E. D. Jones, Wisconsin; Dr. John W. Wilce, Ohio State, and Howard Jones, Iowa, were some of those in favor of the change, while Benny Owen, Oklahoma; Fielding Yost, Michigan, and "Shy" Huntington, Oregon, were against the change.

Hutchison Sets Record.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., March 11.—Jock Hutchison, British open golf champion, broke the record of 71 on the Idle Hour Club course today, making the 18 holes in 69. Hutchison and Jim Barnes, American open golf champion, won their match of 36 holes from Bobby Jones of Atlanta, and Jake Oke, former Canadian champion, by 11 up.

Hutchison, Barnes and Jones played a sensational game over a rainwashed course. One of the features of the match was a drive by Jones for 300 yards reaching the green on his next shot, a distance of 275 yards, and chalking up a birdie. Hutchison registered seven "birdies" during the match.

St. Leos Vanquish St. Matthew Team; Play Henses Today

Qualify for Final Series by Scoring 4-0 Victory—Two Players Put Out for Fighting.

St. Leos and Henses Play First Game of Title Series Today

THE St. Leos and Henses of the Sherman Park division will start a three-game series to decide the Municipal soccer championship at Fairground No. 2 this afternoon. It is expected that the remaining two tilts will be played during the week. The Henses eliminated the Schumachers, 2—1, in the semifinal last Sunday. An admission of 25 cents will be charged to the reserved section at today's game.

The winner of the local championship will get a chance to play the Memphis title winners, who will be brought here for a series, March 25 and 26.

The St. Leos, champions of Fairground No. 2, went into the final in the Municipal Soccer Association championship series, by defeating the St. Matthews, title winners of Fairground No. 4, 4 to 0, in a replay game at Fairground yesterday. Last Sunday, the elevens battled close to two hours to a 1—1 tie. About 4500 were present.

In the game yesterday, the Leos completely outplayed then rivals, the St. Matthews showing to advantage only in spots. Klosterman's athletes displayed perfect teamwork throughout.

The game was halted for about 15 minutes in the first period because of a fist fight, which started between two players and was then taken up by spectators. Kinealy of the Leos and Dalton of the St. Matthews were the participants in the fistic encounter. Both were ejected from the game. Rodowe Abeken announced that he would make a decision before the start of today's final whether Kinealy would be barred from the game.

Drew Scores on Penalty.

The St. Leos gained a lead of 1 to 0 in the first half, the lone goal coming after about 30 minutes of play as the result of a penalty, awarded because Humpert handled the ball in the penalty area. Drew was selected to make the kick and he made good with a low shot into the corner of the net.

No more scoring came until after 20 minutes of the second period had elapsed. Then Drew, standing 10 feet out, took a pass from Jim Burke. His shot hit the upright and bounded into the net.

About 15 minutes later, Bub, who had replaced Jim Burke on the forward line, sent in the third point during a scrimmage in front of the Matthew goal. It was a boot that went over "Goalie" Bogy's head, he having no chance to save. McGann scored on a pass from Drew shortly before the end of the game.

The lineups:

St. Leos (4).	Position.	St. Matthews (0)
Walkenford	Goal	Bogy
Hitchcock	Fullback	Morehauser
P. Burke	Fullback	Humpert
Kinealy	Halfback	Brennan
Clark	Halfback	Lange
Farmer	Halfback	Sheller
Drew	Forward	Hensieck
McMahon	Forward	Short
J. Burke-Bub	Forward	McCarthy
Fitzgerald	Forward	Dalton
McGann	Forward	Roach

Goals scored—Drew 2, Bub, McGann.

Time of halves—45 minutes. Referee—M. Byrne. Timer, R. Wall.

U. S. GOLF AUTHORITIES NOT LIKELY TO PROHIBIT USE OF THE RIBBED CLUB

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 11.—News that Canada had revolted from Great Britain so far as the British rule against the use of rib faced golf clubs is concerned was received with much interest among the Chicago golfers, because of the fact that Jock Hutchison, professional at Glenview Golf Club, won the British open title last summer using such clubs for the last time that they were permitted on British courses.

The United States Golf Association is still considering what action, if any, it will take on rib mashies while the Western Golf Association has virtually decided not to interfere with their use. The rib faced club came into wide use after its introduction among American players because of the facility with which a ball could be pitched dead to the green. This type of club, however, is not essential to the shot, Robert A. Gardner, among others, using a straight faced iron to accomplish the feat perfectly.

It was after Walter J. Travis had won the British amateur championship for the only time it was ever captured by an American that the Royal and Ancient Golf Club barred the Schenectady putter, with which Travis virtually won the title by running his balls dead to the hole from almost any reasonable distance. The British disbarment of this putter was not followed in America where the club is still allowed. British golf authorities also took cognizance of a crutch shaped putter used by former Champion Chick Evans, allowing it to pass after the center of gravity had been shifted toward the head.

Chicago golf professionals and club makers expressed the opinion after hearing of the Canadian decision, that the rib faced irons would not be barred on this side of the Atlantic.

Scullin Eleven 50 Per Cent Stronger Than Last Season

Forward Line Which Will Oppose Todds for National Soccer Title Next Sunday Is Best That Has Represented This City in Many Campaigns.

By Herman Wecke.

When the Todd Shipyard F. C. of Brooklyn opposes the Scullin F. C. of this city in the national soccer championship game here Sunday the Easterners will oppose an eleven that in local circles is considered at least 50 per cent stronger than the combination which represented St. Louis in the finals a year ago.

There is not a single department in which the Scullins have not strengthened. Last year when the teams were East and lost to the Robins, the present Todd team, 4—2, Joe Hennessey, a good halfback, had to be shifted to goal at the last minute because of the illness of the regular tender. This season Harry Oellerman will be between the uprights. That he is a mighty good man is evinced by the fact that in five cup contests only one goal has been scored against him.

This season's Scullin forward line is the best that has been seen in action here in many a year. Emmett Mulvey, Jimmy Brannigan, Elmer Schwarz, Cliff Brady and Charley Bechtold form a combination with plenty of speed, pass-work and ability to score goals.

Schwarz Greatly Improved.

If the Todds this season expect to see in Schwarz the same kind of a player they opposed last year, they will be sadly mistaken. Before the final of 1921, Schwarz played only three games after an absence from the game for two years due to an operation for appendicitis. This season he is going at top speed and to date is the leading goal scorer in the St. Louis League, with 12 to his credit.

After the Western final with the Caledonians, Referee Johnson of Chicago paid Schwarz a high compliment, asserting he was one of the best forwards in the West, and that he could do what few center men could do well—trap a ball. Schwarz also is tricky with the sphere, a good dribbler and rarely passes to a man who is covered. Cliff Brady and Brannigan, the inside men, are dangerous when inside the penalty area, while Bechtold and Mulvey are speedy outside men.

Bechtold probably will be the fastest man on the field when the two teams battle. He is a former Western A. A. U. sprinter, capable of doing 10 flat for the 100-yard dash. He still possesses his great speed and knows how to handle the ball. He packs a wicked boot and can make a lot of trouble for any goalkeeper.

Halfback Line Stronger.

While the Scullin halfback line has lost a mighty fine player in Tommy O'Hanlon, due to an injured knee, this department has not suffered. In fact, Nolan, Zarchel and Hennessey form a stronger trio than Burke, Zarchel and O'Hanlon did last year. Tate Brady and Bentley at fullback are as strong as Brady and Oberle last year. Bently, a youngster, owns one of the heaviest boots seen here in years.

The Todds will also show changes in the lineup. However most of them will be in the backfield. The forward line is identical to the one which opposed Tate Brady's eleven a year ago. Smith and Whitehead at fullback and Fryer and Campbell, halfbacks, are the only new men on the Todd team. Campbell is well known to local followers of the sport as he has played here several times with visiting teams.

The probable lineup of the two teams compared with last year:

SCULLINS.			TODDS.
1921.	1922.	Position.	1921.	1922.
Hennessey	Ooellerman	Goal	Renzulli	Renzulli
T. Brady	T. Brady	Left back	Brownlee	Whitehead
Oberle	Bentley	Right back	Sundberg	Smith
Burke	Nolan	Left half	Irvine	Irvine
Zarschel	Zarschel	Center half	Clark	Campbell
O'Hanlon	Hennessey	Right half	Beardsworth	Fryer
McCarthy	Mulvey	Outside left	Sweeney	Sweeney
Brannigan	Brannigan	Inside left	Hosie	Hosie
Bechtold	Schwarz	Center	Ratican	Ratican
Schwarz	C. Brady	Inside right	McGuire	McGuire
Nolan	Bechtold	Outside right	McKelvey	McKelvey

Doyle Second in Florida Tourney

George Kerrigan Plays Sensational Golf to Nose Out St. Louisan.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 11.—George Kerrigan, Saransworth, N. J., won the Florida open golf title at the Florida Country Club here today with a total score of 297. Pat Doyle of St. Louis, with 298, was a runner-up, while Gene Sarazen, Pittsburg, Southern open title holder and Cyril Walker, Englewood, N. J., with 299, were tied for third honors.

Kerrigan, who was five down at the end of yesterday's play, took the lead in this morning's round with a birdie two on number 17 and an eagle two on No. 18. In the afternoon play he was tied with Doyle to the seventeenth hole when a par three and four for the last two holes netted him 76.

As Florida champion, Kerrigan displaces Jim Barnes, who did not enter the tournament.

Doyle led the field through the first two rounds of play, and with Cyril Walker, one stroke behind, drew the largest gallery for the first round today. Walker's chances went glimmering, however, when he took 40 for the morning play.

Walter Hagen of Detroit, professional champion, after a disappointing start yesterday, followed by a noticeable improvement this morning, fell back in the rut in the afternoon, turning in a card of 82 for a total of 308.

Other cards were: Mike Brady, Detroit, 304; Tom Kerrigan, Mount Vernon, N. Y., 307; J. Rogers, Dayton, O., 309; Capt. Clarke, Huntington, W. Va., 312.

SOCCER LEAGUE CLOSES SEASON WITH 2 GAMES AT HIGH SCHOOL FIELD

The 1921-22 season of the St. Louis Soccer League will be brought to a close this afternoon with a double-header at High School Field. The De Andreis eleven opposes the Screw Co., while the champion Scullins oppose the Ben Millers in the final tilt of the campaign. First game at 2 o'clock.

Box seat tickets for the national title game next Sunday between the Scullins and Todd Shipyard eleven of Brooklyn will be placed on sale at High School Field this afternoon. General admission tickets will not be available until the day of the contest.

NAVY BOXERS WINNERS OVER CANADIAN TEAM

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 11.—Naval Academy boxers were victorious in an international boxing tournament here today, defeating a combination team composed of representatives of McGill, Toronto, and Queens Universities, of Canada, 5 bouts to 2. All of the bouts were marked by clever boxing, heavy punching and clean sportsmanship. Navy men, on the whole, were more rugged fighters and able to stand much more punishment. Toronto representatives were the better fighters of the Canadians and captured the only two bouts for the visitors.

Decidedly the fastest mill of all was the 125 event, in which Gray, Toronto, scored a technical knockdown over Sebald, navy, in the third round. Black, Toronto, proved himself a clever fighter at 160 pounds, winning from Capt. Zotti, Navy, after an extra round. The Canadian showed great cleverness and finished much stronger than the navy leader.

Davis Cup Rivals Of 25 Years Ago May Battle Again

British Challengers of 1900 Think They Are Better Today Than U. S. Team.

Mlle. Lenglen Enters Nice Doubles Tourney

By the Associated Press.

NICE, MARCH 11.

MLLE SUZANNE LENGLEN has sent in her name as an entry for the Nice mixed doubles tennis tournament which opens Monday, but declined to enter the women's singles.

This will be the first time Mlle. Lenglen has participated in a tournament since she was defeated at Forest Hills last summer by Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory.

NEW YORK, March 11.—It is now up to the English Davis Cup team of 1900 to say whether there will be a return match with the team that represented the United States in that contest; for Dwight F. Davis, Holcombe Ward and Malcolm D. Whitman, the Americans who played on the cup team that year, have agreed to play.

The proposal originated in a statement by H. Roper Barrett, who was a member of the team from the British Isles, to the effect that his team could defeat the Americans if they should meet this year.

Julian S. Myrick, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, put Mr. Barrett's challenge before Messrs. Davis, Ward and Whitman, who promptly accepted it. Mr. Myrick has forwarded to H. Anthony Sabelli, secretary of the British Lawn Tennis Association, a formal acceptance of Mr. Barrett's challenge, in the following letter:

Americans Eager to Play.

"As you are doubtless aware, the Jan. 14 issue of Lawn Tennis and Badminton had a paragraph quoting Mr. H. Roper Barrett as follows:

> Too much is made, I think, of the modern fiery service; it rarely lasts for long. Where is McLoughlin's service today I wonder, too, in this connection, how the team of Americans A. W. Gore, E. D. Black and myself met in the first Davis Cup at Longwood in 1900 would fare against the three of us today? I am almost persuaded to wager a large sum of money—only the L. T. A. won't let me—that Malcolm Whitman, Dwight Davis and Holcombe Ward would not beat us if they came to Wimbledon this year.

"Mr. Barrett's suggestion for a match between the British Isles and American Davis cup teams of 1900 possesses so many possibilities that might be utilized for the benefit of the sport that I have talked it over with various members of the association at some length. I also took occasion to communicate Mr. Barrett's ideas to Dwight F. Davis, Holcombe Ward and Malcolm B. Whitman, who were the members of the team representing this country in that contest, to see how the idea appealed to them.

Must Be Played in U. S.

"They all favor it and will be very glad to play the team that represented the British Isles in 1900 a return match this summer. Unfortunately Mr. Davis is in the Government's service at Washington and cannot secure leave for the length of time necessary to make a trip to England. He is, however, willing and able to play in this country as are the other members of the team.

"Our suggestion would be to schedule a match at some club near New York, so that there would be a minimum of traveling required and play it probably during August. In view of the fact that Mr. Barrett's 'challenge' appeared in your official organ, I have deemed it proper to address the acceptance to you, with the request that you communicate it to Mr. Barrett and the other members of the team, and inform me at the earliest possible moment of their decision.

"Needless to say, we all regard this proposal of Mr. Barrett's as being extremely interesting, not only because of the possibilities in tennis that it indicates, but also because of the spirit of sportsmanship that promted it. I shall be very grateful, therefore, if you can let me have the decision by cable so that the necessary arrangements may be completed promptly."

SPORT SALAD

By L. C. Davis

OH, MAILLES!

THERE was a young man from Versailles,
Whose weakness was chicken pot
pailles;
When I asked him if he Could eat two or three,
He said, "I don't know but I'll trail-les.

TOUGH LUCK.

LAST night as I lay on my pillow,
Just shortly before I awoke,
I dreamed I had nine million dollars,
And when I woke up I was broke.

MODEST.

MAN wants but little here below,
Nor wants that little long;
Just let him have a wad of dough
And he will get along.

SWELL CHANCE.

Speaking of dough we hope the service boys won't spend all of that bonus in one place.

THE BROKERS.

THE brokers that broke in the spring, tra, la,
Don't seem to be getting the breaks,
The customers don't do a thing,
tra, la,
But claim they've been given the sting, tra, la,
And say they are nothing but fakes.
And that's what I mean when I say or I sing,
Oh, bother the brokers that broke in the spring,
And a flock of tra, la, la's.

SHORT ORDER.

We note the following entry in a recent six-day bike race: Eaton-Egg: American-Swiss.

What has become of the old-fashioned hero worshiper that used to go to the station to see the boys depart for the training camp?

Cleveland has a pitcher named Pott. If names are good for anything Pitcher Pott ought to be able to put 'em over the pan.

"One Cent Defunct Bank's Sole Asset." Head line. Slim pickings for a receiver there.

John McGraw has 70 men in training at San Antonio with several back counties to be heard from. Looks like 135th Division.

NO CHANCE.

One thing about Ens, his name will never be curtailed in the box score. There's only one man we know of that has him tied and that's Jakey Atz.

"Giants Will Work Out With Snowballs." Head line. Large doings in the Hot Stove League.

Johnny Buff has a poisoned thumb. Tough luck, too, as he was just getting ready to stick in his thumb and pull out a plum.

It is reported that Jack Dempsey will fight in Mexico City on the Fourth of July. President Obregon had better start the mints working over time turning out Mexican dollars.

POLICE CLUB SHOOTERS GET A SCORE OF 1014

In the tenth match in the United States Revolver Association Indoor League, the St. Louis Police Revolver Club made a total of 1014 out of a possible 1250 points. Following are the scores: Dr. D. C. Todd 207, S. L. Beecher 207, William J. P. Rich 202, S. E. Sears 202, William F. Linne 196. Total 1014.

Following are scores of men who did not qualify: Dr. G. B. Godfrey 190, William C. Spencer 185, H. Alexander 184, Dr. M. R. Moore 174, Willis Wells 125. Total 858.

Other members of the club made the following scores in practice: W. Kull 72½, P. J. Burger 73, E. C. Lips 68 1-3, F. C. Krug 66, F. W. Greene 65, Val. Fynn 63, A. Kroupa 60½, E. S. Hager 60½, J. W. Beeler 59½, C. W. Fullgraft 59½, Dr. F. H. Krug 54½, Fred Jamason 49, W. Siebert 40½.

PIKER SWIMMING POOL TO BE OPENED THURSDAY

The Pikers' new swimming pool is now complete and will be formally dedicated Thursday night with a brief ceremony followed by a water carnival. The water carnival will include racing and diving and will be participated in by some of St. Louis' best swimmers.

The pool is the gift of Mrs. Newton R. Wilson and was built at a cost of over $50,000.

The formal opening will be by invitation. The carnival will be repeated next Saturday night when the doors will be open to the public.

Spring Football Work at St. Louis Starts This Week

Coach O'Rourke Expects 75 Candidates to Take Part in Early Work.

A call for spring football training was issued yesterday by Coach Steve O'Rourke of St. Louis University to more than 75 students who have expressed a desire to represent the Billiken school on the gridiron during the 1922 season. The coach notified all the backfield and end men of the 1921 squad to report March 15, and the seventeen backfield stars of the past year, together with all the new material, to put in an appearance, March 17.

That this new material will be a formidable array is promised by the Billiken mentor. Among the newcomers are several well-known local high school players as well as the entire 1921 freshman eleven, which repeatedly gave last year's varsity severe tests.

The spring practice will consist only of light work. No scrimmage work will be indulged in. Instructions in passing and kicking, together with the fundamental work, will consume the majority of the time.

O'Rourke stated that he wished to have the Billikens make an early start next fall in order to be in condition for the hard test which will face them October 7, when they meet Notre Dame.

Billikens Change Schedule.

Athletic Director Hermans announced yesterday that the Blue and White have been forced to make a change in the schedule due to the objection of President O'Connor of St. Louis University, who strongly opposed the game scheduled with Loyola University of New Orleans. President O'Connor said that the trip would take the students away from their studies at a time, Nov. 11, when the course of study would be in full swing and would be detrimental to the scholastic record of the men. Valparaiso, Arkansas Aggies, and De Paul University of Chicago, are seeking open dates.

Coach O'Rourke will be assisted by Freshman Coach McGinley, Capt. Finnegan of the 1921 squad and High School Coach Savage.

Activity in track has been renewed at the Billiken institution. The Blue and White has accepted an invitation to enter a relay team in the Drake Carnival April 26 and to send a team which will compete in the 100-yard dash, 220 dash, mile run and relay races at the Southern A. A. U. games at Little Rock April 21. Coach O'Rourke also announced that arrangements for a dual meet with the Rolla School of Mines at Rolla would be scheduled.

Collegiate baseball has been relegated to the rear ranks by the St. Louisans. Departmental leagues will be organized and an effort to revive the national game will be made by encouraging every student to participate in the sport. A representative varsity team will be selected from these leagues and a short [illegible] made during the latter part of May.

83 PER CENT OF AUTOS IN WORLD ARE IN U. S.

Of 12,588,949 Motor Vehicles, 10,505,660 Are Operated in America.

NEW YORK, March 11.—More than 83 per cent of the 12,588,949 motor vehicles in use in the world are in the United States. With 10,505,660 in this country, and 961,030 in the other English-speaking countries, there are left only 1,122,030 for the rest of the earth.

Divided into continental classifications, the world registrations of motor vehicles are: North and South America, 11,162,110; Europe, 1,110,996; Asia, 134,730; Oceanica, 125,281, and Africa, 55,832. Registration in Spanish-speaking countries aggregates 241,584.

These statistics were gathered by automotive industries. Others from the same source show that countries in which motor vehicles are most numerous are, in order: United States, 10,505,660; Great Britain, 497,582; Canada, 463,448; France, 236,146; Germany, 91,384; Argentina, 75,000; Australia, 73,900; Italy, 53,000; India, 45,983; Dutch East Indies, 45,000; Spain, 37,560; New Zealand, 37,500; Russia, 35,000; Belgium, 33,200; Union of South Africa, 26,468; Brazil, 25,000; Mexico, 25,000; Denmark, 22,260; Cuba, 20,000; Switzerland, 18,011; Austria, 16,350; Norway, 14,340; Sweden, 14,250; Holland, 13,500; Philippine Islands, 12,381; Japan, 12,260; Algeria, 12,000; Poland, 10,700, and Chile, 10,000.

Motor Vehicles Everywhere.

There are motor vehicles everywhere, however. The Malay states have 8000; Turkey, 5500; Egypt, 5084; Czecho-Slovakia, 4133; the Gold states, 3500; Morocco, 2500; Siam, 2187; Dominican Republic, 1800; Hawaii, 1500; British Guinea, 1050; Canary Islands, 881; Newfoundland, 600; British West Africa, [illegible]66; Portuguese East Africa, 400; French West Africa, 230; Madagascar, 159; Italian Somaliland, 66, and even Monrovia has 3.

The province of Ontario, with 200,900, has nearly half the total for Canada, while the prairie province of Saskatchewan, with 63,370, leads the old province of Quebec by 4000.

Although Argentina has a total of 75,000 cars and trucks, the city of Buenos Aires, with a population of 1,800,000, has only 15,000, nearly half of which are taxicabs.

The total registration of 497,582 for Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, shows one motor vehicle for every 96 persons. France has only one for every 152 persons.

Mexico was the only country which imported more automobiles in 1921 than in 1920, and careful estimates show that its automotive registration increased nearly 50 per cent last year.

Auxiliary to Railroads.

Porto Rico is using motor vehicles to supply transportation not furnished by railroads. The development of bus lines on the island has reached large proportions. The use of the motor bus also is a recent development in Salvador.

Poland, with a population of 24,000,000, has only 10,700 motor vehicles, a large percentage of which are in Warsaw, Lodz and Posen. The free city of Danzig has 1100.

Bulgaria, whose transportation system was wrecked during the war, has only 1140 cars and trucks for its 5,000,000 population.

The increase in the number of automobiles in Belgium since the war has been almost 100 per cent and the country now has one automobile for every 230 inhabitants.

The Russian army operates 1500 of the 8500 motor vehicles in Rumania, and there are 3400 in Bucharest alone.

China, with 60,000 miles of well-constructed courier roads and a population of 400,000,000, has a motor vehicle registration of only 8150. Shanghai has 4670 of these, and Pekin 1127.

Poor Roads in Japan.

Approximately 7000 of the 12,260 automobiles and trucks in the Japanese Empire are in the ctiy of Tokio. Poor roads have restricted the sale of motor vehicles in Japan.

Bombay has 10,288 and Calcutta 7650 of the 45,983 in British India.

Half the 8000 motor cars in the Malay States are in Singapore.

Practically all the motor vehicles in Arabia are used in the city of Aden.

Palestine, the cradle of Christianity, has 536 cars and trucks. It now is possible to motor from Jerusalem to Damascus.

In comparison with the other countries of the world the density of the motor population in the United States is startling. Final revised registration figures show one for every 10.2 persons. Iowa has one for every 5.28; South Dakota one for every 5.38; Nebraska one for every 5.49; Colorado one for every 5.78, and Kansas one for every 6.14.

New York still leads in total registration, with 812,031. The other leading states, in order, are: Ohio, 720,622; Pennsylvania, 689,589; California, 673,830; Illinois, 670,434; Michigan, 477,037; Texas, 467,616, and Iowa, 460,528. The only other state to exceed the 40,0000 mark was Indiana, with 400,342.

There was an actual registration gain of 1,573,202 in the United States in 1921 over 1920, or 17.6 per cent. The largest percentage of gain was in Florida. Five states gained more than 100,000 in registrations last year. They were New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, California and Illinois.

New York Dry Goods Man Dies.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Frank W. Burton, senior member of the cotton frabics house of Burton Bros & Co., died at his Park avenue home today of bright's disease after an illness of two months. He was born in New York City 67 years ago.

MAIL CARRIER, HIT BY AUTO THAT PASSED CAR, DIES

John L. Lister Expires at City Hospital After Injuries Received Last Wednesday.

John L. Lister, 51 years old, a mail carrier residing at the Laclede Hotel, died at the city hospital last night of injuries suffered Wednesday at 1 p. m., when he was struck by a touring car of the Lincoln Motor Car Co., 5187 Delmar boulevard, at Thirteenth and Market streets. He suffered fractures of his skull and nose and scalp lacerations.

The car was being driven east behind a Laclede street car by Arthur Kirk, a negro. Witnesses said that Lister ran in front of the street car at about the time Kirk decided to pass it. Consequently, as Lister cleared the street car he came into the path of the automobile.

Kirk was arrested and released on bond. His rearrest for the Coroner has been ordered.

12,000 Army Officers Favored.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Favorable report was voted by the House Military Affairs Committee today on the bill to authorize the War Department to reorganize the army's office personnel without cutting the number below 12,000. The action of the committee was taken to presage a hot fight on the army appropriation bill which as it will be reported to the House Monday provides pay allowance sufficient only for the maintenance of an army of 115,000 men and 11,000 officers.

DECLARES ONLY BUSINESS LIKE AMERICA CAN SAVE EUROPE

Former Kerensky Aid Says Only by Compelling Debt Payment Can Imperialism Be Eliminated.

A United States, impartially cruel, compelling payment of all debts due this nation, alone can save European countries from themselves, Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, former secretary to the Minister of Labor under the Kerensky government in Russia, told members of the Town Club yesterday in an address on "What Is Wrong With Europe."

"Only in this way can imperialism, strengthened instead of stamped out, as popularly believed, by the war, be put down and the resources of the countries turned from supporting great standing armies to producing sanely for mankind," the speaker declared.

"Europe—I mean political Europe—is not worth saving, because its governing classes, its bureaucracies, no matter how called, have stifled the individual and crushed the human conscience. Its political leaders plan only to build up power to extend their sway at the expense of other nations."

France, fearful of England, Germany and Russia, was pictured as plotting to gain an insidious strength in the Near and Far East sufficiently strong to keep it safe from attack by other Powers, while it exploited whom it could.

"Germany is the luckiest country in the world, because its people alone are sick of war," said Dr. Zilboorg. "Still, I expect it to play a principal part in the next great struggle, probably aligned with Russia, against England, France or Japan."

Unknown Dead Dramatized in Bataille's Last Play

Poilu Who Gave Life for Ideal Makes Pilgrimage Through Paris but Finds No Idealism and Returns to Tomb Disappointed.

By LINCOLN EYRE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
47 Avenue de L'Opera.

PARIS, March 11.—Henri Bataille's newest play, produced shortly before his death, is called "La Chair Humaine," and parts of it make the "human flesh" of the critics creep most unpleasantly.

Primarily Bataille sought to show the minor evils of war, the petty weaknesses and cowardices hiding behind the living rampart on the firing line. His argument, however, reveals little that is new, and is politically rather than dramatically important, until at the last he resurects the Unknown Poilu and sends him forth on a pilgrimage through Paris.

How painfully the soldier who gave his life for an ideal is disappointed by the utter absence of that idealism, how thoroughly counterfelt he finds his statesmen's promises to make of his land "a place fit for heroes," is portrayed with all the brutal force of poetic realism. In the end the Poilu returns to his tomb under the Arc de Triomphe, having abandoned hope of better things.

A new production at the Follies-Bergere is to Paris what Mr. Ziegfeld's annual Follies are to New York. The newness of a Folies spectacle, however, is chiefly "nu," and this one achieves only what might be called a bare success. Its title is, translated, "Follies Upon Follies," the display of nudity is probably no more extravagant than in previous offerings at the Folies, but has become considerably more intimate. When a flock of damsels whose acquaintance with clothing is no greater than Mother Eve's promenade nonchalantly along a plate-glass gangway, running along the rim of the balcony, and a "movable orgy" of nudity mounted on a special platform is pushed out across the footlights to within arm's length of the bald-headed row, the Folies producers would appear to have fairly outstripped themselves.

Curiously enough the real hit of the show is the American dancer, Nina Payne, who in this frenzy of fleshliness is somehow reminiscent of a Salvation Army lass in a Tenderloin dance hall—though on Broadway her costumes would seem quite sufficiently insufficient. Miss Payne performs an Egyptian dance that is remarkable only for the lithe grace with which she glides about a stage otherwise peopled almost exclusively by graceless albeit shapely nakedness. Yet because what she does represents artistic effort she stands out like a white light from the shadows of sensuality surrounding her.

Nude Men Also.

It is fashionable nowadays in Paris to display nude men as well as nude women, and the Folies is well stocked with them, in both whites and blacks. The style was started by Jean Borlin, star of the Swedish ballet which has been running here for some weeks, and carried a step further by Paul Swan, the American, who after private appearances in the homes of impressionable society matrons is presenting his dance tableaux "The Apollo of New York" at matinees in a small theater. Borlin's work was favorably received, in general, though some of his undraped demonstrations provoked whistling from the galleries—the traditional French sign of disapproval.

Paul Swan is scarcely so successful, however, the critics in describing him using such terms as "beautiful as a goddess, for he has a woman's figure," and proposing the organization of a league against nude male dancers. It remains to be seen what Parisian morality, which will stand a great deal from clothesless ladies but prefers the sterner sex properly clad, will do about the black and white chorus men in the Folies.

Play by Children.

Stage excesses have found a resolute antagonist in Mme. Alfred Machard who has changed the Theater Albert I. into the "Theater of Dreams" and is presenting there a "musical and dramatic tale" played by children for children—and grown-ups, too. The Machard company, in which there are only half a dozen adults, the remainder being mostly youngsters just able to lisp, has had a veritable triumph in its initial undertaking.

The play deals with a little orphan who has been given a lottery ticket good for 1,000,000 francs, and has it stolen from her by a school mistress. At 5 years of age, the golden-haired infant who plays the heroine is a miracle of stagecraft. Comedy and tragedy alike seem to come as natural to her as to Bernhardt—though apparently she doesn't realize it. There are a dozen other youngsters in the cast whose acting is amazingly good.

Paris is flocking to the "Theater of Dreams" just as a relief from the interminable series of sex comedies with which the boulevard stage is afflicted, but whether the enterprise will attain permanency is a debatable point.

VISITORS TO BATTLEFIELDS FAR SHORT OF EXPECTATIONS

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, March 11.—That the battlefields of France have lost their interest for Frenchmen is indicated by tourist agencies statistics. Since the armistice only 150,000 French men and women have availed themselves of the ample facilities provided by French and other organizations to see for themselves the scenes and ruins of the gigantic warfront stretching from the sea to the Vosges.

Directly the war was over elaborate arrangements for visiting the battlefields by train and automobile were made by the well known tourist agencies and also by new agencies tempted into the business by the belief that there would be a rush to see the historic fields of Verdun, Arras, Rheims, the Somme, Ypres, etc., and of former soldiers attracted by a natural desire to revisit the scenes of their exploits. Railroads arranged excursions and the most remote towns and villages were reached by the flood of prospectuses poured out.

The results, from the outset, were far from realizing even moderate expectations. However, of the number of people who in 1919 visited the battlefields 75 per cent were French. In 1920 and 1921 the figures dropped to barely a third of those for 1919, and only a quarter of the visitors were French. So the special trains have been taken off, one by one, the minor tours and circuits suppressed, and gradually the information bureaus in the battlefield centers are closing their doors.

LESS THAN HALF OF FEDERAL INCOME TAX RETURNS ARE IN Penalty Will Be Assessed in Three Days Unless More Than 67,000 File Statements.

Less than half the 135,000 Federal income tax returns that are due by midnight Wednesday had been received at the close of business yesterday. The number of returns to be made is much larger in proportion than ever so near the expiration of time for filing. Unless the more than 67,000 make their returns within the next three days they will be subject to a penalty of 25 per cent of the tax due the Government.

With delinquency the entire tax becomes due and payable immediately and for each month it remains unpaid additional penalties of 1 per cent are assessed. Collector Moore said last night his office would remain open until 10 o'clock tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday nights to accommodate the tardy taxpayers. All the deputy collectors will be on duty to assist the taxpayers in making out their returns.

Returns deposited in the mail by midnight Wednesday will be accepted without penalty.

Hope Held Out to Legion's Jobless.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 11.—Lemuel Bolles, national adjutant of the American Legion and in charge of its campaign to relieve unemployment, in a statement issued here tonight declared "extraordinary" efforts must be exerted to keep jobless men from actual suffering in the near future. He added that the legion's program expected to result in employment within 30 days for 500,000 veterans of the world war.

WILL OF AUGUST NASSE UPHELD

Compromise With Contestants, However, Said to Have Been Made.

The will of August Nasse, a wholesale grocer, who died March 27, 1920, was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge Taylor after formal proof of the making of the will was submitted. A contest had been instituted by Nasse's sister, Miss Theresa Nasse, who has since died; a brother, Eugene Nasse, four nephews and four nieces, alleging that the testator was not of sound mind when he executed the will and that he was influenced by his sister, Mrs. Matilde Hirzel, 2323 Lafayette avenue, widow of Circuit Judge Rudolph Hirzel of St. Louis County.

Nasse left his estate, valued at $150,000, to Mrs. Hirzel, with whom he lived. He was a widower. Oscar E. Buder, executor of the will, was a defendant with Mrs. Hirzel. It was said the contest was compromised out of court and that the plaintiffs received $5000 in the settlement. Nasse was 80 years old. Mrs. Hirzel denied that she influenced her brother. Witnesses to the will testified Nasse was of sound mind when he executed the document.

DEPUTY SHERIFF KILLS TWO MEN WITH ONE BULLET

By the Associated Press.

FORT SMITH, Ark., March 11.—A single bullet from the gun of Deputy Sheriff Ray McClure of Leflore County killed Roy Price, aged 17, and fatally wounded Fred Evans, 25, at a dance at Panama, 15 miles from Fort Smith, at 10 o'clock last night. Evans was brought to a hospital here and died this afternoon.

McClure claims the two men had been drinking and after he had placed them under arrest they refused to go to the Panama jail. McClure says he jabbed his gun [illegible] who was on the other side of [illegible] of shooting. At that moment Price, who was on the other side of Evans, dropped to his knees just as the gun exploded. The bullet passed through the body of Evans and struck Price just above the right eye, killing him almost instantly. McClure is unable to explain why or how he pulled the trigger of his pistol.

Women, "The World's Moral Guardians", Must Put Morality In Politics, Says Mrs. Astor

American-Born Woman, Who Sits in English Parliament, Holds Double Standard for Sexes Is Wrong and That a Single One Must Be Established.

By VISCOUNTESS ASTOR.

First Woman to Sit in English Parliment Though She Is American Born.

THE average citizen has an idea that the less women know about life the beter they are and that the moment they go into politics they begin to see life and so lose their bloom and become somehow worse. This is one of the reasons why so many men hate to think of women in politics and why so many women are apathetic about it.

It is true enough that you begin to see life when you go into politics. I know that myself. I have found out more about the corruption and vice of the world since I took up my public work than I had dreamt of before. I know now that vice is often more a money-making concern than the spontaneous outbreak of human nature. I know that the greater part of it is organized callously and cold-bloodedly for profit, and that many of our young people are led into lives of vice in order that other people may make money. If this knowledge be disgusting and repulsive for women, I say it is nevertheless necessary for them to have it, for when they really know and understand these things they will tolerate them no longer.

But how are you going to remedy this state of affairs? Can it be done by law? You hear men saying again and again that people cannot be made moral and decent and healthy-minded by legislation, and no doubt there is some truth in it.

Character Alone Counts.

In the last resort, of course, it is individual character which counts and which keeps people good or lets them go to the bad, but there are many things which are of importance to this matter which the law does affect, and these things ought to be very carefully watched by women now that they are getting the chance to have an influence on political affairs. It is the laws and the by-laws which regulate the amount of order and propriety in the streets.

The public can control the police administration, the state of parks and open spaces, the kind of cinemas and public entertainments and the extent of drinking. This last factor is, I believe, the most important of all. No other single item plays so disastrous a havoc with human lives as drink. It is the main road to most misery. The law also controls the conditions of immigration and the regulations at ports—I happen to represent a port in Parliament. Further, it is the law which lays down the punishment to be inflicted for all those base and beastly crimes against children; the law which fixes the age of consent and the treatment to be accorded to blackmailers. It is the law which regulates what kind of moral and physical education young people shall have and in the face of these facts it seems to me to be sheer evasion of the issue to pretend that laws have nothing whatever to do with the standards of morality which prevail in any land.

Why Women Are Needed.

In all these things, laws control morality, and yet, of course, laws are in turn controlled by public opinion. If we want an evil civilization we get it, but I believe it is equally true that if we want a pure one we can get it, too. I am an optimist about this and that is why I believe women can no longer afford to be kept out of politics. They have no right to sit complacently and comfortably at home wrapped in the ignorance they [illegible] innocence. If our politics are unclean it is the fault of those people, for politics reflect the standards of those who run them and for women to turn away from those moral subjects for fear of being contaminated is as great a danger to the state as anything can be. There is something to be said for the vigor of the rake—there is nothing to be said for the apathy of the selfrighteous and I believe that women are waking up to this fact today. Everyone knows, and it is no use to ignore it, that there prevail in the world today two standards of morality with regard to sex questions, one for men and the other for women. By these standards men are able to do, without much censure and without any punishment from society or from the law), deeds which when done by a woman involve complete social degradation. A woman who is a prostitue is an outcast. She is subject to special penalties and regulations and sometimes also to a very objectionable system of police supervision.

In France and in some other countries there are state regulated houses of vice, through which the state tries to make vice safe. The state fails in this and it has been proved again and again up to the hilt. But while it does not succeed in making vice safe it does succeed in lowering the moral national tone. It assumes that man is an animal with perfectly uncontrollable passions, to gratify which a number of living human beings must be sacrificed. To me this seems as primitive as cannibalism, and not unlike it. For the girl who is imprisoned in one of these houses is done for and goes inevitably from bad to worse. A man, on the other hand, can patronize these houses and yet remain apparently untouched. He may lead the vilest life and do untold moral and physical damage, but nothing is done to him. Men may also be proved guilty of assaults on small children and receive only a ridiculously light sentence. The double standard of morality operates to protect the man and to punish the woman for deeds which are done equally by both.

French State Control Fails.

Now I believe very firmly that this double standard is wrong and that it is extremely damaging for the state to uphold it. I believe that its existence does infinite harm to our young men and that the thing to do is to have but one standard, and that the high one.

So far, it is the man's standard which has dictated the laws on this matter. In future it must be the woman's, and this for the sake of the men themselves.

I do not mean to say that all men have one way of looking at these things and all women another. I know very well that this is not so. But I know also that women are in every race the guardians of purity and moral ideals. Men have made them that (while at the same time setting apart some of them for the vilest purposes). It is men, no doubt, who have given to women this moral pedestal upon which they stand. They have idealized a good woman at the expense of a bad woman and women up to now have acquiesced in the position. It is not only men who are to blame for it, of course. Men and women have both made our morality what it is, but it is for men and women both to put it right.

Women Purity's Guardians.

The only final remedy for a wrong moral standard is a change of opinion and a change of heart. I admit that, but it is no use denying that there are in our civilization many definitely evil interests which are all working together against any change of mind or heart. And I believe that women ought to come boldly out against any public life to oppose those interests. It was my duty when I was the only woman in the House of Commons to serve upon a parliamentary committee which investigated the criminal law in respect to these matters. It was a very unpleasant duty indeed, but in the course of it I realized as never before how essential it was to have women in Parliament and in every other place where public morals are discussed or controlled. For I saw then what we are up against in the immorally minded people, the revelers, the bad old jocular tradition, the vast network of interests which form the vice ring in every big city.

All these things go on existing

Law's Failure to Keep Pace With Civilization Reason for Criticism of the Profession, Says Noted Federal Judge Learned Hand, of New York Court, Believes American Bar Association's Plan to Insist on Broad, Cultured (College) Education for Candidates for Bar a Necessary Measure Today.

Tendency to Regard Law as Static Full of Peril for Government Because It Is Essential That It Keep Step With Progress and Fit Itself Easily to New Conditions Constantly Arising.

ELIHU ROOT'S WARNING TO LEGAL PROFESSION TO PURGE ITSELF

AT the recent conference of American Bar Associations in Washington, D. C., Elihu Root, former Secretary of State and one of the nation's most distinguished lawyers, delivered an address urging the abolition of conditions which he declared enable "crooks and blackmailers to practice fraud under the protection of the shingle" and to call themselves lawyers by reason of "deplorable conditions that should be corrected without delay."

He appealed to the conference not to permit the "illustrious examples of the successes of the past to block the purification of the American bar of the future."

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
NEW YORK, March 11.

WHAT is the matter with the lawyers of the United States? Press dispatches during the past week have contained some sweeping statements as to their inefficiency and unintelligence. That in itself, of course, is nothing new, for American melodrama, from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" to Frank Bacon's "Lightnin'," has always depended to a large extent upon holding the lawyer up to ridicule. But this criticism is new. It is the lawyers themselves who are doing the knocking.

In the meetings of the American Bar Association Committee in Washington what the big leaders of the profession didn't say about the kind of people who are getting into it now—well, what they didn't say may have been all right, but what they did say was something awful. And most of them wound up by saying that no one should be admitted to a law school until he had had a complete college education first, and the bar association ought to see to it that some such schedule of qualification is enforced.

What did it all mean? Is the personnel of the legal profession deteriorating? Are the lawyers losing their prestige in America? Do the big fellows sense this, and are they determined to clean house while house cleaning is possible? Or is this just a conspiracy on the part of the insiders (I got this hint from some ambitious youths employed at present in the clothing industry), a conspiracy to jack up the union scale by limiting the number of apprentices? If it is going to take from six to eight years of academic training before one can even think of being admitted to the bar, these boys say they may have to remain in the garment trade; and what, they wanted to know, has become of the great boast that America is the land of opportunity? Also, how about Lincoln, who never saw the inside of a college—wasn't he a smart man?

"Lawyers Don't Know Business"

I cast about for someone to enlighten me. No use seeing the big attorneys who were leading in the agitation—they were all committed to a policy of exclusion. And it would hardly do to interview a layman, for he would be quite apt to seize upon the occasion to lambast lawyers generally. How about a Judge—could I find some Judge, I wondered, who is noted not only for his legal standing but for decidedly liberal opinion. I made several inquiries and every man I consulted mentioned the same name—Judge Learned Hand of the New York Federal District Court. I found him in his chambers in the Woolworth Building.

"What is the matter with the lawyers?" I asked.

Judge Hand did not answer immediately. He reserved his decision until he had filled a very large pipe; then he sat back in his chair and presented a picture of judicial and smoke poise which I have never seen equalled in the tobacco ads. He had had a hard day. It was then nearly 6 o'clock, but attorneys were still coming in, appealing for court orders or informal legal advice. But there was no sign of fatigue or irritation on the part of Judge Hand. Evidently he liked his job. Also his pipe. There was just the shadow of a smile on his lips when he eventually reached my case.

"Lawyers are not a bad lot," he said. "To be sure, they don't know their business very well."

The remark was not caustic. Judge Hand is capable of sharp talk at times, but his satires are generally tinged with kindliness, as though life to him were infinitely serious—and amusing.

"Too many lawyers," he said, "imagine that the law is an exact science, an inflexible set of formulas to which life must subscribe, and when they want to find the answer to a particular question they search the books for the exact pronouncement which seems most literally to cover the case. Such men may become great authority hounds, but they cannot become great lawyers. The more you learn about law as a thing apart from human culture, the more confused will you become, for the law, when we view it as an arbitrary force in the determination of human conditions, becomes a mass of contradictions and unrealities. The law flows out of human conditions and changes with them. It is only when we fully understand this that its continuity and reasonableness become apparent.

"But lawyers sometimes do not understand this. They may see a particular case, but they can't fit it into its place in the scheme of things, and so they haven't a very clear idea when they come to court just what it is they intend to prove. It isn't that they lack energy or initiative. It isn't that they aren't bright. They are simply ignorant—not ignorant of the words and phrases to be found in the reference books, but ignorant of their own place and of the law's place in the evolution of society. Most of them would be immensely benefited by a broad, cultural education.

How Cultured Education Would Help

"I think," Judge Hand added, "that is about all there is to this present agitation. Some way must be found to educate the lawyers. The law schools haven't the time to devote to this general education, and the lawyer who doesn't get it in school is not apt to get it in his general practice today."

"But the standards for admission to the bar," I protested, "are much higher than they were in Lincoln's time. How does it happen that the barristers are less capable?"

"There are just two errors in your statement," he replied. "In the first place, it was always necessary for anything approaching well-rounded practice that the lawyer should have a cultural background. Lincoln had that. Life was so simple in those days, however, that it was possible to acquire it in the way that Lincoln did. But life is immensely more complex today, and the course which Lincoln took would not result in an education now, for the simple reason that the studies he pursued would not fit into life as it is being lived. Don't fall into the error of assuming that the books he read constituted Lincoln's education. If Lincoln were alive today he would undoubtedly go to college.

Lawyers of Past and Present

"Secondly, there is no reason to believe that the lawyers of today are below the average of any other period in American history. We always idealize the past, also, when we delve into the court records and find out how a lot of the supposedly great ones stumbled through their cases, frequently throwing in a lot of irrelevant oratory when their stock of arguments ran out, we became a little skeptical. There are a number of them who would have to reform before they could practice in my court today. It isn't that the lawyers as a class are deteriorating, but the conditions of the present make it imperative that incompetents shall not practice law. They clog the courts. They obstruct justice by delaying the machinery through which it must necessarily pass. This is just one of the disorders which must be charged not to any general intellectual or moral breakdown but to the complexity of modern life.

"In the social transformation which has occurred during the past half-century it has been necessary not only to revise the law but words themselves have come to have a new meaning. Marriage does not mean today what it meant a century ago. The words 'master' and 'servant' have been changed almost beyond recognition. Women have become free from disabilities under the law in recognition of an individuality which the new social and industrial conditions forced upon them. The very fundamental principle of the law—not only of English common law, but of all law known to civilized society—is having its meaning taken away from us by forces over which human law seems to have no control."

"What principle, what forces?" I wanted to know.

"The principle of property," he said, "the forces of modern science. The engineers are making it impossible for us to own property as we used to own it, through turning what was once our property into something which can't be owned in its former individualistic sense."

Judge Hand paused while my mind was trying to catch up with him. He filled his pipe again and looked contentedly at the clouds of smoke.

"If I only had my life to live over again," he said, "I'd be an electro-chemical engineer. The law can't touch those fellows. It can't keep up with them. They go ahead and produce a civilization without warning, and the best we can do is to try to find some rules to run it by. Sometimes the rules seem to fit for a while and sometimes they don't. Judges who are called reactionary interpret them one way and those who call themselves progressive interpret them another, and no one can guess at the time which interpretation is going to stick, for no one knows what new forms the machine will compel society to take.

Civilization Is Outrunning Law

"Take the railroads, for instance. People owning railroad stock may think they own the railroads in the old sense, but they don't. Property in railroading has been very largely transformed. Ownership in the old days implied a right to fence off the thing you owned, but a railroad company cannot under the law keep people off the railroad. The 'owners' can't shut it down. They can't even use it according to their notions of what constitutes adequate service. They must even build terminals according to the dictates of the nonowning public and charge just such fares as this public permits.

"But this doesn't mean that the law has come to dominate the railroads. It means that the railroad has raised havoc with what was supposed to be an unshakable principle of law. The railroad created a new civilization. It made it possible for people to ship their products on such a scale that the continuance of life demanded the uninterrupted service of the railroad. Who owned it became a secondary consideration, but it was imperative that it should be continuously used. In this matter of railroads the fundamental principle of law seems to have shifted from individual control to function.

"But it will hardly do to generalize. For the coal mines, which perform a public service almost comparable to that of the railroads and upon which the life of America in a very similar way depends are still owned in much the same manner as ever. The owner can shut them down. They can fence them off. They can produce or refuse to produce, as their own best interests dictate. The idea of property is still dominant here; the idea of function is still a secondary consideration."

Peril of Regarding Law as Static

"Judge Hand," I asked, "in view of the sweeping nature of the social and industrial transformation, do you think it really likely that the law will ever catch up with civilization? Don't you think we are headed for a break—such a complete break between the new life and the old institutions that no readjustment will be possible?"

"A revolution?" he said. "No, I think not. It will depend somewhat, of course, upon the lawyers. If they persist in looking at the law as a static thing we might have trouble. But such a concept, it seems to me, cannot gain headway in America. The actual tendency, in fact, is in the other direction. It is too early to be absolutely certain, of course, but the principle, for example, of the housing legislation, which the Supreme Court has sustained, is by that decision incorporated into our legal structure; and yet scarcely a decade ago a law which suggested such limitations upon property rights would have been looked upon as utterly revolutionary."

"But isn't it true," I asked, "that lawyers as a rule, especially the biggest and most competent of them, do represent private property interests?"

Justice Hand's reply was to fill his pipe again.

"I came to you," I continued, "because you were represented to me as being unusually liberal."

"What do you mean by liberal?" he asked.

"Free from class prejudices, especially," I said.

"I don't see how I can be," he said. "I fail to see how a Judge can be free from the influence of the people among whom he moves, if that is what class prejudice means. Even had he been a factory worker once, when a man gets a new environment isn't he quite sure to develop a new point of view? He doesn't associate socially with the workers any longer. He doesn't have to adopt their standard of living. If he becomes sick, his salary goes on. His job is unusually steady, too, and a depression in business doesn't mean unemployment and the bread line. And when people whose lives are made bitter by such experiences get into a controversy with the Judge's economic class he is not to be ruthlessly censured if at times he fails intimately to understand all the purposes of the other side.

"However," he continued, "it should be the task of a lawyer and a Judge to try. He must keep in touch not only with the law, but with the social conditions which create and interpret all real law, if he is to play his part in modern civilization, and not only with the social conditions of the present, but with the systems and cultures from which they have evolved, with their arts and literatures and philosophies. A university course will not suffice for all this, but it is the best sort of start which I can think of today, and I fail to see how a serious law student can afford to start with less."

Hughes' Letter Explaining Origin of 4-Power Pact, Read in Senate by Underwood

Secretary of State Answers Insinuations That Americans Had Been Induced to Agree to Plan Cunningly Contrived by Others.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—The letter from Secretary Hughes in reply to insinuations that the American delegates to the limitations of armaments conference had been imposed on and induced to subscribe to a plan cunningly contrived by others, read in the Senate today by Senator Underwood in the course of a prepared speech in support of the four-Power treaty, follows:

"My Dear Senator:

"I understand that in the course of debate in the Senate upon the four-Power treaty questions have been raised with respect to its authorship. It seems to be implied that in some way the American delegates have been imposed upon, or that they were induced to accept some plan cunningly contrived by others and opposed to our interests. Apart from the reflection upon the competency of the American delegates, such intimations betray a very poor and erroneous conception of the work in connection with the conference, no part of which—whether within or outside the conference meeting—was begun, prosecuted or concluded in intrigue. Nothing could be further from the fact.

"It is, of course, wholly inconsistent with the amenities of international intercourse that the informal and confidential suggestions and conversations incident to negotiations should be stated, but the Senate may be assured that a full disclosure of everything said or done in the course of the negotiations would reveal nothing derogatory to the part taken by any of the American delegates or involve any consideration or acceptance of any position not entirely consistent with the traditional policies of this Government.

An Outside Subject.

"It should be remembered that the four-Power treaty dealt with a subject—the Anglo-Japanese alliance—which, as an agreement between two Powers competent to make and continue it, was not, and in the nature of things could not be, appropriately placed upon the conference agenda. Technically, it was a matter outside the conference, although the conference furnished an excellent opportunity for conversations regarding it.

"While I cannot, of course, undertake to state what was proposed or suggested in confidence by any of the delegates, I think it entirely proper to say that the negotiations relating to the four-Power treaty were conducted within limitations defined by the American Government. The views of this Government as to the importance of the termination of the Anglo-Japanese alliance had been communicated long before the conference met, and it had also been clearly stated that this Government could enter into no alliance or make any commitment to the use of arms which would impose any sort of obligation as to its decisions in future contingencies. It must deal with any exigency according to its constitutional methods. In preparations for the conference, the American delegates reviewed the matter thoroughly and the entire course of the negotiations in connection with the four-Power treaty were in accord with these principles, and, as I have said, within the limits which we defined.

"The treaty itself is very short and simple, and is perfectly clear. It requires no commentary. Its engagements are easily understood and no ingenuity in argument or hostile criticism add to them or make them other or greater than its unequivocal language sets forth. There are no secret notes or understandings.

He Proposed Draft.

"In view of this, the question of authorship is unimportant. It was signed by four Powers, whose delegates respectively adopted it, all having made various suggestions.

"I may say, however, with respect to the general course of negotiations that after assent had been given by Great Britain and Japan that France should be a party, I prepared a draft of the treaty based upon the various suggestions which had been exchanged between the delegates.

"This draft was first submitted to Senator Lodge and Mr. Root, as you were then absent on account of the death of your mother. After the approval of the American delegates who were here, the draft was submitted to the representatives of other Powers and became the subject of discussion between the heads of the delegations concerned and with a few changes, which were approved by the American delegates and which did not affect the spirit or substance of the proposed treaty, an agreement was reached. Immediately upon your return I went over the whole matter with you and the proposed agreement received your approval. I should add that, in order to avoid any misunderstandings, I prepared a memorandum to accompany the treaty with respect to its effect in relation to the mandated islands and reserving domestic questions.

Early Publicity Obtained.

"At this stage, while it was not strictly a conference matter, in order to insure publicity at the earliest possible moment, the treaty as thus agreed upon and before it had been signed, was presented by Senator Lodge to the conference in plenary session and its import and limitations stated. His statement met with the acquiescence of all.

"The treaty as thus drawn and notified was deemed to embrace the main islands of Japan. Later, in view of the sentiment both in this country and Japan, it was deemed to be preferable to exclude these main islands, and supplementary treaty was prepared to this effect, which designated the islands of Japan which it was to include.

"There is not the slightest mystery about the treaty or basis for suspicion regarding it. It is a straightforward document which attains one of the most important objects the American Government has had in view and is of the highest importance to the maintenance of friendly relations in the Far East upon a sound basis. The President recently said, in his communication to the Senate, it is an essential part of the plan to create conditions in the Far East at once favorable to the maintenance of the policies we have long advocated and to an enduring peace.

"In view of this, and in view of the relation of the treaty to the results of the conference, its failure would be nothing short of national calamity."

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Reilly-izing Porto Rico.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE read with great interest the editorials in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch dealing with the unrest and agitation in Porto Rico, due to the actions and statements of a man unfit to hold a delicate office such as that of Governor of that island.

Three years ago Congress passed a law called the Jones act, in which a sort of limited self-government was granted to the Porto Ricans. This law, although it did not completely satisfy our aspirations for many reasons, the most important being the granting of excessive powers to the Governor, such as the power of absolute veto, which is opposed to the fundamental principles of democracy, nevertheless was accepted by the people with joy and relief as a step forward on the road to full autonomy. We candidly believed this extraordinary veto prerogative rested on the chief executive would be used moderately and judiciously, in harmony with our interests, and not as a weapon of oppression and injustice; but recent events have dispelled this illusion.

E. Mont Reily, an original Harding boomer, lands on our shores, where civilization had been built three centuries before the first pioneers began to establish themselves on what is now Kansas City, and immediately declares war on our laws, our traditions and our language, because, to his way of thinking, this policy was necessary to the rapid "Americanization" of the island.

But, Mr. Editor, the complete picture of the situation has not been placed before the eyes of this great country. Much remains to be published, facts to which the attention of the national authorities at Washington has been called and soon the question is going to be decided whether personal and political attachments weigh more or less than the happiness and tranquillity of a people.

FRANCOIS J. BLASINI.

Not Americans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I WANT to congratulate you on the able editorial some time ago in regard to prohibitionists, which caused Wayne B. Wheeler, our national prohibitionist, to answer in "People's Column."

The main point I want to call attention to is the able manner you handled the definition of a prohibitionist. From my experience with prohibitionists you state absolute facts. When a man becomes a prohibitionist he no longer is an American, as he is so one-sided and can see only his point of view that anyone who differs with him is denounced.

Isaiah on Reed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Prophet Isaiah must have had a far-seeing eye, for he prophesied "And the rivers shall become foul; the streams of Egypt shall be diminished and dried up; the reeds shall wither away." Get that last prophetic clause, "the reeds shall wither away." I claim to be somewhat of a student of prophetic literature. Unless my hermeneutics is all "balled up," I think this is a pretty good prophecy of what's going to happen to James A. Reed on primary day. The rivers of politics have certainly become foul in Missouri ever since Jamie threw his pebble into it. That much of the prophecy has become true.

As to the streams of Egypt diminishing, Isaiah must be referring to Reed's hold on the true Democracy of Missouri. If so, then that portion of the prophecy has likewise been fulfilled. The only portion remaining, therefore, is that the "reeds shall wither away." However, since Isaiah is so sure about it as to name "the reeds," that ought to be taken quite literally in connection with the Senator's political fortunes to come at the hands of the Democrats who are just aching to wither him away with the whirlwind of their indignant votes.

In conclusion, my brethren, as I have already suggested, my interpretation of this prophecy may not be an expert one, but I leave it to the future to vindicate the interpretation I have given unto it.

BERNARD GRUENSTEIN.

Fanatics.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ANTIPROHIBITIONISTS are wont to delude themselves and others with the idea that our dry laws are the work of a fanatical element. Prohibition would never have gained sufficient momentum to close the saloon, stop the distilleries and breweries and prohibit the sale of drinks had not there been stern necessity for this action. The brazen devotees of the booze god Bacchus have always assumed that because a man has an appetite for liquor and is selfish enough to gratify this appetite it is his privilege and "liberty" to make a general nuisance of himself, create any kind of a disturbance and let those who do not drink, or who are not drunk humor him till he sobers up. I voted the prohibition ticket because I was tired of humoring drunken fools. The worst fanatic in the world is the egotist who still demands the privileges that all drunkards take and would return to the old-time orgies of the saloon and whisky drinking. This plea of liberty and freedom is too thin. What some people imagine to be a clarion call for freedom and liberty is simply the howl of the booze fanatic for the bottle.

DALE THORNTON.

HAS ST. LOUIS THE WILL?

What would you think of a father who clothed his growing son in a straitjacket, yet expected him to grow?

What would you think of a man who built a fine house, but refused to put in adequate plumbing because it cost too much?

What would you think of a man who built a costly house, but refused to obtain a sufficient supply of water on account of the cost?

What would you think of a man who built a costly hotel, but failed to provide adequate exits and entrances?

In short, what would you think of a man who built a house, but failed to provide it with the necessaries of healthful, comfortable and convenient living?

What would you think of a business man who refused to enlarge his plant and equipment to provide for increasing profitable business?

What would you think of a business man who expected his business to increase with inadequate plant and equipment?

What would you think of a captain of industry who refused to provide sufficient transportation facilities for his products or his workmen?

What would you think of a business man who refused to use his credit to expand his plant and equipment to meet the demands of business opportunities?

The municipal plant of a city, its sewer system, thoroughfares, park spaces, playgrounds, hospitals and other institutions, its water supply, may be likened to plant and equipment of industry or business and to the provisions for health and comfort in a home or a hotel.

No city can grow in population and prosperous business activities without the necessary foundations of growth. Without the necessaries of life and growth the city is throttled.

St. Louis is in danger of being throttled and stunted by lack of municipal necessaries.

We must have good sewers to insure health and the security of life and property. Our sewers are inadequate and out of repair.

At our present rate of growth our water supply will be inadequate within five years.

Our streets and thoroughfares have now reached the limit of traffic accommodation.

The moral and physical health of the people, especially the children, require additional park spaces and playgrounds.

We must have better street lighting.

We must have better transportation facilities if we are to take care of increasing population.

We must have better terminal facilities in order that we may realize the benefits of business opportunities.

With all the material advantages which make for greatness, St. Louis lacks the necessaries of growth.

We must supply those necessaries or lay aside our ambitions and expectations of growth and increasing prosperity.

We must prepare the way to go forward or consent to drop backward.

We must take St. Louis out of the wagon age and put it into the automobile age for the race with competitive cities.

We have ample credit to supply the necessaries of a great city. Have we the wisdom and the will to use it? That is the whole question involved in a bond issue to supply the needs of St. Louis.

JESTING WITH DEATH.

The world took another hero to its bosom when the Norwegian steamer, Grontoft, fought a losing fight with the elements. With persiflage and raillery the nameless radio operator interpellated the story of the ship's plight. The wireless, a comparatively new equipment, and designed, among other things, to bring succor in the hour of peril, has evoked the same old gallantry from which the sagas and traditions of the sea derive. The quality of manhood persists.

The radio operator's jaunty passing recalls in some details the story Richard Harding Davis wrote of Vera Cruz. Here, too, those boys rushed smilingly into death with the slang of the hour on their lips. It was a thrilling event in Davis' vivid, dashing narrative and especially impressive in that it brought back to our calendar a day that had passed.

The bolt from the blue swiftly followed and Davis and the other correspondents were soon hurrying to an end of the world in which the crimson morning of Vera Cruz could scarcely be rated an episode—a test of humanity in which the boy from shop and farm and factory and school was to prove himself a brother to the professional warrior.

Yet the men who "jest at the dawn with death" are rare in war or peace. They still excite such admiration and awe as did the "Captain's son" in Kipling's stirring ballad. No wonder the operator on the Westonia, racing to the Grontoff's aid, asked the same question as the Indian outlaw. Kipling was right. In peace or war, on sea or land, "there is neither East nor West, border nor breed nor birth," in the purple democracy of courage.

"LET'S BE PRACTICAL."

The plight of the farmer is discussed reassuringly in the current World's Work by Bernard Baruch. The gravity of the situation is recognized, but there is no helpless wringing of hands. On the contrary, a solution is promised as being well within our capacity, spurred on as that capacity is with the steel of necessity.

Mr. Baruch views the problem of the farmer from the angle of big business. Big business methods are to hew the way out. We are told to be of good cheer in a new language that seems to be a blend of Aurelian philosophy and Wall street. It is not much of an exaggeration, Mr. Baruch remarks, to say that "the farmer buys at sellers' prices and sells at buyers' prices." Again, the farmer, commercially, is "an individualist in an age of organization." He must market his products in a "collective, large-volume, modern way."

It is admitted that agriculture, from its very nature, cannot be organized and operated as other lines of business are. A new pattern in operative practice must be devised. Is Baruch reluctant to speak of special provisions, of class legislation for a special interest? Look at agriculture as it is and is known to be, he answers. It is our largest industry. It produces half of our national commerce. More than a third of our population are engaged in it. Upon the prosperity of the farmer the prosperity of the rest of us depends. Can an industry of such magnitude and indispensability be called a special interest?

What of the farm bloc? More than one Wall street voice has spoken of that movement in accents of alarm. Mr. Baruch looks upon it serenely and approvingly. As a practical man, he would like to know just how much attention would have been given to the distress of the farmers if legislators friendly to them had not united in the bloc. But, he insists, it is not a selfish class drive. What the farmer wants to do is to put his business on a working parity with other businesses. That is the agricultural bloc's object. Not special privilege, but equality of opportunity. The farmer is not dreaming of class conquest. He is out to get a square deal.

He can get a square deal. Co-operative marketing, freed from the liability of anti-trust law violation, adequate storage facilities, and a system of financing adaptable to his needs are imperative. The pressing thing, however, in Mr. Baruch's judgment, is the restoration of his foreign markets to the American farmer. We must get away from our isolation and "get into the world circle initiatively."

Finally, Mr. Baruch sums it up in this sharp, laconic message, which Washington sooner or later must hear—"Let's be practical."

SMELLING OUT CRIMINALS.

It is a common law rule of ancient origin that if an officer or a citizen sees the commission of a crime he may arrest the offender without a warrant. A Federal court has recently announced an additional rule to the effect that if an officer smells a crime he may follow his nose to the place of commission and likewise arrest without warrant.

In the case of U. S. vs. Borkowski, 268 Federal Reports, 408, it appeared that certain prohibition officers, smelling raisins cooking, followed the scent to a nearby house, forcibly broke in and arrested the householder for operating a still.

There was no warrant of any kind, yet the Court, in sustaining the prosecution, said:

> If an officer may arrest when he actually sees the commission of a misdemeanor or a felony, why may he not do the same if the sense of smell informs him that a crime is being committed? Sight is but one of the senses and an officer may be so trained that the sense of smell is as unerring as the sense of sight. These officers have said that there is that in the odor of boiling raisins which through their experience told them that a crime in violation of the revenue law was in progress. * * * I see no reason why the power to arrest may not exist, if the act of commission appeals to the sense of smell as well as to the sense of sight.

We thought no one inferior to Sherlock Holmes himself could detect in the aroma given off by cooking raisins whether they were ultimately to be used for raisin pie, rice pudding or for making intoxicants. It only goes to show how marvelously trained are the olfactory nerves of our modern enforcement officers.

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

THE enthusiasm with which the two principal political groups in the United States Senate greet one another's peace treaties must by this time have impressed all of us with the desire of the Senate to do something for the popular welfare regardless of all political affiliations," Mr. Antwine said.

"When Mr. Wilson came home from Europe with the covenant of the League of Nations, the Republican members of the Senate were glad to put politics aside and join with the Democrats in embracing this first opportunity in history for international co-operation against war. We were all thrilled by that sacrifice, since none of us doubts the advantage which resulted to Mr. Wilson's party in the next presidential election. That Gov. Cox was not elected by the Electoral College after pretty much everybody had chosen him for that honor must be put down to mere whimsicality upon the part of the college.

"But, fine as the attitude of the Republicans in the Senate was at that time, the Democrats in the Senate are not to be outdone now, when the Republicans have a peace movement they would like to have the Senate indorse. The Democrats are as fully aware of the political advantage which will accrue to the Republicans if these treaties are accepted as the Republicans were aware of the Democratic advantage in having the covenant of the League of Nations ratified, but they have nevertheless chosen to take the high ground of peace first and politics after. All the Democrats in the Senate are for the treaties, with the possible exception of Senator Reed, who is against everything. Happily, it is only the usual coterie of Senators famous for its opposition to all international concerts for peace that fights the Pacific pacts, the bulk of the membership in both parties standing shoulder to shoulder against the irreconcilable few.

"These are fine spring days, when the warm sun and the soft southerly winds set us an example in alliance against desolation and gloom. It is a time when we are usually glad anyway, but let us be doubly so that we have in the Senate that unalterable resolve to put people above party. It is thus that the Senate is the true expression of our better selves. We devoutly desire peace on earth and good will to men, and we do not care which party becomes the medium through which we achieve it.

"The Senate, fortunately, is quite aware of that feeling and thoroughly respects it," Mr. Antwine said.

Sir:—Looking through a scrapbook last night, I came across the following poem written by Ralph Chaplin, a young man of old American stock who is now serving 20 years in Leavenworth prison for violation of the Espionage law. The poem follows:

"TO MY LITTLE SON."

I cannot lose the thought of you;
It haunts me like a little song;
It blends with all I see or do,
Each day, the whole day long.

The train, the lights, the engine's throb,
And that one stinging memory;
Your brave smile broken with a sob,
Your face pressed close to me.

Lips trembling far too much to speak;
The arms that would not come undone;
The kiss so salty on your cheek;
The long, long trip begun.

I could not miss you more, it seemed,
But now I don't know what to say.
It's harder than I ever dreamed
With you so far away.

Undoubtedly Chaplin is a poet and writer of equal, if not of greater, ability and promise as Charles Ashleigh, the young British poet who was recently released from Leavenworth on the intercession of H. G. Wells and other British writers.

Wells acted promptly the moment he heard of Ashleigh, who had been convicted along with Chaplin and others in the trial of the I. W. W. members at Chicago. Wells and the British writers insisted that Ashleigh be released, won their point and he was deported to England.

Compare the attitude of a great British author like Wells in this case with the attitude of the American writers toward Chaplin, and which group of writers stands most clearly as brave men and lovers of intellectual liberty,—the British or American?

Why should geniuses, American born for generations, like Chaplin, be kept in prison merely for expression of opinions disliked by a defeated administration, while the infamous Siberian assassin Ataman Semionov is given political refuge and liberty in our country?

Why are the American writers and authors so much more cowardly and so much slower to defend intellectual liberty than are the British?

STRAY THOUGHTS.

What a waste of energy! There is Harry Kemp, self-styled soul-swiper, wanderer and poet when he does not wander, but ever does, taking lessons in pugilism so he can put the K. O. on his alter ego, Sam de Witt, when he could accomplish it with less exertion and more speed simply by reading his poems to him.

If Gertrude Atherton knows about men as much as W. L. George knows about women then we are safe from discovery.

To a bloc nothing is a block. Why not a light-wines-and-beer bloc? Answer that on election day.

Equality of rights with men is not an unmixed blessing, judging by what happened to a mixed jury up in Minnesota. It certainly is tough on the men.

Margaret Sanger is off for Nippon to lecture there on "the disastrous economic consequences of too many bottles and how to prevent them." It is said that Hiram Johnson of California is sponsoring and financing her lecture tour.

We will not go to Genoa. Reason: Europe's failure to adopt measures for stabilizing her economic condition. Here is logic for you. Were it not for this failure what need would there be for a Genoa?

THE IMMIGRATION LAW.

From the Tulsa Tribune.

THE case of two Russian families detained Ellis Island shows another defect of the ent immigration law that was not foreseen the law was enacted. Two Russian fathers two Russian mothers are eligible for to the United States, but their two children, 8 and 10 months, are marked for The fault of those babies consists in their been born in Constantinople instead of in The babies should have known better, no and their parents share their blame as in the offense. But that doesn't help the ward human situation created by an law which recognizes nothing but quotas, and can see only that the Turkish is filled up, though the Russian quota is not. situation is particularly absurd because the migration rule, in determining an eligibility by his place of birth regardless of circumstances, disregards the fundamental plying to American citizenship. THE ALLIED DEBT.

From the American Review of Reviews.

THE suggestions that have emanated from tain financiers abroad about "canceling all around," while appearing quite the fair to those who have not examined them have undoubtedly made the situation more cult because of their palpable fallacies. The ple of the United States will not press these ungenerously. The best proof of this lies in the fact that the American people ularly paying all of the interest out of their pockets. There are many able statesmen and licists in Europe who are thoughtful and gent enough not to join in slandering the can people at the very moment when bearing the entire burden of this without complaint. At Washington, ever war, there has been a constant, though energetic, effort to put these obligations proper form for ultimate disposition. This that the refunding bill, presented by the of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, and—with changes—adopted by Congress last month, signed by the President, can be expected about.

CANADA IN WORLD POLITICS.

From the American Review of Reviews.

THERE is no country more gallant than ada—none with a better record in times. And there is no other that is bound United States by so many ties of mutual and of friendly association. Canada's place distinctly fixed in the group of peoples British Commonwealth, and it is henceforth derstood that the Dominion is entirely ent in all that pertains to her own affairs. she will be at liberty to send an Ambassador her own to Washington whenever it desirable. She has long made her own rangements without dictation or interference London. As we have more than once in these pages, it is high time that a made for Canada in the council room of the American Union at Washington. At this tariff discussion it should be strongly those who look well into the future that fare of the two halves of North America be regarded as identical. To create tariff legislation at Washington, when we ing to create good-will by all other be harmful in any direction—transatlantic, pacific, or southward; but it would be mischievous and unsound as a policy against our Canadian friends, whose only less vital to us than is that of States.

Events in the Social World

Plans for Easter Vacations Occupy Interest of Members of the School Set Who Soon Will Be Returning for a Rest From Studies—Many Small Affairs Being Arranged for Their Entertainment.

A DIVERSITY of interest marks the plans of members of the school set, who are again the topic of conversation, for the spending of their Easter vacations. This early spring respite from their studies always proves a delightful one to the young minds, coming as it does to relieve the restrictions of the winter's studies. Some of the students will remain at their respective schools, others will return to St. Louis to pass the time, however short, with their families, while a large number, particularly those attending school in the East, will take advantage of the opportunity afforded of visiting their friends, and will avail themselves of the theaters and the spring offerings of the smart shops.

The serious spirit of the moment does not tend to the announcement of any large parties for those coming home, but many small affairs will undoubtedly be arranged for their entertainment.

Miss Jane McElroy and Miss Margaret Pedigo, who will return March 17 from Miss Bennett's School, will bring with them Miss Irene Morrow of Memphis. Miss Morrow will be Miss Pedigo's guest for the vacation period. Miss Josephine Moffitt, who also attends the Bennett School, will visit Miss Marceline Reyburn, Mary Sloan and Mary Frances Dickson at Smith College, and friends at New Rochelle, N. Y. Miss Dickson, Miss Sloan and Miss Reyburn will then be the guests of Miss Reyburn's mother, Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks, at Hyannisport, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler, a student at Smith College, will return March 22 to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boeckeler, while Miss Josephine Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Garrett, also attending Smith, is planning a trip to New York to visit her sister, Miss Stella Garrett, and her brother, John W. Garrett. Another Smith College Girl, Miss Pamela Harrison, daughter of Mrs. John W. Harrison, will visit in Stamford, Conn.

St. Louis Students attending Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn., including Misses Margaret Caradine, Emily Shepley, Frances Collins, Elizabeth and Mary Carter and Alice Scott, will return home March 16 for two weeks, as will the girls who go to the Westover School at Middlebury, Conn. The latter are Misses Virginia Simmons, Rachel Lee and Elizabeth Cuendet, Olga Marie Nugent, Lucy Terry and Jessie Carr. They will return March 18.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Compton will go East to join their daughter, Miss Frances Compton, who is a student at Vassar, and they will spend Easter at White Sulphur Springs, Va.

Miss Dorothea Nagel wil come to St. Louis to visit her parents.

Of the girls in school at Philadelphia, Miss Mary Scott, attending Ogontz, and Misses Ruth Cornet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Cornet; Marie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Lackland Taylor, and Isabel Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Smith, who go to Eden Hall, will remain in the East. Miss Scott and Miss Cornet in Philadelphia, Miss Taylor in Baltimore and Atlantic City, and Miss Smith in New York and Philadelphia. Miss Helen Hussey, who is a student at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville, will also spend the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hussey.

Miss Mabel Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Duke Thompson, is studying in Rome, and will not return until June.

Mrs. Richard S. Hawes Jr. of Webster Groves gave a luncheon yesterday at which announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Mary Bartow Hawes, eldest daughter of Richard S. Hawes, and Martin Lammert III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lammert of Lindell boulevard. The news was a surprise to even the most intimate friends of the prospective bride, as her debut, which was planned for next autumn, was to have been made at one of the brilliant balls of the winter. The date for the wedding has not been set, although it probably will take place the middle of June, and will be a quiet home affair. Additional guests at the luncheon were Misses Elizabeth Terry, Gloria Geisinger, Emily Milliken, Florence Leland and Mrs. Donaldson Lambert.

Rehearsals for the Junior League Follies will begin within a few days, and many of the prominent young society matrons and debutantes will devote the remainder of Lent to them. Those who are in the cast, which has not yet fully been determined, will rehearse steadily. Other women are busy with the program, sale of boxes and seats. Mrs. Clarence King, chairman of the tickets, reports a big advance sale with indications of sold-out houses for the three performances, April 24, 25 and 26, at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. Mrs. Robert A. Holland is general chairman of the Follies, Mrs. Leo De Smet Carton has charge of the publicity, Mrs. Watts Smyth of the program, Mrs. Marion Blossom and Mrs. Sears Lehmann of the supper dances which are being arranged for the three evenings, and among others interested are Miss Lenore Cahill and Elizabeth Bemis.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Duval Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre J. Smith of Yonkers, N. Y., and Richard Clark Kroeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Kroeger of 4284 Westminster place, will take place in Yonkers March 20. The engagement was announced last fall. Mr. Kroeger received his education at Washington University and Columbia University in New York and served abroad with the 353d Infantry and later with the army of occupation in Germany during the war. Mr. and Mrs. Kroeger and their daughters, Misses Eleanor and Louise Kroeger, will attend the wedding.

Miss Rose Muckerman of 4464 West Pine boulevard has as her guest Miss Helen Rend of Chicago, who is en route to her home from a visit in Hot Springs, Ark. A number of informal parties have been planned in her honor.

Mrs. G. Carlander of 10 North King's highway, who with her son, Jack Carlander, and her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Dwyer, is spending the winter at the home of her cousin at 'Duck Inn" near Fort Meyer, Fla., has as her guests Mr. and Mrs. E. Meeting and Dance of the Missouri State Society One of Week's Events—Gen. Pershing Gives Luncheon.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Mrs. James A. Reed, wife of Senator Reed of Missouri, gave a beautifully appointed luncheon on Thursday in honor of Mrs. James T. Morris, the State Regent of the D. A. R. from Minnesota. The table was decorated with spring flowers and the guests numbered 12. Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant was another luncheon hostess of Thursday, entertaining guests on that date for Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, who is spending the spring season in Washington and has become quite a social lioness. That evening Mrs. Grant also entertained several guests at dinner.

The Missouri State Society meeting was held at the Playhouse Saturday evening with Gen. Pershing as the special guest of honor and speaker. After the meeting and singing of Missouri songs, and telling of Missouri tales by members, there was a buffet supper and dancing.

The Missouri State Society meeting is always of social importance among the congressional set, as the PALM BEACH, Fla., March 11.—The social season at Palm Beach has been up to this time one of the gayest in its history, and there is no abatement in social functions, although Lenten days have arrived.

Mrs. Calhoun entertained 12 guests at the Everglades dinner dance Thursday.

At the regular meeting of the board of governors of the Everglades Club, Monday, Mrs. John S. entire Missouri delegation and many of their friends from other states attend. A bevy of Missouri girls in pretty dancing frocks demonstrated the fact that the "Show me" State is not behind any other in beauty.

Senator Spencer Receives Guests.

Senator Selden P. Spencer, president of the society, received the guests, assisted by Mrs. Spencer and the wives of other members of the delegation.

Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer were among the guests at the dinner given Thursday night in honor of Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge by the Chinese Minister and Mme. Sze.

Representative and Mrs. Ellis gave a dinner Friday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Kimberley, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., but now of New Haven, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley have been in Florida, but are now on their way to New York City for a brief visit before returning to their home in Connecticut.

Gen. Pershing was host at luncheon Saturday, when a number of the Missouri delegation were among his guests.

Many smart society women and diplomats attend the Thursday afternoon dancing classes held at the home of Mrs. John B. Henderson, wife of the late Senator from Missouri. The outdoor pool which was built at Boundary Castle, the handsome home of Mrs. Henderson, last summer will be even more of a delight to her friends this summer, as she is having built rustic garden houses at each end, and is planning prettily laid out gardens to surround the pool.

Mrs. Woodyard on Visit.

Mrs. Harry Woodyard, wife of Representative Woodyard of West Virginia, has gone to New Orleans to be the guest there of Mrs. James M. Thomson (Genevieve Champ Clark that was), wife of the publisher of the New Orleans Item. Mrs. Woodyard was an assisting angel, as it were, of the Clark-Thomson romance, acting as official chaperon a number of times during the courtship. Mrs. Woodyard is of particular interest to Washington just now, as she is one of the most intimate women friends of Mrs. Harding in Washington and has the entree to the executive mansion at all times. Rumor puts it that Representative Woodyard is slated for an early Cabinet vacancy.

Congress did not forget that March 5 was the anniversary of the state funeral in the House of former Speaker Champ Clark. Someone placed a wreath around the splendid portrait of Clark in the Speaker's lobby and several allusions were made to him on the floor of Congress that day.

SIMPLE APPLICATION THAT DISSOLVES BLACKHEADS

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. To do this, just get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition. Any druggist will sell you the calonite powder, and about two ounces will be all you will ever need.

Elmer Grimm, Albert T. Happel, Walter Hoffman and Kenneth Baker.

Mrs. Joseph Weiman of Little Rock, Ark., a recent visitor in St. Louis, was hostess at a luncheon March 4 at the Statler Hotel in honor of Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, State president of the Daughters of 1812; Mrs. John Trigg Moss, vice president-general of the D. A. R., and Mrs. Joseph C. McKean, an official in the St. Louis Chapter of the U. D. C. The luncheon was followed by a theater party at the Shubert-Jefferson. Mrs. Weiman has recently returned from a tour of several months through Europe, and was en route to her home in Little Rock, where she is State president of the Daughters of 1812 and local president of the D. A. R.

The coming week will be "health week" at the Y. W. C. A., in charge of Miss Galena Stowell, head of the physical department. Evening lectures during the week include the following: Monday, "Health, Life's Greatest Asset," Maj. L. T. H. Bahrenburg; Tuesday, Dr. Rachel Yarros, on "Rational Sex Ethics;" Thursday, Dr. C. A. Stone of Barnes Hospital, on "Relation of Exercise and Posture to Health;" Friday, Dr. H. L. Kemp, "What You Should Know About Your Feet." Following the lectures, which are scheduled for 8 o'clock, there will be movies in the gymnasium. Other features of "health week" include health charts and posters, shoe displays, free medical examinations and special 35-cent "balanced ration trays" served in the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria. All of the activities of "health week" are open to the public.

VETERINARIAN TO LECTURE

Dr. Luckey to Give Stereopticon Talk on Bovine Tuberculosis.

CRUTCHFIELD D. CORUM DIES FROM INFECTION OF THE NOSE

Was Assistant General Attorney for Missouri Pacific and Baden Bank Director.

Crutchfield D. Corum, of the Washington Hotel, member of the law firm of Jeffries & Corum, died yesterday at St. Anthony's Hospital from an infection of the nose. He was 5[illegible] years old.

He was born at Bellair, Mo., and from 1896 to 1900 was prosecuting attorney of Cooper County. He came to St. Louis in 1908. He was assistant general attorney for the Missouri Pacific Railway and a director of the Baden Bank.

The funeral will be tomorrow afternoon at his former home at Boonville, Mo. He is survived by his wife and a daughter, Clara, a student at Columbia, Mo.

W. G. O'FALLON IS SUED BY WIFE

Daughter of Late Dr. John Young Brown Asks Divorce —Jealousy Charged.

Suit for divorce, charging her husband with unwarranted jealousy and general indignities, was filed yesterday by Mrs. William Glasgow O'Fallon of 4362 West Pine boulevard. They were married April 26, 1911, and separated last January.

Mrs. O'Fallon, before her marriage, was Miss Cora South Brown, daughter of the late Dr. John Young Brown.

The petition alleges that O'Fallon is "possessed of unfounded and unwarranted jealousy toward his wife, which was exhibited by him in various ways and manners, on many and various occasions, both in private and in public; and was responsible for other indignities which resulted in continued and constant embarrassment of the plaintiff, rendering her condition intolerable."

Seeks Custody of Children.

Mrs. O'Fallon asks for general custody of their two children, John Julius, 10 years old, and William Glasgow, 7, but asks also an order permitting her husband to have the children "at reasonable times."

O'Fallon entered his appearance in the suit, which is a formality, to avoid service after the suit is filed and to obtain an early hearing. He also entered a general denial of the allegations.

A stipulation was filed with the petition, signed by attorneys for Mrs. O'Fallon and her husband, agreeing that the suit is to be tried before Circuit Judge Garesche, who presides in one division of the Court of Domestic Relations. It was further agreed that Judge Garesche may set the case for trial "with all convenient speed" or may try it without the formality of a setting on a date suggested by counsel.

Maid at Veiled Prophet's Ball.

Mrs. O'Fallon was born in Henderson, Ky. Her grandfather and great-grandfather were Governors of Kentucky. Her family came to St. Louis when she was a child and she was graduated from Mary Institute in 1910, having made her debut in the preceding social season, when she was one of three maids of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball. In 1910 she was one of two regents who welcomed the Prophet to his throne, the Queen, Miss Susan Carleton, having died.

O'Fallon is purchasing agent for the Terminal Railroad Association and a grandson of the late John Julius O'Fallon, head of the estate which sold O'Fallon Park to the city in 1875. The early O'Fallons were pioneers in the city. William Glasgow O'Fallon's father died some years ago and his mother later married William S. McChesney Jr., head of the Terminal Railroad Association, who died two years ago. O'Fallon was a Second Lieutenant in the Signal Corps in the world war. His grandfather, who died Feb. 10, bequeathed him one-sixth of his estate, the personalty of which was inventoried at $512,350.

WOMAN MUST PUT MORALITY IN POLITICS, ASSERTS MRS. ASTOR

while good women lead their blameless, sheltered lives and it is they, and they alone, who can come out and attack them and if they have not the moral courage to do it I see no hope for our children. The attack, I repeat, cannot only be made by passing laws, though that is part of it. It cannot only be made by securing women town councilors and women police, though that is part of it. It cannot only be made by showing up abuses, though that, too, is part of it. It cannot only be done by a vigorous attack upon the vested interests of vice or by a regular battle waged upon the unequal laws and customs and habits which are daily carried on under our eyes. It has got to be done in the end by a change in human nature as well as in human customs.

People say you cannot change human nature, but when I hear people say that I wonder what Christ came for. His way is the only way and we must take what human and political steps we can to bring His way about. If we base our laws upon justice and are not afraid we can clear up the immorality and let in the fresh air and the sunlight into these dark places of the world, but we must have free, open and serious consultation between men and women on these matters. When I say that the average woman doesn't know of these dark places I want to take no credit from those splendid selfless workers, both men and women, who for generations have given their lives to trying to make conditions better. If the women will only be guided by this sort of people, if they will just strengthen the hands of these selfless souls they will soon find conditions clearer. And, too, they will find that as vice vanishes joy comes. There is nothing in the world so gloomy as evil. I am convinced that women have got to help to do this thing. Their moral standard must be brought into effective use through the whole community and this is one of the most important of the great tasks which their new citizenship imposes on them.

85-Cent School Tax Indorsed.

A resolution indorsing continuance of the school tax rate of 85 cents on $100 was passed Wednesday by the Lowell Improvement Association at a meeting in Rodenberg's Hall. The organization also went on record as being opposed to the Board of Education buying Cardinal Field for the site of a new North Side High School, but declared for erection of a high school at some point farther north.

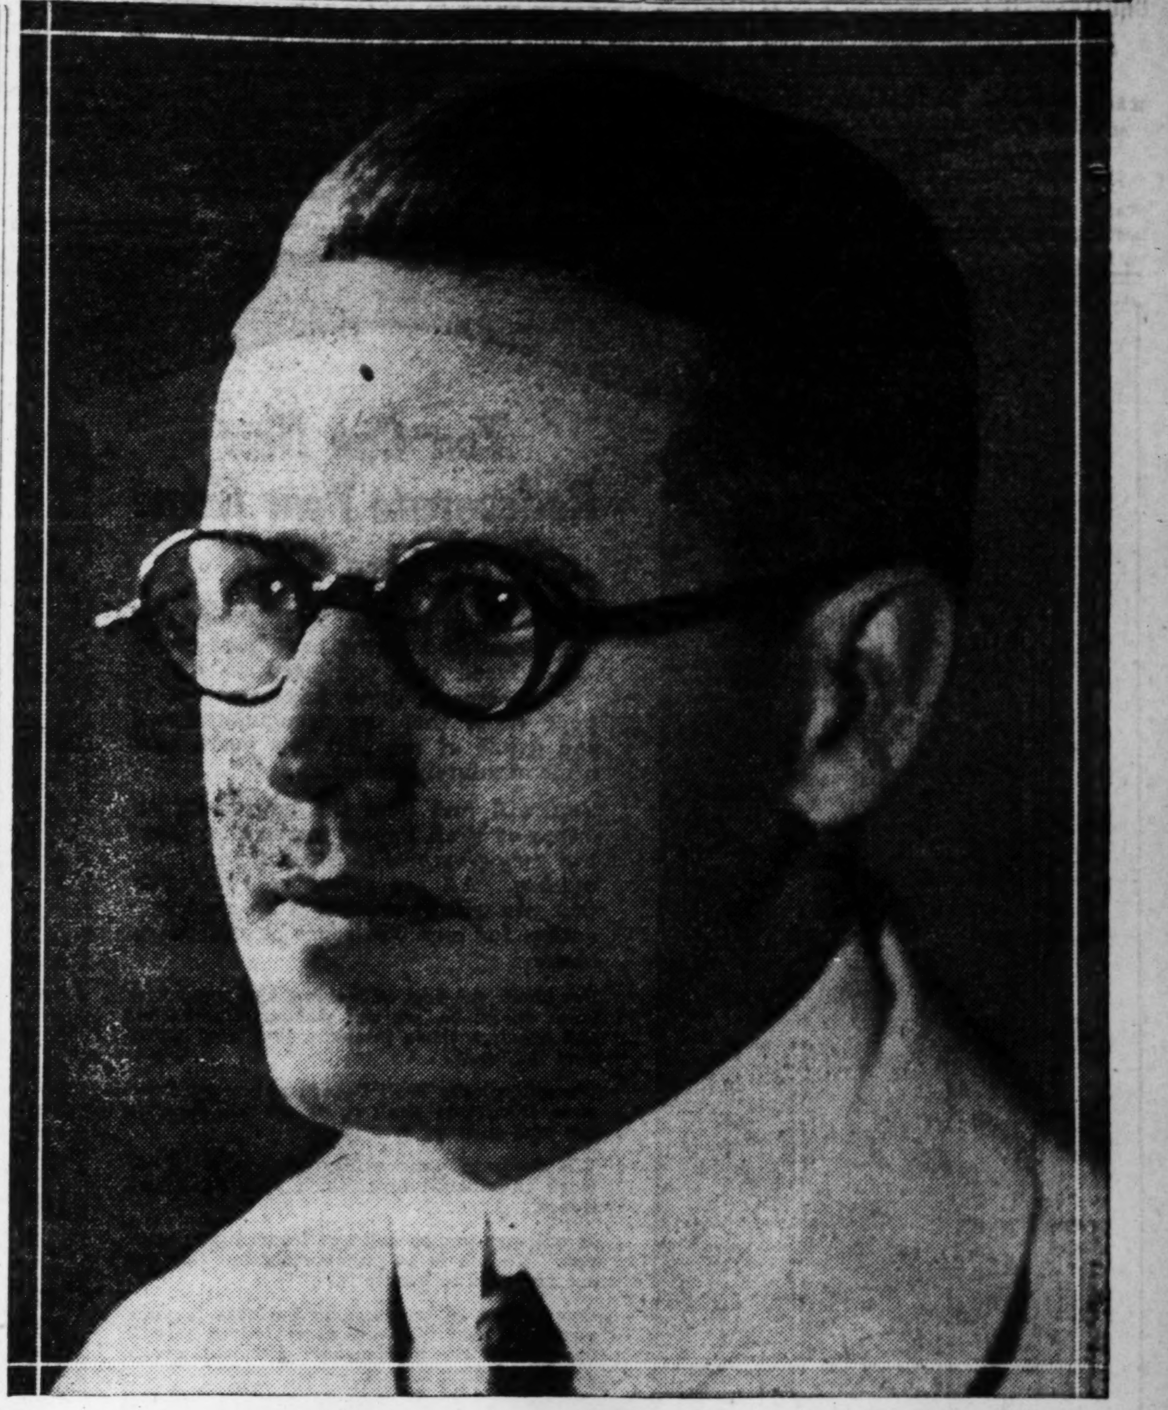
JACKSON'S



M. J. McGowan, whose skin and complexion discovery is said by the eminent Dr. Woodruff to "leave little need for specialists, and none at all for beauty preparations"

WOMEN GIVE HIM NO REST SINCE DISCOVERING A SKIN LAXATIVE

He Physics the Skin and Purges Every Pore, Making Any Complexion Beautiful in One Hour's Time!

WHAT THE OBSERVER SAW

A Chicago laboratory full of women of every age, with skins good, bad—and worse. Sallow complexions; dull complexions; some were pimpled. One was a mass of blackheads.

—Then a young man, serious of countenance, but with a skin of startling fairness, applied the magic element to each face AND—

In forty minutes I beheld a roomful of absolutely beautiful women! Features unchanged, but what complexions! Science had turned Artist. It was amazing.

—While out in the corridors a throng was pleading for admittance.

By William R. Durgin.

A BEAUTIFUL complexion is now a mere matter of personal cleanliness. Thanks to a young English scientist, every woman so minded can make her skin beautiful while she waits. Small wonder this young man receives more letters than any moving picture idol in his halcyon days—and has had twice to move his laboratory to a more secluded spot.

One must believe what one sees, and the writer has found accounts of this discovery indeed true. I have seen the magic of modern chemistry change the most lifeless, impoverished skin to one of radiant color and velvet texture in less than an hour!

The newly-found element actually physics one's skin. Its action is gentle, but positive. Its use is delightful, not distasteful, for it is applied outside. Put it on; slip into your easy chair to dream or doze; in less than an hour the skin pores move. Impurities that are clogging your facial pores come out as if squeezed from a tube. It's a wonderful feeling, this flushing of the pores. They tingle with relief and relaxation. When you pick up your handglass you'll almost drop it with surprise—for the new bloom of color and texture of skin are simply marvelous.

Same Results for Men

Terradermalax is the scientific name of this modern achievement. It is not a cosmetic, cream, or other beauty nostrum. It is harmless; it is hygienic and helpful to the skin. Women on whom Mr. McGowan experimented daily for months, show skins and complexions of striking health and beauty.

The discovery will mean as much to many men as it does to women; Terradermalax has the same marvelous clarifying powers on any human skin—whether it be the fine-textured skin of women or the coarser-textured man's skin.

How It Works

This new element is blended into plastic clay of exquisite smoothness. Place it on the face like a poultice. No expert masseuse's fingers ever felt so soothing, for you feel this laxative working on every inch of skin. In an hour, or less, wipe off with a towel—and with it every blackhead, pimple-point, speck and spot of dirt. That's all. For a week or two, it is well to move the skin every other day. Then once a week suffices. In the end, the skin is trained to function without aid.

Not on Sale

Unfortunately, Terradermalax cannot be stocked by druggists. The active ingredient that loosens the pores of the skin structure must be fresh. The laboratory carefully seals each jar and dates every label. On store shelves, this laxative element would lose its force, and then the application would have no more effect than the ordinary massage. So the laboratory supplies the users direct.

How to Obtain a Supply of Terradermalax

Making this new material is slow work. But the laboratory fills requests for single jars in the order received. Each jar is a full two months' supply; with it comes McGowan's own directions. Send no money, but pay the postman a total of only $2.50 when he brings your jar, fresh from the laboratory. McGowan says: "Any woman whose skin and complexion do not receive instantaneous and perfectly astonishing benefits that she can feel and see, may have this small laboratory fee back without question."

If you expect to be out when the postman calls, you may as safely send check or money order for $2.50 with your application, as the laboratory guarantee will protect you just the same.

Sallow, oily or muddy skin will soon be looked on not as a misfortune, but evidence of neglect. So if you desire a skin of God-given purity, softness and coloring, here is your opportunity. Just fill out this application—but do not delay mailing it.

MISS RANKIN DISCUSSES WORKING GIRL'S NEEDS

First Woman Ex-Congressman Talks on Legislation at City Club Luncheon.

The need for more legislation to provide a minimum of living wages for women workers was urged by Miss Jeannette Rankin, who was the first woman member of Congress before an audience of more than 300 men and women at the City Club at luncheon yesterday.

Miss Rankin's visit to St. Louis is under the auspices of the Consumers' League. She is a field secretary for the National Consumers' League. She will speak at the Community Forum, at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard, tonight. She was the house guest yesterday and today of Mrs. Harry C. January, 5575 Waterman avenue, secretary of the Consumers' League of Missouri.

Miss Rankin opened her address yesterday by saying that men had feared women, getting a hand in legislation, would enact restrictive measures.

"Most men realize now that the eighteenth amendment was passed before the nineteenth," she added. "Women now have plans of legislation for the aid of human life. The first thing women asked for was a bill to protect the lives of mothers and babies, resulting from the work of the Children's Bureau—a bureau created by a Congress that appropriated $25,000 for this work and $600,000 for studying the feed of pigs. It was realized that to save the babies it was necessary to save the mothers, who were dying in rural communities at the same rate as in pioneer days.

"I introduced that bill in the Sixty-fifth Congress, but it was a war Congress. After the armistice the bill was delayed in committee by a man at the head of the largest burial association. Finally the bill was passed. To save the life of the child we found the mother must have prenatal care.

Case of Working Girls.

"Then there was the plight of working girls, who worked hard right up to the time of marriage and then had the problem of rearing healthy babies. We have been asking for legislation in the states to make possible for the young woman in industry to have such provisions as to protect her health. The courts have held that laws regulating hours and conditions of work were constitutional.

"The National Consumers' League has asked for this legislation and provided legal defense for it in the courts. We learned during the war that long hours cannot make greater production, but that if you wanted to decrease production you lengthened working hours. Now we have laws in all but five states regarding women's working hours. There has been a tendency to try to shorten the pay with the hours. Now we are trying for legislation providing that the pay of women cannot be put below the lowest sum they can possibly live on. We have won the point in 12 states and the District of Columbia.

"Boards have been created to work out standards of living. They can find out the lowest a working girl can live on and keep her health and self-respect. It is done by budgets. One item considered is clothing; the boards inquire as to the prices of all the articles of women's wear in the district and set down the lowest figure on which a girl can dress herself.

"Another item is sundries, which includes carfare, laundry, health and so on. The board may spend a whole evening determining whether a girl can have 10 cents or 20 cents a week for amusement, for every penny counts. The last item is board and room. A girl can wear a shawl over her head to work, and keep her health, but she cannot then keep her self-respect.

Minimum Scale Is Fixed.

"The boards, after reaching the lowest possible total of the budget, say working girls shall not be paid less, but provide for exceptions for apprentices and partly incapacitated women. In the State of Washington in 1914, a mimimum wage of $9.25 a week was thus set down, but because the cost of living doubled, the rate was $18 in 1919, much higher than in states without a minimum wage commission. Since then the rate dropped to $14.50 and then to $13.20.

"The young American girl is going to live and enjoy herself as much as she can. If she hasn't enough money to go around she will take it out on her food supply. We know that this legislation is on the right track, learning so from men who know industry must consider the labor factor.

"There are three ways in some states by which working girls can get their pay raised—by legislation, through the union, or by the minimum wage commission. Where there is no such commission only the other ways remain, but the provision of these commissions everywhere will be an issue at the next election. Legislation will improve as we realize the value of human life."

There is need for more women in Congress, Miss Rankin said, in an interview. The second woman ever elected to Congress is the only one there now. Miss Rankin thinks that it is unfair for women to have equal suffrage rights and not have opportunity for equal representation, but, she said, women in this country at present form a minority, considered politically, and they will not achieve equal representation until they become a strongly organized minority and fight for their desires.

Miss Rankin went to Congress from Montana.

There's Real Economy in Electric Vacuum Cleaning

Savings, not earnings, are the measure of financial success. Time and labor saved are money saved. Proper care of rugs and draperies means money saved. 16,000,000 people throughout the country have found it to be a real investment to have electricity in their homes. Your savings with an electric vacuum cleaner will help you join this army of investors, and the money you save will pay or help to pay your light and power bills.

THERE are few household possessions in which the housewife takes greater pride and pleasure than in her rugs or carpets.

Her investment in them is frequently very considerable and in itself sufficient to dictate their careful preservation.

The fact that germ-laden dust, dirt and litter finds its way first into these floor coverings, to shorten their life and create unsanitary, unhealthy conditions, makes imperative their frequent, thorough cleaning.

Beating, sweeping or shaking the old way cannot remove more than the surface dirt, while it may break the warp and crush the nap.

Only electric cleaning removes all the deeply imbedded germ-bearing dirt, while whisking away all surface lint and litter.

Because it actually prolongs the life of prized possessions, it is true economy to buy an electric vacuum cleaner. And it costs but a few pennies a week to use it.

A convincing demonstration can be made in your own home by your dealer or lighting company.

Take any rug that has been "thoroughly broom swept" and then go over it with the electric vacuum cleaner. You'll be astonished at the amount of grit, dirt and foreign matter brought to light and delighted to see how electric cleaning restores the crushed nap and brings out fresh and clean the original colorings.

Banish Dirt and Dust the Electric Vacuum Cleaner Way

The electric vacuum cleaner enables you to clean prized hangings, curtains, drapes without removing them—saving money, time and disagreeable labor.

RARE ART OBJECTS ON VIEW AT THE MUSEUM

Antique Works Exhibited Pending Their Consideration as Possible Acquisitions.

Several rare and unusual objects are on temporary view at the City Art Museum, pending their consideration as possible acquisitions. Among the most noteworthy of those are a sixteenth century Flemish gold tumbler, a large Kashmir hanging of the eighteenth century, an Indo-Persian carpet of the late sixteenth century, and an unusually fine Chinese painting of the Sung period (960-1279 A. D.)

The gold tumbler, aside from its consummately skillful craftsmanship, is an historic relic of absorbing interest, having been presented by the Archduke Albert, ruler of the Low Countries, to his General, Ambrosio di Spinola, an Italian noble. They were at the time engaged in a bloody struggle with the revolting United Provinces, modern Netherland, under the leadership of the intrepid Maurice of Nassau, son of William of Orange. The Archduke Albert and his wife, the Infanta Clara Eugenia, are said to have been particularly delighted with the success of Spinola in capturing the city of Ostend (1603) after a remarkable siege during which Maurice of Nassau strove in vain to relieve it; and it is not unreasonable to suppose that the gold cup now on view at the museum was presented to Spinola on this or some similar occasion as a token of the esteem of his sovereigns. The cup or tumbler is signed Mont., which was the signature of Jean de Montefort, a skilled medallist, known to have been employed at the Antwerp mint in 1602. The workmanship of the tumbler, which is 3¼ inches tall, is exceedingly careful and finished. It is encircled by hands of delicate ornament in colored enamels and in relief. Below these decorations are the coats-of-arms of each of the United Provinces: Holland, Zealand, Utrecht, Frisia, Over-Yssel, Groningen and Guelder. These coats-of-arms are beautifully engraved and enameled in red, blue and white. Attached to the bottom of the cup is a medal of the Archduke Albert of Austria, who was appointed ruler of the Low Countries in 1598 by Philip II of Spain, and at whose orders the piece was made. This cup seems to have been Ambrosio di Spinola's only tangible reward for the many victories which he won in Flanders, as history records that he lost all of his immense private fortune in outfitting armies for the cause of the Archduke. The cup comes from the Marquis of Spinola, Genoa, and is lent to the museum by C. and E. Canessa of New York.

Hanging From Kashmir, India.

A second remarkable object to be seen at the museum today is a large embroidered hanging of the eighteenth century from Kashmir, India. It is approximately 8 by 12 feet in size and is said by experts to be one of the most magnificent specimens of Indian embroidery in existence. The central motif of the design is the Mandara tree, one of the many sacred trees of India. It is a form of ornament said to be frequently found in South Indian embroidered and printed textiles, but the technique of the needlework is peculiar to Kashmir in Northern India, where the art of embroidering probably reached its highest degree of perfection. The Mandara tree, symbolizing the vital principal of the world, is shown as a fantastic shrub upon which the blossoms and fruits of half a dozen different plants thrive. Its curving branches and colorful, exotic blossoms have been gracefully disposed to form a pleasing decorative design. The piece shows Chinese influence in the employment of motifs common in Chinese embroidery, such as the peony, lotus, reed and "Hand of Buddha" or citron. It is embroidered with polychrome silks in a chain stitch of extraordinary delicacy and accuracy, upon an ecru, twilled cotton. So great is the area covered by this laborious needlework that many years must have elapsed between the beginning and the completion of the piece, but the same perfection of workmanship was maintained from first to last.

Indo-Persian Carpet.

Another Eastern textile of great rarity and richness of effect which is on temporary view at the museum is an Indo-Persian carpet of the late sixteenth or early seventeenth century. It was produced in India during the reign of the Mongols, who under Baber invaded that country in 1525, bringing with them numerous Persian artists and skilled craftsmen. Its exact date is unknown, though it was probably fabricated during the rule of either Sultan Akbar, Sultan Jehanghir or Shah Jehan, all of whom were patrons of art. The design is a typical Persian one of flowers with gracefully intertwining stems and leaves, executed in cut velvet in several shades of red and green. The background is closely embroidered in gold, making the piece a veritable "cloth of gold." The border consists of a row of single plant units, between narrow floral bands with silver backgrounds.

Pieces of this type, richly embellished with gold and silver, were often made to decorate the interior of the Sultan's tent or to hang behind his throne.

Antique Chinese Painting.

A fourth object of great interest to be seen at the museum is a Chinese painting of the Sung period (960-1279 A. D.), which has unusual decorative value. The painting, which is in the form of a large kakemono, depicts a great bank of hawthorne blossoms, the Chinese symbol of spring, through which the moon gleams, while birds disport among the branches. The picture is executed in transparent and opaque water colors in silvery tones, with very slight admixture of color.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS contain not only the all-important vitamines, but also true organic iron and real lime salts—which science says constitute the necessary tissue, blood and bone making elements your system must have to enable it to build up a well-proportioned body, clear, glowing skin and increased nerve force.

By mixing with your food MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS supply the needed nourishment so often lost in the cooking and preparation of your everyday food and the lack of which is probably keeping you thin, narrow-chested, with pale lips, sunken cheeks and your whole body lacking in energy and strength.

Here is a simple test which will show you what MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS may do for you: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take MASTIN'S VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again and continue taking MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS regularly until you are fully satisfied with your gain in weight, "pep" and improved appearance.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS do not upset the stomach or cause that bloated feeling, but on the contrary are a great aid in correcting indigestion and improving the appetite.

BANK DEPOSITORS TO COMPLAIN TO HYDE

Committee of Night and Day Depositors Say Hughes Is Not Aiding Them.

The Depositors' Committee of the Night and Day Bank, which for more than a month has been working on a plan of reorganization to reopen the bank, will confer at the Planters Hotel today with Gov. Hyde and will present to him a complaint that the committee has not had the co-operation of State Commissioner of Finance Hughes.

The committee presented to Hughes Wednesday a request for detailed information regarding the bank's condition, and has received no reply. F. E. Turin, chairman of the committee, has said that lawyers not connected with the committee's movement have been examining the books with Hughes' permission, and that Hughes seemed to be favoring some other plan of reorganization than that proposed by the committee.

Hughes, at the time the committee plan was announced, said he would approve it if 85 per cent of the depositors concurred. The committee reported yesterday that $225,000 of the $250,000 contemplated capital had been subscribed, and that depositors representing $2,046,982 of the $2,648,000 deposits of the bank had joined in the reorganization scheme. When the bank was closed the deposits totaled $2,820,444. That amount has been reduced approximately $172,000 by charging of deposits to loans.

A mass meeting of depositors will be held March 19 at 8 o'clock p. m., at Community Center, Grand and Vista avenues. A report of the progress of the reorganization scheme will be made there.

SCHOOL TAX ELECTION TO BE HELD MARCH 28

Citizens' Campaign Committee Plans Demonstrations to Get Voters Interested.

The Citizens' School Tax Campaign Committee is preparing for the election Tuesday, March 28, when the citizens by their referendum vote will determine whether to maintain the present tax rate which the committee holds necessary to sustain the efficiency of the St. Louis public schools and permit the School Board to carry out its building program—two new high schools and two new elementary schools.

The school tax is receiving the support and indorsement of many commercial, civic and industrial organizations, as well as the patrons' alliances, mothers' clubs, fathers' clubs and other educational bodies.

The League of Women Voters will hold a mass meeting at Hotel Statler Saturday afternoon, March 25. The speakers will be John C. Tobin, president of the School Board, Mrs. B. F. Bush, Miss Lily R. Ernst and Miss Tillie Gecks. A girls' chorus from the Soldan High School will give musical numbers and a sketch will be presented by the pupils of Cleveland High School and a one-act play by the primary of Webster School.

In addition to the mass meeting, the League of Women Voters will maintain information booths in the department stores Saturday and Monday before the election and Tuesday, the day of the election. At each booth they will have a map of the city, giving the change in the polling places.

The League of Women Voters will also give a "Getting Out the Votes" parade, Tuesday. There will be three divisions of the parade; one of which will be organized in the west section of the city, another in the southern and another in the northern district. Parades will meet at Lindell and Grand avenue, and then proceed en masse, down Lindell to Locust and through the downtown district. In the parade will be a number of children, the high school bands and orchestras, the Elementary Drum and Bugle Corps and members of the League of Women Voters. The Safety Council will direct the formation of the parade.

Unless this tax is carried by referendum vote it is said it will be impossible for the school board to carry out its building program to take care of the already overcrowded condition of the elementary and high schools. At present there are 6977 children of the elementary schools housed in portable buildings, rented rooms and corridors and attending half-day sessions in regular school rooms, while the high schools, including the Ben Blewett, Junior, and the colored school, have a surplus pupils of 4330 beyond the original capacity.

Including the elementary and high schools the capacity of the St. Louis school buildings is overcrowded 11,207 pupils.

MISSOURI U. GLEE CLUBS TO GIVE CONCERT HERE THURSDAY

The University of Missouri Glee and Mandolin clubs, with nine St. Louisans in the membership, will be heard in a concert at Moolah Temple, 3821 Lindell boulevard, next Thursday evening, under the auspices of the St. Louis Alumni Association of the university. The program, at which seniors of St. Louis and St. Louis County high schools will be guests of the association, will be followed by a dance. Students of several women's colleges will attend in a body.

Thursday noon the clubs will give a program at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

The following St. Louis young men are members of the clubs: Richard E. McCullen, president of the Glee Club, 7430 Wellington; Stanley L. Cytron, 18 Lewis place; Grover Godwin, 5501 Waterman; Malcom B. Epstein, 5188 Waterman; J. Milton Levi, 5047 Waterman; J. Harold Werner, 6175 Kingsbury; Fred W. Wulfmeyer, 3219 Magnolia; Chester H. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 12, 1922. PAGES 1—12B.

Voice of the Labor Union and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorials or articles in organs of labor unions and of the Socialist and Communist parties showing the trend of thought on public topics among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

THE FARM CONFERENCE FAILURE.

(From the National Leader, Nonpartisan League.)

Does anyone think that as a result of this conference anything will be done to relieve the agricultural distress? Some good recommendations were made—good as far as they go. But will what was recommended, even if carried out at once by Congress and the administration, lift farmers out of the mire? If anyone can believe that the condition of the farmer is going to be bettered very materially, or within a reasonable time, by any things decided on by the conference let him state what those things are and how they will help and when.

Such a conference can reflect nothing but the views of the men who called it and bossed it. The Republican administration is tied up with big business. * * * Do you suppose Harding and Wallace would appoint delegates to a conference who might throw the meeting against the big business friends and supporters of the administration by recommending adequate remedies? The conference was carefully arranged and guarded against any such thing. It was called to "prove" that the administration is "friendly" to farmers and will "help" them. It was called to get votes for the Republican machine Congressmen in the election this year. It was not called fearlessly and openly to investigate and to propose adequate measures that would really help. Therefore, only such persons were invited as the administration thought fit to invite. Farmers and their organizations were not asked to name their own delegates. A chairman was selected for the meeting by the administration. The meeting was not allowed to name its own chairman. The committees were carefully picked and packed in favor of a prearranged and cut-and-dried plan. What could be expected of such a conference? Just what happened.

THE FRUITS OF WASHINGTON.

(From the Worker, Communist.)

The Washington conference to force "peace and good will" on earth has borne its first fruit. Universal "peace" has begun its march with huge strides in heavy boots. And the workers, of course are privileged to get the first kicks from the pace-setting capitalist peacemakers. As a result of the agreement to scrap some naval junk thousands of workers have been thrown out of their jobs in the navy yards. Many more thousands of workers await the same fate.

This is the peace the capitalists can bring to the world. Unemployment and starvation are the fruits of peace that the exploiters can bring to the workers. Much noise has been made about the glorious future in store for the world as a result of the secretly arrived at treaties of Washington.

The lesson of Washington is a painfully valuable one for the workers. It shows clearly that the capitalist class can never bring peace to the workers. It proves beyond a doubt that all their peace maneuvers are only frantic efforts to save themselves from the chaos that now threatens to overwhelm them. We have here in brutal form the hollow mockery of their plans.

Capitalist peace means starvation and wars for the workers. Capitalist prosperity means long hours of degrading toil. And capitalist promises are only prospects for the increased misery of the workers.

"THE WEST VIRGINIA HELL."

(From the New York Call, Socialist.)

West Virginia has been prominent in the headlines for several weeks. Hardly a day passes that does not bring news of events in this story of brutal domination by mine owners. Dragnet indictments have been brought against some 300 members of the mine workers' union and four officials for "treason." * * *

The mine owners now have jailed every man that has opposed a class regime of autocracy tempered by gunmen and the mailed fist. * * * The miners have been struggling for years against desperate odds, and recent events indicate that the feudal rulers have determined on a last drive to insure their class supremacy.

This situation should call for a national response from the organized workers of the country. West Virginia has been a literal hell for nearly 30 years. Unions have been broken and nonunion men have been called into the mine field, but these have been forced by intolerable conditions to revolt against them by organizing. Only animals can endure what American exploiters seek to impose upon human being in this State.

West Virginia might easily be made the reason for a special national labor congress to take action on what is transpiring in that State. No hope can be placed in senatorial "investigations." * * * What is transpiring in West Virginia is an accusation against the organized workers of the country. It points an accusing finger at them and asks: "What do you propose to do?"

FARMERS AND THE TARIFF.

(From the Dairymen's League News, Co-operative.)

The attention of farmers should be called to the big discussion in Congress about the so-called American valuation plan for determining the tariff duties. According to this plan imported goods would be valued at the prices at which they should be sold here as a basis for levying the tariff duty. This would mean that the final price of all imported goods would be higher. Such a plan would be helpful to farmers so far as it tended to keep out imports of agricultural products. It would be harmful to them so far as it raised the prices of all manufactured goods.

The imported manufactured goods always are greatly in excess of imported agricultural products. For this reason the American valuation plan would work serious injury to the agricultural industry, because the manufactured goods are the ones the farmer has to buy. And it wouldn't result in a corresponding increase in the price of products he has to sell.

The farmers are standing pretty solidly against the proposed American valuation plan and they are fully justified in doing so. It would plainly be a discrimination against them.

SLAVERY OR CO-OPERATION.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

"The farmer will farm more and farm better when he is in debt," says a prominent banker of Spokane, Wash., who is interested in numerous banks in the Northwest.

The ancient chattel slave owner—and the modern one too, for that matter—thought the slave would work more and better under the lash. The feudal lord was sure that the serf would work more and better when tied to the land. The capitalist is confident that the wage slave will work more and better with the whip of poverty hanging over him. And the money lender has it that the farmer will farm more and better when he is bound and gagged with a mortgage.

Yet it only takes a little bit of brains to see that men and women will work better, and more if desirable, when things are arranged, so that they can take a personal pride in their work instead of feeling that they are slaves working for the benefit of selfish profiteers. Some time ago we published an article about the builders' guild in England. It is composed of workingmen of the building trades. They take the contracts and build the houses. Because of this fact, they love the work. They no longer need any boss. They do better work and more of it in the same length of time. In Reading, Pa., there is a co-operative printing company owned by 700 union workers. The workers have higher standards than in

At Tea and Cigarettes in Paris, Countess Olga Von Rievitch Recalls Last Days of Russian Court and Her Flight to Constantinople.

Special Cable to the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)
47 Avenue de L'Opera.
Post-Dispatch Bureau.

PARIS, March 11.—Countess Olga Yourievitch, lady-in-waiting to the late Czarina, has been living here at the Hotel Wagrain. One cold, wet day, when the trees dripped in the Tuileries, the Post-Dispatch correspondent took tea with the Countess and her cousin.

We then sat on cushions before a grate fire. Nothing will warm a Russian woman to narrative and confidence like tea, cigarettes and a fire. In telling of her experience, the Countess wept a little at first, but when she got into her story she swept Paris out of one's vision. It was like reliving the Revolution and the story of the tragic end of the gentle and much-loved man, the Czar, and the rest of his family. We could almost hear the crackle of revolvers and rifles.

Countess Yourievitch told us she had only occasionally been at court before the war, but one evening at a reception, Czar Nicholas had said to her:

"Why do I not see you here with us more frequently, madame? Pray come oftener."

"Your Majesty, be so good as to recollect that I am not a member of your court."

"True enough, that had escaped me; but I shall request the Czarina to appoint you as lady-in-waiting, and then we shall see you more often," the Czar replied, and he kept his promise.

Thereafter through the war and while her husband was at the front, the Countess was attached to the court, where certain events came to pass within her knowledge which neither she nor any other member of the former court can be induced to discuss.

Told About Escape From Russia.

She related how she escaped from Russia. Eventually, after suffering imprisonment, starvation rations and being reduced to desperation, bribery succeeded where all else failed, and the Countess, her children and her mother, in rags, got safely through Southern Russia and reached Constantinople, where Americans and English people temporarily gave aid.

At Divonne les Bains, just across the Swiss frontier from Geneva, the World correspondent had rooms in the new "Chicago" section of the Grand Hotel. An early discovery was that half of the ground floor of the hotel was occupied by a celebrated Russian refugee, the Prince Felix Yusopoff of Petrograd, his Princess, a retinue of servants and an English secretary, a Mr. Keeping of London. Prince Yusopoff, a cousin of the Romanoffs, will be remembered as the man who lured to his doom the notorious priest Rasputin, accused of exercising an unwholesome influence over the women members of the Czar's family and others at court.

The writer met Princess Yusopoff many afternoons at tea, and chatted with her about the old days in Russia and the Czar and Czarina and their fate. The Princess had two magnificent Russian wolfhounds with her usually, and it was through petting and admiring one of them in the park that her acquaintance was made. She was gracious and simple in manner.

She and her husband, the Prince, were at the moment, as I soon learned, the custodians of the crown jewels of Russia, valued at many millions of dollars. Their quarters in the hotel at Divonne were closely watched and guarded, and for good reason. Jewels valued at $75,000 had been stolen from the Prince's apartment in London only shortly before that. The celebrated Orloff, the imperial "scepter diamond," weighing 193 carats, was valued alone at $1,200,000.

Prince Yusopoff kept in seclusion except for occasional motor rides, and denied himself to callers.

Through his secretary, Mr. Keeping, a polyglot for languages, Prince Yusopoff declared he would neither discuss Rasputin, the crown jewels or their ultimate destination. The Romanoff jewels have lately turned out to be in pawn to Hugo Stinnes in Berlin for 60 per cent of their estimated value.

An American sojourner in Paris these days encounters many demands upon his emotions if he mingles among the high-born Russian refugees who are making the French capital their abiding place. Both amusing and tragic is the life of the expatriated Russian nobility. Many, even in poverty, remain proud, haughty and unapproachable to those without their circle. Others are more human and gregarious and have adapted themselves to their environment and present circumstances.

There are Dukes and Duchesses, Counts and Countesses, Princes and Princesses on every hand around the Paris hotels, restaurants, clubs and art galleries. Most of them, whom one meets through introductions, by acquaintances and, sometimes much less formally, are a depressed lot and with ample reason.

A minority of the refugees snatched out of Russia a part of their patrimony and are now living in other European countries in comparative comfort, though as frugally as their previously luxurious habits will permit. Others, also accustomed to luxury, are only one bound ahead of the hunger wolf, and some are in absolute destitution. These latter proudly conceal their gratitude when invited to dine or to a rare evening at the Opera Comique or the Comedie Francaise.

Hard to Do Without Luxuries.

These Russians of noble birth find it as difficult to get along without their accustomed luxuries as many persons do to go without food. Indeed, many do skimp on food to buy cigarettes and perfumes and lingerie. As a result, when they are invited to afternoon tea, for instance, it is pathetic to see them attempt to hide real hunger while they politely devour salads and pastries.

Not all of the refugees from Russia are of the nobility or even of the bourgeois class.

In a smart section of the Boulevard Hausmann a few days ago there plodded a tall, stooped Russian, dressed in the remnants of an old army overcoat, torn and flapping in the chill winter breeze. His feet were wrapped in soiled heavy cloth tied about his ankles with twine. In his arms he bore a little babe swathed in rags.

By his side, struggling to keep pace with him, was his wife, with queer clothing remnants about her form for warmth, and with a small tattered shawl tied over her head. She wore shoes through the gaping holes of which her feet could be seen, as she had no stockings. She dragged along by the hand a little girl of three or four years, in whose countenance was the misery that absolute destitution gives to childhood. It was a flash at the sodden woe of Eastern Europe against a background of Parisian luxury.

The correspondent stepped in front of the refugee family and fumbled for funds. The man halted. His wife took his arm and clung there. When asked in Russian if aid would be accepted, the man seemed nonplussed for words. His wife smiled faintly, but did not speak.

Sought Work and Food.

By degrees it was learned that they were looking for a place where they could rest for the night while the husband and father sought work and food. They did not know Paris, did not know where they were going. After long and patient suffering they had succeeded in blotting out that horror of the East behind them, and they were alive and hopeful for the future, though penniless. They had walked the greatest part of the way from the Russian frontier to Paris, but some of the time had ridden fourth class on German trains.

With tears in her eyes the woman gratefully accepted a 50-franc note "for the children's sake." Given a good-by and good luck, the man pulled off his heavy cap with his free hand, the little girl smiled—she knew the meaning of money—and the family headed straight for a side street, which intuition tells anybody in Paris will lead inevitably to a small cafe where food may be had.

Quite a number of down-and-out Russians of gentle birth are at a hotel on the Rue de Rivoli. They mysteriously exist somehow.

Princess Accused of Theft.

An attractive young Russian Princess, who had lived alone at the Hotel Continental in Paris for several months and who associated with persons of excellent social status, recently fell on evil days. While in straitened circumstances and about at the end of her resources, she was accused of theft by Lady Wolseley of London, a friend who also lived at the Continental. The Princess, it seems, had an attack of heart trouble in the restaurant and was taken by Lady Wolseley to the latter's rooms. Leaving her on a bed, the Englishwoman went out for a physician. When she returned, the fair Russian was escorted to her own apartment. Immediately thereafter Lady Wolseley discovered that a large sum of money was missing from her handbag. She complained to the police, who found the missing money in the handbag of the Princess.

The Princess protested her innocence and declared Lady Wolseley had "planted" the money in her purse because the Englishwoman was jealous of her superior charms.

The matter was hushed up, but the hotel management invited the Princess to leave the hotel.

A Russian noblewoman of middle age, Baroness Chopsky, whose husband left her a fortune of 4,000,000 rubles, gold, before the war, lost nearly everything through the confiscation of her estates and sequestration of other property by the Bolsheviks. She lived in a tiny room at Nice, where a French branch of a Russian bank advanced her 2,000 francs a month on which to live, providing merely a bare existence. The Nice branch of this bank finally informed her that to obtain a continuance of the advances, she must go to the bank's headquarters in Paris, show her credentials and tell where her property was located in Russia.

The banks had made advances to the Baroness and other nobles and persons of property, now impoverished, on the theory, she told the correspondent, that the Soviet Government would be overthrown eventually and that private property rights would be restored. When the banks observed, however, that the Soviet authorities were becoming more strongly entrenched daily, they began to cut off these allowances.

Many Russians thus cut off from funds found themselves in a desperate situation. Most of them had never done any productive work. Some were too old to work.

MANY BANKRUPTCY CASES REPORTED IN GREAT BRITAIN

(Copyright, 1922)

LONDON, March 11.—If 1919 was a year of high festival for British profiteers, certainly the "loositeers" can claim 1922 for their own. Already there have been 1160 bankruptcy cases here since the first of the year.

The one business which is working overtime is that of the accountants, who have to try to untangle the scrambled finances of firms that have failed.

Every kind of business was hit by the commercial depression—insurance, textiles, rubber, oil, stock brokerage, provision merchants, farmers, builders, liquor dealers, confectioners and shipping firms.

Seventy-four farmers have failed in the last eight weeks, 160 provision traders, and 42 builders. In most cases the failures were very bad. In one, low water mark was reached, the creditors getting only a two-fifths of a cent on $5 due them.

PRIZES AWARDED IN EXHIBIT OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

The newspaper advertising exhibit of the Advertising Club, which has been on display for the last two weeks at the Statler Hotel in the club's quarters, ended yesterday with the announcement of the prize winners. First prize, a gold medal, went to the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co. A silver medal, second prize, was awarded Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Co. The Schiele Advertising Co. won third prize; a bronze medal, for an advertisement of a tonic.

The Awards Committee consisted of Michael Levy, Edward Mead, Walter C. Guels, C. W. Wessel, and W. H. Byrnes. Consideration was given the following points in making awards: Typography, layout, art, general effect on the consumer, and truth in the advertising.

This exhibition was the third in a series under the direction of the House Committee of the club designed to better St. Louis advertising craftsmanship. The fourth exhibition, of periodical advertising, starts Tuesday.

HANDICRAFT OF INVALID CHILDREN IS DISPLAYED

Exhibit of Work by Occupational Therapy Patients Is Produced at Hotel Statler.

The quick and happy way toward health for sick and crippled children, injured war veterans, bedridden sufferers, invalids, tubercular patients and the mentally afflicted, was illustrated by exhibits of the work of patients in the occupational therapy departments of city, State and Federal hospitals, at Hotel Statler last week, at the third annual meeting of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy. About 350 persons attended the meeting.

Occupational therapy, by means of which patients, given tasks requiring exercise of injured or afflicted parts of their bodies, regain use of these members, while at the same time having their minds diverted from their condition, was declared in an address by Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss to be, not only a recreation, but a real medicine as well. The speed with which the work has been introduced into local hospitals was praised by the Rev. W. C. Bitting. Other speakers were T. B. Kinder of New York City, institutional secretary of the National Tuberculosis Society, and Dr. V. V. Anderson of New York City, chief of the Bureau for Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

Much interest was given to the exhibition of the work of patients at the St. Louis Children's Hospital, many of whom are there as a result of the St. Louis Medical Society's recent offer of free examination and treatment. The handicraft of children from 2½ to 14 years old was shown, and included examples of woodcarving, painting, toy making, needlework, basket and mat weaving. Part of the display was from the hands of a 9-year-old boy recovering from an operation for the removal of an abscess on his brain.

Child Makes Handkerchief.

Several handkerchiefs of dainty and intricate design were the work of a little Russian girl, who came to the hospital with part of her face torn away by shrapnel in a bombardment of her home town in the war. At first very sensitive and inclined to hide away from the other children because of her marred condition, she showed small interest in the work. Gradually she was induced to take up needlework and soon became so engrossed that she seemed to forget her affliction. Later she was discharged, with her features restored.

A wooden horse that could be made to fling its tail in the air and to trot, run or gallop, was the handiwork of Chester, 10 years old, who, with right arm broken, clamped the wood to his work bench by the pressure of his shoulder and sawed out the horse with his left hand.

A bucking mule that pitched its rider over its head, a duck and rooster that pulled back and forth for a piece of string each held in its mouth, and a pair of woodchoppers who swung steady axes against a pile of logs, were the work of a combination of patients. One child, able to be up, cut out the figures; a little sufferer, strapped to a board because of a disease of the spine, sandpapered them, and a third gave the toys an attractive finish with paint and brush.

Cripples and other patients of 2½ years string together colored beads in simple designs, while those of 4 to 6 weave flowers from fancy yarn and sew designs on cardboard. All frequently get so interested that there is difficulty at times in stopping them before they overtax themselves, says Mrs. Ella C. Ficklin, superintendent of occupational therapy at the hospital. Engaged as they are, they forget entirely approaching operations, she says, and, once operated upon, seek to hasten their recovery that they may get back to their diversions.

Rugs Made by Patients.

Attractive rugs, made from burlap, torn up and dyed, by patients at the city sanitarium, where the mentally afflicted are treated, were among the exhibits from that institution. Here the patients are taken from the "disturbed" wards, placed in the occupational therapy department and then, as they progress, given places in the industrial wards, where utilitarian work is done. The chief object of the work, however, is to relieve their mental disorders, and in many cases cures have been effected.

Hammered brass articles, leather work and woodcarving, executed by injured war veterans, were shown in the displays from Veterans' Hospital No. 35 and the Marine Hospital. One soldier, who believed he had lost the use of a leg, because of wounds, regained control of the limb by pedaling a gigsaw with which he cut out a fancy-topped table.

Other exhibits were by the therapy association's shop for the handicapped, the Junior League's workshop, Barnes Hospital, Koch Hospital, the Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites, the Jewish Sanitarium, and State Hospitals at Fulton and Farmington, Mo. Some of the articles were the work of blind persons.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the association would need $21,000 to carry on its work this year. There is now left $4000, sufficient to continue activities for four months only. A campaign in April is to be launched for funds.

Dr. Coffee Says

Many Cases of Deafness, Head Noises and All Cases of Catarrh May Be Relieved —To Prove This He Will Treat New Patients One Time Free.

People afflicted with deafness, dullness of hearing, failing hearing, ulcers of the ears, head noises and especially those that have catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system may find relief. Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, has originated a non-surgical treatment that he has treated thousands of cases with. He says if the deafness is caused from catarrh, especially those cases where the hearing is quite bad in one ear and just starting in the other, where there is a crackling or other noises when the tube opens and closes, that get better and worse with each cold and have head noises and catarrh, nearly all of them can either be benefited or completely relieved. He says catarrh is a constitutional condition—that you have to treat the system as well as the nose and throat to get it out of the system. It may affect the stomach, nerves, cause headaches, rheumatism and other troubles. He has treated over 20,000 cases by his new method and wants to examine every sufferer. If he thinks he can help you he will treat you one time free to show you how his treatment acts and that you never used anything like it. This costs you nothing. He has established permanent offices in St. Louis, room 409 Odd Fellows Bldg., 816 Olive St. He will be in these offices Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week and see patients from 9 to 4:30. Many cases get very quick relief.

Dr. Coffee has published a new booklet on deafness, head noises and the different kinds of deafness and catarrh diseases of the nose, head and throat. It tells about 1000 cases successfully treated. He wants every sufferer to have one of these books free. If you cannot call on him personally write for his booklet on deafness, head noises, catarrh, cross eyes and eye diseases. It will be mailed you immediately. Dr. Coffee will make a 20% discount on all operations this month and if your eyes are weak, strained or your glasses do not fit you or you need your eyes tested for glasses he will examine you free and make a 20% discount on glasses this month. For special appointment phone Olive 8413.

"TOSS UP" DECIDES MAY QUEEN

Miss Luella Mueller and Miss Lois Dee, both of Lebanon, Ill., tied in the annual contest for Queen of the May at McKendree College, matched for it and on the flip of the coin Miss Mueller won.

Students and faculty participated in the voting and when the ballots were counted it was found that each had received the same number. The toss of a coin was decided on to avoid holding another election. Miss Mueller chose "tails" and Miss Dee "heads." "Tails" won.

Miss Mueller is a member of this year's graduating class. She has been in the academy and college seven years. Miss Dee also is a member of the graduating class.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling nearly a half-million cases of eczema and devoting 12 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what all you have used nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. If you write me TODAY I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

Gulbransen Player Piano

Easy to Play

You can have "47 kinds of fun" with a Gulbransen.

When young folks drop in, push back the rugs and put on a snappy dance number or the latest song hits. For the children, play a game roll, a Mother Goose rhyme set to music.

Father will see that there is a variety of the standard songs, and quite a few of the classics. Mother prefers old love ballads and the hymns.

In playing the Gulbransen, one is at once impressed with the charming ease of its pedals, the crisp, sure response of the action, the certainty of its expression-control, and the sheer loveliness of its tone.

The price, $495, is branded in the back of each instrument at the factory.

VIVISECTION IS CONDEMNED

In a resolution condemning the practice of vivisection as "unnecessary," and its claims of benefits as "grossly exaggerated," the St. Louis Branch of the American Medical Liberty League, at a meeting at Hotel Marquette Thursday, urged the Board of Aldermen to table indefinitely the proposed ordinance providing for the turning over of stray dogs for vivisection purposes.

The resolution declares it has never been shown that any knowledge of real value has ever been acquired through vivisection and that all claims of benefits have come from persons professionally or pecuniarily interested. Vivisection is "wholly useless," it is held, because "better and more successful treatments" of disease exist.

NEGLECT CHARGES AGAINST MUELLER ARE DISMISSED

Action Is Outgrowth of Complaint That County Prosecutor Failed to Suppress Gambling.

When Herbert A. Taylor appeared yesterday to support his motion for a special prosecutor to press his charge that Prosecuting Attorney Mueller of St. Louis County had neglected his duty in not suppressing wheels of fortune at an American Legion carnival in Maplewood last October, Circuit Judge Wurdeman not only denied the motion, but dismissed the charges.

Taylor said that wheels of fortune were particularly pernicious gambling, because women and children participated. Judge Wurdeman replied that if there was one prejudice he had it was against gambling, but that "in this case we will proceed in a legal manner." He said that a prosecutor could not be appointed because he had nothing to prosecute under the law.

Taylor was a defeated candidate for Judge of the County Court in the last election. He filed the affidavit against Mueller on last Oct. 19. On Nov. 3, Mueller filed a suit against him for $50,000 damages, alleging that the affidavit was false and malicious.

10 DAYS TO GET LICENSE

About 40,000 Issued to Date; 100,000 Total Expected.

Automobile owners still have about 11 days in which to acquire a 1922 State license tag, it was stated at the local license office in the city hall yesterday.

About 40,000 State licenses have been issued at the local office to date. Some confusion in the issuance has arisen this year by reason of the new requirement for certificate of ownership, to be displayed on applying for a license. It is expected that there will be nearly 100,000 licenses issued for St. Louis this year.

$50 FINE FOR 75-CENT DRINK

George Marable, a saloon keeper at 1500 Olive street, pleaded guilty yesterday to selling a drink of whisky for 75 cents.

"Fifty dollars for selling six-bit whisky," Federal Judge Dyer said. "That's all going out and nothing coming in. If this keeps up some of those fellows will be in a bad fix."

John W. Thomas, storekeeper at 6119 Bartmer avenue, was fined $100 for possession and John Stosececicz, bartender at 1201 O'Fallon, $100 for sale of whisky.

DID NOT EMPLOY OPEN SHOP MEN

Albert Koberman, Whose House Was Set on Fire, Makes Statement.

Albert Koberman of 4949 Itaska avenue, owner of a new house at 3832 South Compton avenue, which was set on fire a few days ago, denies that it was constructed on the open shop plan, or that both union and nonunion men were employed on it. The only controversy, he says, was on account of the painting, which was let to a contractor who did his own work. Koberman declares that no nonunion men were employed on the building.

INFLUENZA CHEST COLDS

Yields Quickly to New Oil Treatment

Many are finding relief from Influenza, Colds, and perhaps preventing pneumonia, it is said, by use of new oil treatment, which contains Coal Oil, Turpentine, Camphor, Oil Eucalyptus, Oil Cloves, Capsicum, Oil Origanum and other valuable oils, put up under the name of Miller's Antiseptic Oil (known as Snake Oil).

Its great penetrating, pain-relieving qualities insure almost instant relief when applied freely on the chest or throat well greased with Krou-Monia Salve when first symptoms arise. The oil penetrates through the affected parts and tends to open up the air passages, making breathing more easy, relieving the pains. And for the cough a few drops on a little sugar usually brings prompt relief. Don't fail to have a bottle on hand, also a jar of Krou-Monia Salve, when the attack comes on, and, if used according to directions, results are assured, or your money refunded. On sale at Wolff-Wilson and Enderle Drug Co. and all other leading druggists, 35c, [illegible] and [illegible] bottles.

PILES CURED WITHOUT OPERATION By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

You Can't Afford Not to Be Cured

Some people try to persuade themselves that they cannot afford to be treated and cured on account of the expense, but the wiser ones do just the opposite, and some people actually spend all they have or can borrow for the sake of being cured and find that they are rich as compared to when they were sick with the Piles and unable to work and enjoy life. There is no greater asset than health.

It is economy to spend money to be cured and extravagant waste of time and money to be sick and not able to work and produce a man's share.

What a Pleasure to Be Well

Think what a pleasure it will be to you to be Cured of your Rectal Trouble and to once more be well and strong like you used to be. What a pleasure health is and what a burden it is to be sick—what a joy comes from being able to bear one's part without having to take a thought of self.

What a load is lifted when one can feel and know that he is again free from pain and able to take hold and perform a man's part without having to whine and excuse one's self and lay the burden on others—often some loved ones who are scarcely able to take care of themselves.

What I have done for hundreds of others I can do for you, because "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure."

As delays are dangerous, Call on me this week or write today.

Itching and Bleeding Piles Cured by Dr. Henrich After Suffering Nine Years. Treatments Are Mild and Painless; Were Taken in Dr. Henrich's Office; Did Not Keep Him From Work.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 1, 1922.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor:—I am glad to tell you that I am now completely cured of a very bad case of Itching and Bleeding Piles after suffering nine years.

Your Treatment is very mild as it did not keep me from working and all the treatments were taken in your office; I did not have to go to any hospital as you did no cutting and caused me no pain.

I advise every sufferer from any kind of Piles to take your wonderful treatment at once. Respectfully yours, 4540 Maffitt Av. ANTONIO MATTERRA.

Suffered From Piles Many Years. Sometimes Pains Were Unbearable. Since Dr. Henrich Cured Him, He Feels Like a Newborn Man.

East St. Louis, Ill., Sept. 10, 1921.

Dr. W. P. Henrich.

Dear Sir:—I was a sufferer of Piles for many years and at times it was unbearable.

Hearing of your wonderful curing methods, I decided to give them a trial. It proved successful. I am a cured man. It is like being born over again.

Publish my testimonial so others may see it and be cured by your wonderful treatment. Very respectfully yours, 89 Church Lane ROY POLLOCK.

VIEWS OF THE LABOR UNION AND RADICAL PRESS

other shops and they do better work. The banker is mistaken. Farmers, like other workers, will do better work and more of it in a given period when they have decent conditions. And they will be far happier.

THE OPEN SHOP NOT OPEN.

(From the Toledo Union Labor Leader.)

The "open shop" movement has existed under one name or another ever since the union movement became formidable. The present agitation is simply better organized, better financed and better advertised than any of its predecessors. It has taken the name of the "open shop," a means of throwing dust in the eyes of a large number of people, who are generally referred to as the "public," meaning those citizens who are not organized into unions yet who are not actually antagonistic to labor organizations. But it is the antiunion shop, notwithstanding. It has usurped such slogans as "American plan," in order to capitalize the feeling of intense patriotism aroused by the great war, and "square deal," to appeal to people generally because every American, union or nonunion, beleves in the square deal for everybody.

It began its activities by loudly proclaiming that it did not seek the destruction of labor unions, but at the same time it assiduously spread its poisoned propaganda, in which it aimed to discredit unions before the people by claiming that they were arrogant, that they were bullies, that they denied the right of man to work, how and for whom he pleased, under whatever conditions he chose. It ignored that fact, proven by long years of experience, that the only way the working man could have anything to say about his wages, hours and conditions is through organization; that standing alone he is as helpless as was little Belgium when the German hordes poured across its borders.

Under the "open shop" collective bargaining goes by the board. As proof of this the "open shopper" cannot point to a single "open shop" where the principle of collective bargaining is in existence. Without collective bargaining the individual is impotent and entirely at the mercy of the employer.

BREAD—AND ROSES.

(From Industrial Solidarity Organ of I. W. W.)

Because the members of the I. W. W. insist that until the problem of securing adequate food, clothing and shelter to the whole human race is settled, no other question is worth very much of any one's attention, we are frequently reproached with being sordid materialists, dead to all the finer values of life. * * * The Wobblies are, no doubt, disposed to place frequent stress on doughnuts, pork chops and such mundane matters in their propaganda * * * but we return with interest the contempt of the dilletante "idealists" who, while hundreds of thousands all about them are in abject misery for the want of sheer necessities of existence which exists in abundance along with the machinery of producing abundantly more, are willing to minimize or ignore that condition while they play with their intellectual toys.

Not until poverty with all the pestilence that follows in its train—dirt, squalor, degradation, ignorance, insanity, disease and untimely death—has been banished from a planet so rich as ours and from an age so well equipped by science to exploit the planet's richness will the human race be set free to develop the buried treasures of its mind and spirit. Capitalism and wage slavery are the enemies of true culture, of all the finer attributes of man. They debase, equally, though differently, exploiters and exploited. * * *

The only idealism that is genuine, that is more than mere pose and piffle, is idealism based on the bedrock scientific materialism of the industrial revolutionist. There is enough and to spare for all the children of men of not only bread, but roses—the roses of art, beauty, leisure, travel—of that rational happiness which is found in the unhampered expression of every cultural faculty. Yet capitalism denies not only the opportunity, but the ability to enjoy the truly enjoyable thing of life to most of us. The hope of the revolutionary proletariat is the hope—and the only hope—of the world. The I. W. W. has come that we might have life and have it more abundantly.

COMMUNISM AND PACIFISM.

(Edgar Enderson in the Proletarian, Communist Organ.)

The communist has nothing in common with pacifism. It is true the communists all over the world opposed the world war, but it was not because they believed war is under all cirsumstances wrong. You may be sure that communism will not ask the worker to stand up before capitalism and with his hands folded and the tears of righteous reproach welling up his eyes, allow the capitalist to rain blows first upon one cheek and then on the other until capitalists topple over from sheer exhaustion. * * *

MONEY RATE EASE, LOWER EXCHANGES WEEK'S FEATURES

Interest Aroused by Advance in Price of Certain of the Heavier Steel Products — Bonds Rule Firm.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"While the grains and the foreign exchanges have shown a perhaps not unrelated tendency towards reaction, the undertone in the chief financial markets has continued to be rather remarkably steady. Bonds have been firm, stocks have shown little deviation from recent levels and another little wave of ease has appeared in the money market. Cotton has held well despite the British and Indian news, and sugar has moved up slightly to a new high for the year. Altogether, the position has been well maintained.

"A reaction in grain prices is, of course, quite natural after a rise as pronounced and sustained as that which has taken place this year. More favorable weather in the Southwest and indications that earlier ideas of crop damage will have to be revised undoubtedly have played a part in the week's decline. There have been signs, however, that foreign buying, which was an important factor in the advance, has become more intermittent. In addition, speculative profit-taking doubtless has, as usual, played its part in the movement.

"The behavior of the foreign exchange market meanwhile is such as to strengthen the view that the recent advance was arrested by the appearance of a considerable supply of commercial bills. European buying of grain, sugar, cotton, oil and non-ferrous metals has been fairly active during the recent weeks. With the exchanges rising, the natural tendency was to hold these bills off the market until the maximum number of dollars could be bought. It would appear that when the exchanges finally did give evidences of a reaction, which may have marked a halt in the wave of American buying of foreign securities, the accumulated bills made their appearance. The ensuing sharp reaction in turn has tended to curb foreign buying of our raw materials. Thus the two movements have paralleled each other for quite understandable reasons.

The Steel Price Advance.

"Much has been made of the unfavorable character of the week's foreign news and of our own attitude with regard to the Genoa conference. Yet the situation in India is hardly more acute than at several times during recent months, and the event which has put India in the week's news is a sharp split within the British Government regarding Indian policy rather than any action by the Indians themselves. Certainly the exchanges have proved remarkably insensitive to the latest news, and one may well ask if what we have experienced has not been the culmination of a swing in sentiment rather than an actual heading up of a series of crises. Similarly it would be premature to conclude from our reply to the Genoa invitation that the administration is uninterested in European conditions, or that it will take no part in improving these conditions.

"With regard to the Rand difficulties, the situation is somewhat different. The strike has already done grave injury to South African trade and to that Government's finances. It is interrupting, furthermore, the flow of gold into the London market. A partial offset is promised meanwhile, by reports that the export of soviet gold through Sweden is to continue. It would appear, however, that our importations of gold are likely to be more irregular, which circumstance, coupled with the imminence of spring trade, may retard the relaxation in money rates.

"In the domestic field, much interest has been aroused during the past week by an advance in the price of certain of the heavier steel products. It is quite possible that the importance of the event has been exaggerated. The increase is made in products which had suffered severely during the period of price reductions. What the present advance would seem to indicate is that the manufacturers have served notice that they have secured all the business they wish at present prices. What the situation will be when the present orders have been worked off remains to be seen."

Rails Strong Saturday.

"Yesterday's strength in stocks was continued this morning in a session which was rather more active than usually the case on Saturdays. Rails maintained their gains and in several instances added thereto, while equipments also were firm. Copper shares and sugar stocks were well taken.

"Among the foreign exchanges a quieter condition existed with the Europeans irregular. The allied currencies were weaker, sterling losing ¾ of a cent at $4.35¼ and French francs dropping back 3 points to 8.97½ cents. German marks declined ⅛ of a point to 0.38½ of a cent. The Scandinavian exchanges, on the other hand, were firm, as were those of Holland and Switzerland.

"Wheat reacted about 1 cent, but rallied well and May was practically unchanged at $1.37. Cotton was slightly lower, the May future losing 6 points at 18.04 cents.

"Surplus reserves of the Clearing House banks amounted to $30,400,000 as compared with a deficit of $12,100,000 last week. Loans are smaller by $22,700,000 and deposits are greater by $24,500,000. Reserve deposits with the Federal Reserve Bank show an increase of $45,100,000 and Government deposits are practically unchanged."

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The chief event in the financial markets today was the lowering of the French bank rate to 5 per cent as compared to 5½ where it has stood since the close of last July. Not since the first month of the war has the rate been so low and, in fact, the present quotation is almost back to peace time conditions represented by the 4½ per cent discount of July, 1914.

The action of the French, to be sure, was no surprise. It has been expected right along ever since the latest reduction in the Bank of England.

It was another very strong and active stock market and a big day also in the bonds.

Sterling exchange got down almost to its low of the week. The wheat market opened lower, but again met the same determined support that had appeared yesterday.

The stock market closed at the top figures of the week.

The Bond Market.

The situation in the bond market during today's short session remained about as it was yesterday. Trading was quite active, and there were several special movements, such as the weakness in Greater New York tractions and the strength in sugar issues. A number of new high records were reached. In the foreign Government group, for instance, Danish municipals, the French Government 8s and Swedish 6s all struck fresh tops, while United States war loan and the rest of the foreign loans were little changed. Victory 4¾s sold most of the time slightly below their high of the last hour yesterday.

The new offering of the 20-year 5½ per cent Province of Manitoba, Canada, bonds at 102½ and interest by a New York banking syndicate this week proved a stimulus in the market for Canadian provincial issues.

LOW-PRICED ISSUES ARE FAVORITES IN DULL TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The feature of the Curb Exchange today was the pronounced weakness in the Interborough 8 per cent bonds. Heavy selling followed the statement of the company in which intimation was made that either the elevated lines would be divorced or the company put into the hands of a receiver. The selling came principally from Stock Exchange houses, and about the only buying orders came from the specialists at lower levels.

Dealings were smaller in stocks, with the low-priced issues again the favorites. R. J. Reynolds encountered profit-taking at the start but rallied later.

The Copper Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Copper has shown a very generally firm tone during the past week, with an improved demand for both export and domestic consumption. The business has not been general or active, but it has apparently been sufficient to maintain the market at the price views of producers and quotations for electrolytic now range from 13 to 13¼. Iron was unchanged.

French Rediscount Rate Lowered.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 11.—The Bank of France today lowered its discount rate from 5½ to 5 per cent.

Statistics show that the average of business failures among reputable investment houses during the past ten years is less than ½ of 1%, a percentage less than that of any other business, including national banking.

This reveals a high degree of business ability and integrity and suggests the desirability of conducting security transactions with firms where risk is reduced to a minimum.

FINANCIAL LONDON HEARS TALK OF TAX REDUCTION

Lowering of Levy by 1 Shilling on Incomes and Reduced Beer Tax Among Rumors, Says Writer — Political Outlook.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, March 11.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review today says:

"It is impossible to say how long the markets will remain impervious to the political outlook. It has been evident for the past three years that the Montagu policy in India must bring serious trouble. At home two millions of unemployed are subsisting on doles.

Talk of Tax Reduction.

"Balfour's recent defense of the coalition is not generally approved in the financial district. Briefly stated, the speech was a powerful and clever defense of the principles of coalition as compared with party Government. The district, however, quarrels not with the general idea of a coalition Government, but with the existing coalition.

"It is believed, however, that the Premier has control of enormous party funds and would mean a terrific and possibly a successful contest for fresh power on a general election.

"Any soundly prepared balanced sheet must show practically no surplus, especially if debt service to America is commenced. There is, nevertheless, much well informed talk of a reduction of 1 shilling in the income tax, which involves over £30,000,000. A reduced duty on beer is also expected. Government supporters are industriously fomenting the idea that a reduction in taxation, even at the expense of an unsound balance sheet, is justified as the best means for reviving trade. Such arguments, of course, are fallacious, and it is even believed that the recent small reaction in sterling is partly due to your modifying your recent favorable views of our situation. Nevertheless, as against this view, we believe that you also are affected by such unfavorable influences as are typified by the proposed soldiers' bonuses and the farmers' attitude regarding the Federal Reserve Board.

Says Narrow View Taken.

"It is also considered that you are taking a narrow view of your financial responsibilities. The true interests of both America and Britain require the restoration of prosperity in Europe, which is quite impossible, however, without a combination of financial aid and political guidance, not to say control. Your disinclination to become concerned in Europe's entanglements is appreciated; but it is always considered that Britain and America could, if need required, effect all the necessary control through the joint employment of economic forces. It is believed, however, that your extreme anxiety concerning any growth in your imports and any depletion in your reserves, coupled with your reported insistence on all proceeds of foreign loans being spent in America, scarcely reflects a sufficiently large view of the financial responsibilities which have followed your newly acquired financial strength. Such an attitude, furthermore, scarcely does sufficient justice to that strength which, as expressed both in gold and trade balance, is unprecedented in the world's history.

"It is believed the Greek loan which has been expected here has been definitely postponed."

The Investment Market.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Selling of local utilities based on the proposal of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. to relinquish its leased lines, caused some irregularity in the bond market today, although the tendency was mainly better.

Interborough 5s, Interborough Consolidated 4½s and Manhattan Elevated 4s fell 1 to 2 points, but these losses were partly retrieved. Mexican Government 4s were heaviest of the foreign group, French Government 8s displaying marked strength, with improvement in United Kinkdom issues. Among rails Louisville & Nashville 5½s and Great Northern 7s were exceptionally stdong. St. Paul convertibles, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Chesapeake & Ohio 4½s and New Haven debenture 6½s were firmer. Liberty bonds and Victory notes held steady.

Bond market movements during the week were somewhat mixed, but the average of prices was materially higher at the close, utilities and several of the foreign industrials contributing to the better tone. Strong features of today's moderate but varied operations included American Telephone 6s, which rose 1½ points, and Cuban Cane 7s and 8s at 3-point advances.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review today says:

"The market for European exchange was decidedly unsettled during the past week, severe losses being sustained in rates to many leading centers; gains made in the preceding part of the year were materially reduced. This recession in the exchange market was naturally the cause of a good deal of conjecture, leading banking dealers differing essentially in their comments as to the moving forces, but a natural explanation both of the decline and the various expressions of the trading incentives was that a reasonable reaction had occurred just when disturbing influences appeared.

"According to those whose operations had much to do with directing the movements in leading exchanges, the factors which caused the advance in sterling to $4.44¼ in the preceding week included a demand for remittances of importers' balances, settlement of freight charges and transmission of international government and commercial credits. These were completed on the upward movement. Since the beginning of the week financial affairs here and abroad became of a disquieting character and in the first half of this week there was a supply of commercial bills which were pressed on the market when there was a complete absence of inquiry. This supply included bills against exports of cotton, wheat, oil, copper and sugar to many European points, such as France, Italy, Holland and Spain as well as Great Britain. Far Eastern bankers stated that the Far East was a seller of sterling in large volume in the first four days of the week. These offerings with other factors were effective in forcing demand sterling down to $4.34¾ on Wednesday, a loss of nearly 10 cents from the recent high, and sales were made at that level on Thursday also, but the market showed a rallying tendency in the late trading on both days. German exchange sold early in the week at .37¾, a new low for the year, but was in good demand after that decline and made a sharp rally. Austrian exchange sold at a new low record and Russian Romanoff rubles also sold at a new low record, falling to .05 on Thursday, equal to 20 rubles for 1 cent.

"Among the foreign exchanges Saturday a quieter condition existed with the Europeans irregular. The allied currencies were weaker, sterling losing ⅝ of a cent at $4.35½ and French francs dropping back 3 points to 8.92½ cents. German marks declined ⅛ of point to 0.38½ of a cent. The Scandivanian exchanges, on the other hand, were firm, as were those of Holland and Switzerland."

Following are Saturday's quotations in the foreign exchange market:

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Earlier week advances were followed by slight reactions in the market for coffee futures here today. The opening was 6 points lower, but there was only a little scattering liquidation for over the week end and after selling off to 8.96c at the start, December rallied to 9.03c. Other months held about steady around the opening figures with the market closing at a net decline of 2 to 6 points. Sales were estimated at about 11,000 bags. SETBACK IN PRICES OF GRAINS DURING WEEK

The moisture received by the Southwest grain belt caused setbacks in price of grains the past week.

The sharpest price breaks in the wheat market accompanied by the heaviest selling were simultaneous with reports of snow and rain in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The prolonged lack of adequate moisture had given rise to predictions of so small a yield as to mean at least temporary curtailment of the world's breadstuff supply. Increased world shipments, although presumably in anticipation of a shortage, were also a factor in weakening values. On the other hand, United States Government figures on farm reserve stocks of grain appeared to have been discounted in advance, and so failed to stimulate any great amount of new buying. Subsequently, however, gossip that Russia was acquiring wheat, rye and oats on a large scale attracted notice and helped somewhat to overcome the downward tendency of the wheat market.

Corn and oats mainly followed the leadership of wheat.

Lower prices on lard at Liverpool, together with the breaks in American grain values weakened the provision markets.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Strength of corn featured the week-end session on the Merchants' Exchange. Wheat was affected but the close was mixed, only May wheat being higher.

In the cash grain market Saturday select soft wheat was 1c to 2c higher, but ordinary qualities were slow. Hard wheat was unchanged. Mills took the best grades. Cash corn was ½c to 2c higher. There was good demand, elevators and local trade buying. There was good shipping demand for oats and prices were steady to ⅝c higher.

Wheat futures opened lower on May and July at $1.31⅝ and $1.13½ respectively while corn futures were unchanged at 60½c for May and 63⅝ for July. The loss in wheat was soon recovered and prices ranged above last night's close. Liverpool closed unchanged to 1½c lower. Corn here sold up.

CATTLE AND SHEEP HIGHER, HOGS LOWER

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last	Prev.	Year
Cattle and calves	15,208	17,239	12,271
Hogs	65,155	68,251	58,504
Sheep	5,510	4,269	5,034
Totals	85,873	89,759	75,809

Cattle and sheep prices again worked slightly higher at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week, while hogs, on the other hand, suffered a setback. Receipts were moderate in all departments. Steady improvement has been shown in the cattle market during the past six weeks and values are on the highest basis in many months. The six-day offering during the past week figured approximately 15,200 head. Quality was slightly improved over previous weeks. Beef steers ruled slightly higher each day up to Thursday, when slight weakness occurred. The market closed about 15c up for the week. The top price paid for cattle was $9 per 100 pounds, this for a two-car consignment of branded Hereford steers averaging 1530 pounds. Numerous other lots of steers and yearlings ranged from $8 up and a spread of $7 to $8 caught the bulk of all killing beeves offered. Butcher yearlings, fleshy cows and bulls showed a 25c advance, while canners and cutters averaged no better than steady. The rank and file of light steers and heifers moved from $5.50 to $7.50; butcher cows ranged from $3.75 to $6.50, with the bulk from $4.50 to $5.75; cutter cows made $3 to $3.50; canners, $2.50 to $3; beef bulls, $4.50 to $5.50, and bologna bulls, $3.75 to $4.75. Stocker and feeder cattle were in healthy demand throughout the week and values again ruled upward on virtually all classes. Steers moved up 25c, 40c in spots. Best feeder steers reached $7.60 and the bulk of all weights varied from $5.50 to $6.90. Veal calves, after a steady opening, best lights, $10.50 to $11.25, broke 50c to 75c on the late trade, best kinds Friday going at $10 to $10.50. Common offerings showed no essential change.

Hog Prices Decline.

Hog values hovered around the year's high point, showing little change from the preceding week until Friday, when the market started downward and during the two final sessions declines of 40 to 50 cents were recorded. During the first four days the top ranged from $11.35 to $11.45, but on Saturday dropped to $11, comparing with $11.40 at the close of the preceding week. Receipts were moderate, totaling 65,155, compared to 68,251 a week previous. An unsatisfactory feature of the trade was a too heavy proportion of light immature stock. There was a slow, inactive market for stock under 160 pounds, which sold at a discount during the week. Packers continue to buy sparingly, leaving most of the offerings to order buyers and city butchers, principally the former. Pigs, particularly the heavier weights, received very poor buying support. Stock pigs on the other hand showed improvement. Owing to the greatest decline being on light weights, which formerly brought the top, the spread in prices was narrower and light, medium and heavy hogs sold well together in a spread of $11@11.40. Pigs extended from $7.50@9.50 on offerings under 100 pounds to $10@11 on 110 to 150-pound stock. Rough sows sold from $9.50@9.75, or at a 50 to 75 cent advance. Demand was particularly active for the latter class.

Lambs Rise Early.

A better supply of sheep and lambs was gratifying to all hands, as the market has been running on very limited supplies for several weeks, the run last week and the preceding week being the lightest under normal conditions in several years. Total supply this week was 5510, comparing to 4269 last week and 3105 two weeks ago. Practically all of the lambs got in during the first three days and after Wednesday there was nothing on which to base a market. During the fore part of the week prices advanced 50@75c, but quotations have since been marked down 25 cents to correspond with prices at other markets. At the close choice lambs were quoted from $15.50@15.75, or 25 to 50 cents higher for the week. The top early in the week was $16, equalling the highest price of the year. Featuring the week's trade was the sale on Tuesday of several loads of choice Colorado ewes at $9, the highest price recorded since June, 1920. Market for sheep is about 25 cents higher for the week, with good native ewes from $8@8.50 and fancy Westerns $8.50@9. Quote cull lambs from $11@12.50, canner sheep $2@3 and choppers and bucks from $3@4.50.

Receipts at the horse and mule market were moderate, figuring about 2000 head, 1500 of which were on commission. There was a broad demand for all classes of horses and values ruled higher in most departments. Eastern types virtually regained all of the decline suffered the previous week. Mules found uneven sale, with the average steady to some lower. The offering out of first hands figured something like 1000 head. Part sold out of alleys to dealers and the remainder was disposed of at auctions.

STRENGTH OF CORN FACTOR IN WHEAT MARKET TREND

CHICAGO, March 11.—Light trading, quick changes in prices and general nervousness marked today's short sessions of the Chicago Board of Trade. Most of the transactions were by local traders. Wheat finished ½c lower to ⅛c higher, corn ½c to ⅝c higher, oats unchanged to ⅛c higher and provisions from 12½c to 17c lower.

Wheat opened weak on depressing cables, but took on new life when corn showed independent strength, and later bulged sharply when local shorts, who had sold freely on the opening decline, were driven to cover. With this movement ended there was nothing to interest the market and prices sagged feebly. Within the last 15 minutes wheat touched the low point of the day, but scored a recovery of a full cent before the close.

The Government report showing mill and elevator stocks of 73,000,000 bushels was 9,000,000 less than last year, but was, nevertheless, construed as bearish, as farm reserves of 204,000,000 bushels were thus indicated.

Local buying gave early strength to the corn market, but was not extensive enough to hold it up throughout the session. Outside trade was light and the market towards the late swung into the path blazed by the wheat pit.

Oats were dull. The bulk of the operations were trades in the May and July spread.

There was some Eastern buying of provisions, but on the whole that portion of the market was dull. There was enough scattered selling to make for lower prices.

COTTON FUTURES DOWN AT CLOSE IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 11.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 5 points today owing to further rains in the Eastern belt, Liverpool buying and scattered covering. There was considerable realizing for over the week-end, however, and probably a little selling on apprehensions that the British engineers' difficulty would be reflected by lower Liverpool cables on Monday. Reviews of the domestic goods trade made rather a bearish showing also and prices sagged off to a shade below last night's close shortly after the opening. May contracts declined from 18.18c to 18.08c, or 2 points net lower.

Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 100,000 pieces and the curtailment was placed at 125,000. Mill curtailment in New England was said to be increasing and there were continued reports that Southern yarn mills were talking curtailment because of poor trade. Except for realizing, however, local brokers reported very little selling. Rumors were circulating that considerable cotton is coming here from the South for delivery in March, but March contracts held relatively steady during the entire mornig.

The market sagged off later, owing to the outlook for clearing weather in the Eastern belt sections and scattering liquidation. May sold off to 18.03c and the market closed easy at a net decline of 4 to 13 points.

Cotton futures closed easy; March, 18.32c; May, 18.03c; July, 17.30c; October, 16.68c; December, 16.45c.

NEW PLAYS AND FILMS AND NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN PLAYERS

"Husband's Trademark" "The Beautiful Liar" "Chasing the Moon"

Special Feature at Two Theaters Will Be a Picturization of the Great Naval Battle of Jutland.

ON LOCAL SCREENS

Missouri—Gloria Swanson in "Her Husband's Trademark."

New Grand Central and West End Lyric—"The Beautiful Liar" and "Battle of Jutland."

Liberty—Tom Mix in "Chasing the Moon."

Delmar, Criterion and Congress—Sessue Hayakawa in "Five Days to Live."

Frank McGlynn as Lincoln, and Jennie A. Eustace as Mrs. Lincoln, in "Abraham Lincoln"—American.

THE Missouri Theater this week has a triple feature program consisting of the latest Paramount picture, "Her Husband's Trade Mark"; Creatore, the bandmaster, leading an augmented orchestra, and vocal selections sung by Sherry Louise Marshall, a coloratura soprano.

Gloria Swanson and Stuart Holmes have the leading roles in "Her Husband's Trade Mark." In this instance the trade mark which fixes the standing of the husband is a gorgeously dressed wife. He is one of those husbands who has not amassed wealth, but hopes to attain it by making a show of prosperity. A former friend returns with wealth and fame and falls in love with the climber's wife, who, through selfish aims, rather encourages the romance.

The action is carried into Mexico, where there is a thrilling encounter with bandits, in which the cowardly husband is slain and the wife is rescued by the "other man." Holmes has the role of the husband and Richard Wayne is seen in the character of the "friend."

The picture drama feature at the New Grand Central and West End Lyric for the week is Katharine MacDonald in "The Beautiful Liar," but the management of these theaters is laying greater stress on "The Battle of Jutland," which is said to be a striking picturization of the World War's greatest sea conflict between the British and the Germans. It is said to tell a complete story of the battle and to show the methods of naval warfare and the manner of handling 600 battleships as though they were a company of 600 men.

The Liberty's principal attraction for the week is "Chasing the Moon," with that irrepressible cowboy hero, Tom Mix, in the star role. Eva Novak has the leading feminine role.

Mix has the part of a young man of wealth and social distinction who seeks and finds amusement among the cowpunchers on the Western ranges. By way of reciprocation he togs out a lot of cowboys in evening clothes and takes them to a cafe "in the big city." His fiancee, who is on a slumming tour, finds him dancing with a chorus girl.

After the offended sweetheart has given back his ring, he accidentally cuts himself and gets a deadly poison in the wound. Only a Russian doctor who has sailed for Europe knows the antidote. The hero pursues him and this chase carries the action into Russia and Spain. There is said to be a dramatic climax.

The feature for the first three days of the week at the Delmar, Criterion and Congress is Sessue Hayakawa in "Five Days to Live." For the first time this Japanese star has a cast made up entirely of Orientals. Tsuru Aoki has the leading feminine role.

Doris Kenyon is an ardent devotee of golf, and is also a football enthusiast, rarely missing a collegiate football match that's played within a reasonable distance of wherever she may be.

Gloria Swanson in "Her Husband's Trademark.'

Dorothy Gish proved her versatility one evening not long ago. Her husband, James Rennie, is playing in "Pot-Luck," a popular New York stage play. When the curtain descended after the first act, the leading lady was taken ill and could not continue with her performance. Chaos reigned back-stage. In front sat the audience, expectant. Then Dorothy came valiantly to the rescue. She had been in the theater frequently during the rehearsals and seen the play several times, with the result that she was table to take the leading lady's place. The play continued without a hitch.

"Abraham Lincoln" and "The Last Waltz" Open Eventful Week Tonight

Drinkwater's Noble Drama, With Frank McGlynn, and Latest Operetta by Oscar Straus, With Eleanor Painter.

AT the time when Great Britain was lapsing into that fever for "revanche" which culminated in Premier Lloyd George's campaign on a platform of hanging the Kaiser, an English poet, John Drinkwater, sought to express his revulsion, and to teach a loftier spirit, by treating dramatically some historical personage who, in his own words, had "handled war nobly and with imagination." The hero whom he chose was an American President, and the resulting play, "Abraham Lincoln," arrives at the American tonight for a week's engagement. Leading the cast is Frank McGlynn, whose impersonation of the Civil War executive is pronounced by men who knew Lincoln to be of uncanny veritism.

Of unusual value, likewise is the Jefferson's offering for this week—nothing less than a new operetta, "The Last Waltz," by Oscar Strauss, composer of "A Waltz Dream" and "The Chocolate Soldier." The latter stands among the finest examples of its school, by reason of the inspiration and exquisite workmanship of the score. "The Last Waltz" opens tonight, with a cast headed by Miss Eleanor Painter, considered by many the most gifted of light-opera prima donnas.

"Abraham Lincoln" was first produced at Birmingham, England, by the Repertory Theater, of which Drinkwater happened to be the artistic director. The London managers magnificently ignored it, with the result that when Arnold Bennett and Nigel Playfair determined to take the play to the capital, the only theater they could obtain was in Hammersmith, a suburb. "Imagine," wrote Bennett, "somebody putting on a play about the Crimean War at some unknown derelict theater round about Two Hundred and Fiftieth street, and drawing all New York to Two Hundred and Fiftieth street."

English and American Success.

"NOBODY can dine out in London today," Bennett reported a few months later, "and admit without a blush that he has not seen 'Abraham Lincoln.'" It was a play which, by all accepted canons, could not possibly succeed. It had no love interest. It was a political play, and its theme was the secession of the Confederate States of America. The actor who played Lincoln in London was William J. McRea, a red-headed Irishman of small stature. Yet the London run has only recently come to an end, and in the United States "Abraham Lincoln"

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

Bert Glennon, chief camera-man of the George Melford troupe, found his knowledge of aerial travel gained in the late war came in handy when he had to make scenes of Dorothy Dalton guiding an airplane through the upper spaces for "The Woman Who Walked Alone." Glennon took his camera, minus the tripod, and parked himself out on the fuselage, just behind the engine.

Alan Hale, who played the bibulous heavy role in "One Glorious Day" with Will Rogers and Lila Lee, has a fascinating characterization in "The Dictator," Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture. He will appear as Don Juan Sabos, a typical Latin-American lady killer, self-imposed "sleuth," and general factotum of the power then in force in a troubled republic. Hale, a blonde giant, will temporarily abandon dress suit and almost scandinavian fairness, for the more swarthy complexion and gaudy trappings of a Don of the Latin lands.

May McAvoy, who is only 18, started in the movies as an extra. She left high school in her third year and decided to succeed in pictures. One of her first parts was in a picture with Madge Kennedy and her first big success as Grizel in "Sentimental Tommy."

"ROSE OF STAMBOUL" BEWITCHING OPERETTA

Other Attractions, New or Otherwise, in Which New York Is Finding Diversion.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 11.

THE intoxicating loveliness of the music and the Oriental splendor of the stage pictures fascinated a big opening-night audience which welcomed a new Viennese operetta, "The Rose of Stamboul," Tuesday night, at the Century Theater. The work has been some time in reaching New York, but reports have come of its vast popularity on the banks of the Danube. Leo Fall composed the original score; additional melodies, which do not violate the spirit of the original, have been added by Sigmund Romburg; and Harold Atterbridge provides an English book and lyrics.

The story is that of a Turkish Princess who is compelled for reasons of state to marry an unwelcome suitor. After the pleasant fashion of operettas, he turns out to be the poet with whom she has fallen in love from reading his books in the secrecy of the harem.

The first scene reveals, with a wealth of Eastern pomp and circumstance, the glittering harem of the Princess. The second transports the spectators to the gleaming palace of her Turkish lover, made resplendent for the wedding feast. For the third setting we are borne to a lovely scene on the Riviera.

Tessa Kosta and Marion Green.

AN admirable cast has been supplied for this beautifully mounted light opera. Tessa Kosta, with the laurels of her performance in "The Chocolate Soldier" still fresh, is the Princess, and Marion Green, who starred in "Monsieur Beaucaire," is the lover. James Barton, in one of his familiar clowning roles, supplies what is deemed the needful humor for the proceedings.

Miss Kosta sang captivatingly such numbers as "My Heart Is Calling" and a waltz song in the second act. Green used his baritone gloriously in his entrance number, "The Rose of Stamboul," with a male octet; and there were two or three striking duets for the lovers, culminating in an exquisite waltz song in the last act. In some of the lesser roles are Henry Warwick, Mabel Withee, Jack McGowan and Elizabeth Reynolds. During the festivities of the wedding feast appeared a remarkable pair of acrobatic dancers from Paris, the Lockfords.

The costuming of the large chorus is rich and beautiful. The production has been put on without any apparent scruple as to cost, and the ensembles are grouped with an artistic eye to symmetry and color effects. The Shuberts have never offered a production more lavish and esthetic.

Theater Guild Produces Second Part of "Back to Methuselah."

THE Theater Guild, on Monday night at the Garrick, produced the second installment of George Bernard Shaw's cycle, "Back to Methuselah."

There can be only the greatest praise for the skillful direction of Frank Reicher and for the beautiful, imaginative settings and costumes de-has proved one of the foremost successes of recent years.

"ABRAHAM LINCOLN" AND "THE LAST WALTZ" OPEN WEEK TONIGHT

It was produced in New York during 1919, and has only this season taken to the road. There is only one company on tour, and Frank McGlynn is the actor who created the name-part in this country. Inevitable changes have occurred in the cast of some 30 characters. One of the most interesting cases is that of Charles S. Gilpin, a negro actor, who played the part of William Custis, an ex-slave, in the Cort Theater production. It was his success in this role which won for him an opportunity to star in "The Emperor Jones."

The play is in six scenes, and covers a period of five years. The first scene is at Lincoln's home at Springfield, Ill., in 1860, when messengers from the Republican National Convention arrive to offer him the presidential nomination. The second scene, a year later, is at the White House, Washington, and President Lincoln, confronted with the problem of Fort Sumter, decides to resist secession, and contrives to win Seward's whole-hearted loyalty.

Lee's Surrender Depicted.

THE third scene, also at the White House, two years later, introduces two women callers, one a pacifist and the other a type of the vengeful "patriot" whom Drinkwater desired to rebuke. Here the playwright puts into Lincoln's mouth his own sentiments concerning magnanimity in warfare; and here also Lincoln reveals to William Custis his determination to emancipate the slaves.

The fourth scene, in the Cabinet room of the White House, at about the same time, reveals Lincoln reading a passage from Artemus Ward, to the disgust of some of his secretaries; and then announcing the Emancipation Proclamation. The fifth scene—perhaps the noblest in the play—depicts Lee's surrender to Grant at Appomattox. The final episode is at Ford's Theater, Washington; Lincoln is delivering from his box a composite of the second inaugural and of the Gettysburg address, when he is assassinated by John Wilkes Booth.

Besides Lincoln, numerous historical characters are introduced, such as Seward, Salmon P. Chase, Montgomery Blair, Simon Cameron, Gideon Welles, Mrs. Lincoln, Edwin M. Stanton, John Hay, Gen. Grant, Gen. Lee and Gen. Meade. A fictitious character, Burnet Hook, is created to personify the opposition which Lincoln met in his own cabinet. Verses recited by Chroniclers bind the various scenes together.

In the cast are Winifred Hanley, William W. Crimans, Bertha K. Wood, William Brady, Jennie A. Eustace, Warren Ashe, Frank Ginter, Priscilla Knowles, Colvin Dunn, James Durkin, John P. Hickey, Wallace Clinton, James S. Barrett, William Corbett, William R. Randall and about 15 others. The settings and effects are said to be exactly those of the New York production.

"Best Musical Show of Year."

"THE LAST WALTZ," on its production at the Century theater, was pronounced on all sides to be the most beautiful musical presentation of the season, not only in its score and singing, but in its costuming and scenery. There is a big chorus, and in support of Miss Painter appear Harry Fender, a former St. Louisan; Walter Woolf, Eleanor Griffith, Florence Morrison, Harrison Brockbank, Isabel Rodriguez, Gladys Walton, Edward Golden, Irving Rose, Timothy Daly, Frank J. Curran, Robert Cally, Raymond Metz and George Evans. Additional musical numbers have been supplied by Al Goodman.

The action takes place in Vandalia a mythical kingdom in the Balkans, and for American purposes the hero is converted into an officer of the United States Navy. He saves a young woman from humiliation at the hands of the Prince Regent, and is thrown into jail. With her aid, he manages to escape, but hearing that the authorities are about to avenge themselves on the girl, voluntarily returns to captivity. With the assistance of his orderly, a pugnacious "gob," he finally outwits his enemies and carries the heroine off to safety and happiness.

For next week the American announces Ruth Chatterton in a new play, "Mary Rose," by Sir James M. Barrie; and for the ensuing week, William Gillette in "The Dream Maker." The death of Bert Williams eliminated his scheduled appearance at the Jefferson in "Under the Bamboo Tree," next week; what show will replace it has not been announced. Leo Ditrichstein, in "The Great Lover" will play at this theater during the week of March 26.

Mildred Harris at Orpheum.

THE headliner at the Orpheum this week is Mildred Harris, formerly Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, who is having her first fling at the speaking stage. She appears in a one-act comedy, "Getting the Money," by Edwin Burke, which is based upon the experience of a young woman seeking a career as a movie star. Supporting Miss Harris are S. Miller Kent and Beatrice Morgan. Others on the same bill are William Halligan, in "Highlowbrow," a sketch by S. Jay Kaufman; Jim Toney and Ann Norman, in dialogue and songs; Stan Stanley, comedian and gymnast; Fred Barnard and Sid Garry, in "Southern Syncopation;" Nellie and Josephine Jordan, in songs and dances; and Joseffson's Icelanders.

At the Columbia for the first half of the week the feature act will be a revue called "The Story Book," with Miss Buster Edwards and others. The film offering is "Received Payment," with Corinne Griffith. Other items on the bill are Marlette's Marionettes, the three Kuhns, in "A Breeze From the West;" Illa Grannon, a singer; and John Richards, eccentric comedian. The program for the second part of the week will include Brockman and Howard, Stein and Smith, Nelson's "Katland," Herron and Arnsman and Deszo Retter. The screen feature will be "Iron to Gold," with Dustin Farnum.

Rialto, Garrick and Gayety.

GEORGE WHITING and Sadie Bert head the Rialto's bill, with a song act. Others are Claudia Coleman, in "Feminie Types;" Paul Decker, in an Edwin Burke comedy, "I Heard;" Be No One, the "mandarin minstrel;" Ed Janis and his revue, and Wilbur and Smith.

A musical comedy revue, "The Runway Girls," is the Garrick's offering this week, with Pat Daly, Charles Marshall, Rae Leanse, Arlone Johnson, Lucille Whitmore, Bobby Burch, Joe Wilson and a chorus.

The Gayety announces "Jingle Jingle," a burlesque show, with Harry Steppe, Harry O'Neal, Stella Morrissey and Evyleen Ramsey. As in previous weeks, there will be amateur tryouts Friday night and a "carnival" entertainment on Saturday night.

signed by Lee Simonson. There is no acting in the accepted sense of the term, but as a feat of memory and an intellectual tour de force those in the cast perform an exploit never before approached in the theater. The players taking part this week are Albert Bruning, A. P. Kaye, Moffatt Johnson, Claude King, Margaret Wycherly, Eleanor Woodruff, George Gaul, Stanley Howlett and others.

The first installment, put on a week ago, consisted of two plays, "In the Beginning" and "The Gospel of the Brothers Barnabas." It will be remembered that Mr. Shaw here developed his thesis that mankind, if it is to win salvation, must learn to prolong human life to at least 300 years. The plays presented this week are "The Thing Happens" and "The Tragedy of an Elderly Gentleman." The cycle will come to an end next week with the production of the concluding installment, "As Far as Thought Can Reach."

"The Thing Happens" takes place in the year 2170 A. D., and the title means that some persons have now succeeded in living for nearly 300 years. Among them are two acquaintances from "The Gospel of the Brothers Barnabas," the Rev. Bill Haslam and the pretty parlor maid at the Barnabas home. England has become a republic, and the scene is laid in the official parlor of the President of the British Isles. The members of the House of Commons are elected from among the inmates of lunatic asylums, and the actual business of government has been taken over by expert Chinese and educated negresses from Liberia.

President of British Republic.

THE President, a composite of the Joyce Burge and Henry Hopkins Lubin of the preceding play, is named Burge-Lubin; he wears a silk smock, stockings, handsomely ornamented sandals and a gold fillet, which he removes from his brow and hangs on a peg. There is a silvery screen at the rear; whenever the President uses the telephone the image of the person to whom he is speaking appears on the screen.

It seems that an American has contrived a device enabling human beings to breathe under water, and is lecturing on the subject at the Record Office. To bring home the value of his invention, he shows cinematographs of eminent Britons who have died by drowning. The pictures reveal the fact that one man still alive, the Archbishop of York, has been drowned four times, twice as an Archbishop, once as a General and once as President. Confronted with the evidence, the Rev. Bill has to confess that he has lived 283 years, has had five separate careers and has ended four by leaving his clothes with identifying papers on the ocean beach. They nearly always found the body—during the bathing season there are plenty of bodies, and the ashes of "President Dickenson" are buried in St. Paul's.

"At first I used to attend my own funerals in disguise," relates his Grace, "because I had read about a man doing that in an old romance by an author named Bennett, from whom I remember borrowing £5 in 1912. But I got tired of that. I would not cross the street now to read my latest epitaph."

Enter Mrs. Lutestring.

THERE enters the Domestic Minister, a handsome woman, apparently in the prime of life, with an elegant figure, the walk of a goddess, and an expression and deportment grave, swift, decisive and awful. It soon appears that Mrs. Lutestring, too, is one of the longlivers. She is 274 years old; she was the parlor maid in the earlier play.

When President Burge-Lubin, who is somewhat in love with a comely negress holding the post of Minister of Health, refers to a book by the librarian of the Biological Society suggesting that the future of the world lies with the mulatto, Mrs. Lutestring promptly rises.

Mrs. Lutestring: Mr. Archbishop, if the white race is to be saved our destiny is apparent.

The Archbishop: Yes; our duty is pretty clear.

Mrs. Lutestring: Have you time to come home with me and discuss the matter?

The Archbishop (rising): With pleasure.

"Burge," cries a functionary named Barnabas, a descendant of Dr. Conrad Barnabas, "you understand, don't you? These two are going to marry!" Barnabas would send them to the lethal chamber to prevent their propagating a race of 300-year-old monsters, but Burge, who has convinced himself that he, too, is probably one of the longlivers, forbids it.

Confucius Rules England.

PRIOR to this the President has a prolonged discussion with a Chinaman named Confucius, who, as chief secretary, is really the ruler of the British republic. Confucius is supposed to be an impersonation of Shaw himself, and he deals witty thrusts at various English superstitions.

"England saved the liberties of the world by inventing parliamentary government," declaims Burge-Lubin. "Simon de Montfort was a Frenchman," retorts Confucius; "he imported Parliaments from France, and the King and his loyal subjects killed Simon for forcing his French Parliament on them. The first thing British Parliaments ever did was to grant supplies to the King for life with enthusiastic expressions of loyalty, lest they should have any real power and be expected to do something."

Burge-Lubin: But democracy——

Confucius: An institution peculiar to China. And it was never really a success there.

Burge-Lubin: But the habeas corpus act?

Confucius: The English always suspended it when it threatened to be of the slightest use.

Burge-Lubin: Well, trial by jury; you can't deny that we established that?

Confucius: All cases that were dangerous to the governing classes were tried in the Star Chamber or by courtmartial, except when the prisoner was not tried at all, but executed after calling him names enough to make him unpopular.

English Always Child Race.

CONFUCIUS says the English got their reputation as pioneers of liberty by steadfastly refusing to be governed at all, like a horse that kicks everyone who tries to harness and guide it. The English never grew up, but remained children and barbarians. The Archbishop supports Confucius, declaring that before the "revolution" the governing classes in England had become the most intellectually lazy and fatheaded people on the face of the earth.

"As Archbishop," he says, "it is my duty, Mr. President, to criticise the national character unsparingly. At the canonization of Saint Henrik Ibsen, you yourself unveiled the monument to him which bears on its pedestal the noble inscription, 'I came not to call sinners, but the righteous, to repentance.' The proof of what I say is that our routine work, and what may be called our ornamental and figurehead work, is being more and more sought after by the English; whilst the thinking, organizing, calculating, directing work is done by yellow brains, brown brains and black brains, just as it was done in my early days by Jewish brains, Scottish brains, Italian brains, German brains."

Confucius defines courage as "a form of stupidity," admitting cheerfully that the English were brave. The Archbishop and Mrs. Lutestring have the only adult faces he ever saw in the British Isles, and they are the sole English people whom he ever feared.

Baghdad Now Capital City.

"THE Tragedy of An Elderly Gentleman" is in three acts, which occur on a fine summer day in the year 3000 A. D. The first scene is that of Burrin Pier on the south shore of Galway Bay in Ireland; the second is before the columned portico of a temple, and the third is inside the temple. We learn that the capital of the British commonwealth has been moved to Baghdad, and that all the short-lived English have emigrated to a new seat in Mesopotamia, leaving the longlivers in possession of the British Isles. These have set up oracles to which people from all parts of the world come for counsel; the islands which used to export cotton shirts and hardware now export nothing but wisdom.

The elderly gentleman is one Joseph Popham Bolge Bluebin Barlow, O. M., of Baghdad, president of the British Historical and Archaelogical Society, who is making a pilgrimage to the British Isles. In his company are his wife, his daughter, his son-in-law, the British Premier; and Cain Adamson Charles Napoleon, Emperor of Turania, the greatest military genius of the age. Barlow traces his descent from those great statesmen of an ancient era, Joyce Burge and Lubin.

Many words still in the vocabulary of the Oriental English have disappeared from the language of the islands; a woman in her second century, whom Barlow encounters, has never heard the adjective "decent." "It would not be decent for me to explain," says Barlow. "Decency cannot be discussed without indecency." She does not know the meaning of trespass, or of private property, or of money. "Married," she supposes, is an obsolete word for "mothered." Shortlived visitors are not permitted to go about without nurses, and usually they succumb quickly to a fatal disease called discouragement.

She Approves of Swearing.

THE elderly gentleman is placed, to his great disgust, in charge of a giddy young flapper of 56, called Zoo. He lets slip the words, "Damn it, madam!" and then apologizes for swearing.

Zoo. Oh, that's swearing, is it? I have read about that. It sounds quite pretty. Dammitmaddam, dammitmaddam, dammitmaddam, dammitmaddam! Say it as often as you please; I like it.

The Elderly Gentleman (expanding with intense relief): Bless you for those profane but familiar words. For the first time since I landed in this terrible country I feel at home—almost as if I were at a club.

Zoo lets fall the information that she has had four children. "I specialize in babies," she says. "My first was such a success that they made me go on." It appears that on the islands mothers pay no attention to children after they are 8 or 9, and that Zoo wouldn't know her two eldest if she met them.

One of the wittiest passages is that in which Shaw, himself an Irishman, puts into Barlow's mouth a narration of the solution of the Irish problem. When the Empire transferred its seat to the East, it said to

Says Every Railroad Man Should Read This

Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sirs: I was afflicted with what the doctors said were Varicose Ulcers, and up until about five weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months.

With all the treatments that were prescribed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work.

I was induced by a brother brakeman to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw wonderful results. You can tell suffering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about everything. Thanking you may times over, I am your happy friend, Chas. J. Heyser, Battle Creek, Mich., 42 Glenwood avenue, January 12, 1916.

"I know, and dozens of people write me," says Peterson of Buffalo, "that Peterson's Ointment also cures eczema, old sores, salt rheum, piles and all skin diseases, and all druggists sell a big box for 60 cents." the Irish: "At last we leave you to yourselves; and much good may it do you." The Irish as one man uttered the historic shout: "No, we'll be damned if you do," and emigrated to the countries where there was still a Nationalist question, to India, Persia, Corea, Morocco, Tunis and Tripoli.

Horrible Fate of the Irish.

"IN these countries they were ever foremost in the struggle for national independence; and the world rang continually with the story of their sufferings and wrongs. And what poem can do justice to the end, when it came at last? Hardly 200 years had elapsed when the claims of nationality were so universally conceded that there was no longer a single country on the face of the globe with a national grievance or a national movement. Think of the position of the Irish, who had lost all their political faculties by disuse except that of nationalist agitation, and who owed their position as the most interesting race on earth solely to their sufferings!

"The very countries they had helped to set free boycotted them as intolerable bores. The communities which had once idolized them as the incarnation of all that is adorable in the warm heart and witty brain, fled from them as from a pestilence."

At this crisis, continues the speaker, the Irish laid claim to Jerusalem, on the ground that they were the lost tribes of Israel; but the Jews abandoned the city and redistributed themselves throughout Europe. The Irish then returned to Ireland, but all left the next day for England, since when no Irishman ever again confessed to being Irish:

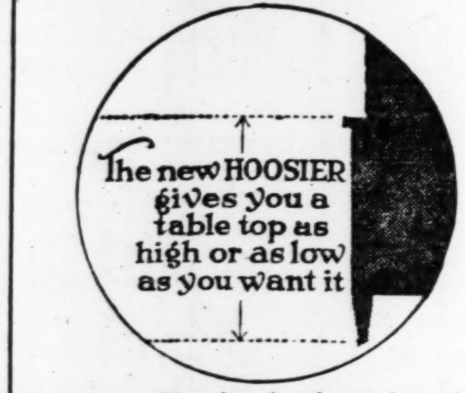
And right now $1.00 puts a New Hoosier in your home.

One Reason Why the New Hoosier Makes Other Cabinets Obsolete



The new HOOSIER gives you a table top as high or as low as you want it

The New Hoosier is the only cabinet which makes it possible to have a work table exactly suited to your height.

Much of your kitchen work involves brisk and tiring muscular action. When you beat eggs, whip cream or do any one of hundreds of similar tasks, you wear yourself out if your work is not placed at exactly the right height.

The New Hoosier makes such tasks a pleasure, because for the first time it gives you a table top exactly the right height for your use.

FREE—You get with your new Hoosier fourteen air-tight crystal glass food containers—that is four large bulk [illegible] jars located in the inside of lower door; seven spice containers in a revolving caster (above work table); and three other containers for coffee, tea and sugar.

And there are many other wonderful new improvements that make the new Hoosier a marvel of convenience.

thoughts beyond the reaches of our souls.

"About 1000 years ago," says Barlow, "there were two writers named Kipling. One was an easterner and a writer of merit; the other, being a westerner, was of course, only an amusing barbarian." In the islands infants not up to standard are put to death; degenerate short-livers are occasionally produced, and are shipped off to colonies, where they become "great men." There are two political parties, divided on the question as to whether all the short-lived people on earth should be exterminated. The islanders have forgotten even the name of London.

In the second scene, the Emperor Napoleon of Turania seeks to interrogate the oracle. This personage—a woman—tells him he has the strongest "mesmeric field" she has ever observed in a short-liver, but that even so the mathematicians would measure it by a figure infinitely near to zero.

Napoleon's Tragic Dilemma.

NAPOLEON says that in most respects he is quite an ordinary man, with the virtues of a laborer; but that he has one, quite remarkable talent, a genius, for organizing slaughter, "to give mankind the terrible joy which it calls glory." He has no satisfaction in seeing one fool pierce the entrails of another with a bayonet. "But I must rule, because I am so superior to other men that it is intolerable for me to be ruled by them. Yet only as a slayer can I become a ruler."

Napoleon can guarantee victory, but perceives that the cost of victory is the demoralization, the depopulation and ruin of the victors no less than the vanquished. He foresees that in the end war, which has made him historically immortal, will leave him execrated, dethroned, imprisoned, probably executed. "How," he asks the oracle, "am I to escape the horns of this tragic dilemma?"

"Die before the tide of glory turns," replies she, snatching Napoleon's revolver and firing it at him. Womanlike, she misses at five paces, and Napoleon is left penned up by some electric spell at the foot of the statue of Sir John Falstaff, patron saint of cowards.

At the end the elderly gentleman, unable to bear the thought of returning to the barbarians of his own country, is mercifully put to death by one glance from the eyes of the oracle.

"Up the Ladder" Is Presented.

Is This You NERVOUS Man or Woman?

Did your first symptoms start with pain in back of head, a constant "tired feeling"—especially in the back, knees and feet?

—And then, did you notice irritability; inability to sleep soundly; nervous indigestion; sour stomach; constipation; dizziness; headache; backache; neuralgia; rheumatic twinges; chills and hot flashes?

—And perhaps you do not know that these symptoms lead toward neurasthenia—nervous exhaustion; serious mental disturbances.

IF SO—YOU NEED CADOMENE!

Such symptoms indicate LACK OF NERVE-FORCE.

NERVE FORCE is the mysterious source of energy manifested in vitality, strength and keenness for work or play.

The High-Stepping, prancing, dancing horse has an abundance of Nerve Force—that's what you need.

Cadomene makes you "STRONG AS A HORSE" and this is how it does so: Cadomene supplies what the blood and nerves need to aid nature when Nerve-Force is being slowly exhausted—taking Cadomene a few days proves it to be the most skeptical.

The digestion improves, better nutrition follows: the stomach, liver, kidneys, and the glands of the body are supplied with needed elements, which also enrich the blood; and then the blood with its tone-up, new richness, proceeds to build up that mysterious source of energy, known as Nerve Force—is essential to create health and strength.

This is knowledge—and knowledge is power.

Begin the Cadomene treatment today and see how quickly the results astonish you with renewed Nerve Force—and all that genuine good health means to mankind.

KIDNEY and BLADDER DISEASES are DECEPTIVE

You may go to work in the morning perfectly healthy. The world looks good to you. You plan a good time with your family when you return. They are waiting eagerly for you. The children are in the window, looking out. You never felt happier in your life. . . . But, along in the afternoon you feel a sharp, shooting pain in the small of the back. You double over, you bend almost to the ground. You try to straighten up. It feels as if you were stabbed with a knife. You grit your teeth, you force yourself to finish the day's work. You go home, cross, nervous, exhausted. Something is wrong. What is the matter? The chances are, you have failed to heed Nature's Warning.

Heed Nature's Warning

If the first symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are overlooked, or if no measures are taken to correct them, the penalty must be paid; for a slight over-exertion, a little fatigue, a strain on the nervous system, and the trouble long held back, takes on the form of an acute disease. The pains in the back and kidneys become severe. The bladder trouble increases. Sleep is lost. The appetite is impaired. The spirits are depressed. The body becomes weak and emaciated. The nervous system becomes shattered. Soon there is a very sick man or woman, perhaps dangerously ill—all because Nature's Warning was not heeded in time.

HINKLE KIDNEY and BLADDER CAPSULES are a cleansing, strengthening, invigorating remedy. Take them now if you feel any abnormal symptoms. Be on your guard. Hinkle Capsules are a successful physician's prescription. They are compounded from Nature's purest and greatest curative agents. They expel the poisonous impurities from the system. They will relieve kidney and bladder symptoms. They will relieve the conditions that cause. Get Hinkle Capsules from your druggist. If he doesn't carry them in stock, order direct from us. Large Box $1.00. The Best Record is Better on a Sonora

THE most famous motor cars are not produced by the tire manufacturers, the greatest of player-pianos are not all made by the producers of rolls. Nor is the "Highest Class Talking Machine in the World" a product of the record industry.

With no division of effort, with the whole force of a great organization devoted single-mindedly to making the Sonora alone, a great phonograph was inevitable.

This policy has made Sonora so high an achievement in phonograph construction that it plays perfectly ALL MAKES of records and was the first phonograph to do so. Actual comparisons demonstrate that records give BETTER results when played on the Sonora.

Whatever is worthy of phonograph reproduction, is worthy of the best reproduction obtainable. When you purchase the Sonora you purchase perfection of tone—tone so mellow, so perfectly shaded, so warmly resonant and pure that the Sonora was awarded highest score for tone quality "by the only jury which heard and tested all the phonographs at the Panama-Pacific Exposition."

night party, up in Westchester County, the wicked plans of a high financial sharper go bang and virtue takes its way towards a triumph nearly spiced with bankruptcy. So it happens in a new play by Owen Davis, "Up the Ladder," which was put on Monday night at the Playhouse.

Everyone knows from the beginning that things are coming out right for young John Allen and particularly for his wife, Jane. It is the Allens who climb up the ladder with miraculous speed, largely because Mrs. Allen is lovely to look upon the Millionaire Joe Henley has a discriminating eye. John's ascent is from a good bond salesman to a member of a costly country club.

One of the exhilarated flappers is Allen's sister-in-law, and it is the shock of seeing her in that plight which leads him to shake off the spell of glittering success and break through the net of tricks woven by the smooth Mr. Henley. All that clever acting can do for a play almost devoid of novelty is done by a cast including Doris Kenyon, Edward Donnelly, Paul Kelly, Albert Hackett, George Farren and Nanette Comstock.

"Broken Branches" Amateurish.

WERE it not for the presence in the company of such old-time players as J. M. Kerrigan, Hyman Adler and Amy Ongley, the comedy drama, "Broken Branches," by Emil Nyitray and Herbert H. Winslow, presented Monday night at the Thirty-ninth street theater, would seem an amateur performance rather well done.

The purport of the play, at no time very clear, appears to center in a cafe scene in the third and last

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH PIMPLES

Hard and Red, Itched and Burned. Lost Sleep. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with indigestion which caused my face to break out with blackheads and pimples. The pimples were hard and red and festered over, and itched and burned a great deal. My face was disfigured and I lost a lot of sleep.

"The trouble lasted about a year before I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed, in three months." (Signed) Miss Luella Loper, R. F. D. 2, Fenwick, Mich., July 25, 1921.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for all toilet uses. Bathe with Soap, soothe with Ointment, dust with Talcum.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. E, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

act, in which old Carl Mertens discovers that his pampered son and daughter are drug addicts. This is the result of his having driven them from home, after observing the fate of an old crony whose children, like Lear's daughters, have taken his money and abandoned him.

Beatrice Allen, a pretty young woman, has the principal feminine part. In the cast are also Aileen Poe, H. R. Irving, H. L. Johnstone, Wallace Ford and Raymond Hackett.

"The First Man" Gruesome.

THOSE admirers of Eugene O'Neill who journeyed downtown last Saturday night to the Neighborhood Playhouse in Grand street, found a play from his pen dealing with the subject of obstetrics. It is called "The First Man," and in the narrow, mean life of a Connecticut village takes place a grim domestic tragedy. The characters, minutely and searchingly etched, are set forth with unsparing realism. If the ending is not altogether happy, however, at least it strikes a consoling note.

A selfish scientist and author, who is planning to take his young wife with him on an exploring trip to Asia, finds he must give up the expedition because another child is about to be born. His disappointment takes the form of hatred of the unborn child; and a set of malicious and detestable relatives conclude that he does not believe himself to be the father. Their slanderous suspicion is directed towards a young man of the village.

After two scenes devoted to the malevolent councils of the relatives, the playwright takes a plunge into grisly veritism. The moaning of the wife, in the throes of childbirth, is heard from an adjoining room, while the members of the family await the approaching event and give tongue to their evil thoughts. The mother dies in the ordeal, and the father, cursing the child as the murderer of its mother, declares he will never set eyes on the unwelcome infant.

Augustin Duncan Miscast.

BUT the discovery of what has been in the minds of his relatives softens his heart, and his hatred is now directed at the relatives—all except an understanding great-aunt, who engages to rear the child while the father goes to Asia. There is a prospect that this vitriolic old lady will disown the whole crew of oily hypocrites, and make a new will in favor of her nephew's child.

Augustin Duncan, the producer, is badly miscast in the principal male role; he is much too old for the part. Others in the cast are Margaret Moyer, Eva Condon, Margherita Sargent, Eugenie Powers and Marjorie Vonnegut. As a study of contemptible traits in human nature, "The First Man" contains work of a superior quality.

Will Address Women's Ad Club.

"Glees and Glooms of Copy-writing" will be the topic of a talk before the Women's Advertising Club at its luncheon meeting at the Statler Hotel tomorrow. J. A. Hubbard, originator of several big national advertising campaigns of the last two years, will be the speaker. The talk will be in a popular vein. The meeting will be open to friends of members. The luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock and the program wil lbegin at 12:45.

Appendicitis Strikes Engineer in Cab

Engineer Shows Great Heroism — Drives Engine Safely In.

While sending his engine thundering down the rails, a Western railway engineer was suddenly stricken with appendicitis. Bravely remaining at his post, his weakened hand still clutching the throttle as his fireman held him to his seat, the man drove the train safely in, on time.

A Treacherous Disease.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in exactly the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble and the development of influenza or grippe, by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Just exactly the some procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., and other leading druggists.

Every American Needs Nerves of Steel Muscles of Granite and Blood of Iron

A surplus of vigor and strength is required in these strenuous times to maintain your position at the "front." When you allow your mental or physical strength to fall and remain below par you are courting certain defeat in Life's pursuit. The course of human existence demands every ounce of vitality you can muster. The great crying need is and has always been, for ruddy, robust, red-blooded men. It takes strong, healthy brain and brawn to scale the steep inclines of human conflict and still possess the necessary reserve force "to go over the top."

The puny, emaciated, run-down, nervous, overwrought, lack the "punch," the fire, the spirit and the "pep" to accomplish the things worth while; to attain to the heights of sublime endeavor. Cast off, then, the burdensome handicap of a subnormal condition.

Every day "LYKO" is making men strong and swift—vigorous and virile—putting them in the pink of condition — keeping them fit to fight the battles of Life.

Take it whenever you lack appetite, have indigestion, feel exhausted, worn-out, nervous, "upset" or debilitated from any cause, whether from a general run-down condition or a specific illness. Jack Holt and Agnes Ayres are studying hard on their respective roles for "Bought and Paid For," which William DeMille is to produce for Paramount. Their parts are decidedly difficult and will call for some heavy emotional acting. Clara Beranger is adapting the play.

Corns

Lift Right Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! A drop of "Freezone" on a sore, touchy corn stops that corn from hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn right out, root and all. No pain, no soreness.

"Freezone" removes hard corns, soft corns, corns between the toes and painful calluses on bottom of feet. Truly magic! You'll laugh!

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

in the footsteps of his father he would today be a bacteriologist instead of a star in pictures. His father, a noted bacteriologist, made numerous discoveries that rendered his name prominent in scientific circles in Europe. He was also a retired Captain of the Italian Cavalry.

Members of the company making "Beyond the Rocks," Elinor Glyn's story, who have been working in the "Alps" constructed at the Lasky ranch, have revamped a familiar phrase to read like this: "Beyond the Alps lies Hollywood." Gloria Swanson, the star, tramped around in the salt—we should say snow-covered passes of the Alps—for several days while the final scenes for the picture were filmed.

Cecil B. De Mille is back in Hollywood from his extensive European tour, and is expected to start preparations for the production of "Manslaughter," his forthcoming Paramount picture, within the next three weeks. During his stay abroad the producer developed rheumatism, which forced him to abandon a portion of his travels. He is still suffering slightly from his illness and the rigors of his return trip. It is probable that he will spend at least three weeks vacationing at his mountain ranch before beginning production work.

Here's one way to prepare for a movie career. Edna Murphy, who plays an important role in "The Ordeal," a Paramount picture starring Agnes Ayres, posed for advertising photographs by the score before she entered motion picture work. She didn't have stage fright at all when she appeared before the clicking camera the first time. It was a familiar sound to her.

"My Boy" is the title of the next Jackie Coogan picture. The story was written by Jack Coogan Sr. and Victor Herman, the director.

DANDERINE GROWS LONG, THICK HAIR

35-cent Bottle Stops Hair Falling Out—Ends Dandruff

Ten minutes after using Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow long, strong and luxuriant. One application of Danderine makes thin, lifeless, colorless hair look youthfully bright, lustrous and just twice as abundant.

TESSA KOSTA

GEORGETTE COHAN

Georgette Cohan Makes Gotham Debut

NEW YORK, March 11.

THE present week was marked by interesting appearances of two young actresses, Miss Tessa Kosta, prima donna, in "The Rose of Stamboul," and of Miss Georgette Cohan, 20-year-old daughter of George M. Cohan, who made her New York debut in a comedy, "Madeleine and the Movies," written and directed by her father. Miss Cohan has acted in "Mr. Pim Passes By" on the road, and as Peter in Barrie's "Peter Pan," in London. She was recently married to William J. Souther, a stock broker.

Although Miss Cohan has the titular part, it is relatively a small one, in a relatively unimportant play, though interesting, amusing and Cohanesque. Several of the critics note her physical resemblance to her distinguished father. Various comments are as follows:

Tribune: "The event served pleasantly to introduce Mr. Cohan's interesting offspring, Miss Georgetta, an agreeable player in minor melodrama. A young woman of earnest individuality, closely resembling her male parent in appearance, she acted the title role with much sincerity and considerable skill."

Sun: "She who is to carry on the torch of Uncle Sam's nephew is a

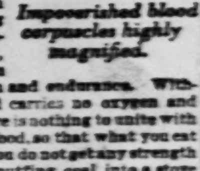
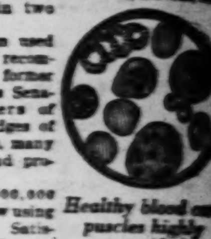
Why You Need Iron—

To Make You Strong and "Brainy" and Put the Power Into Your Blood To Overcome Disease Germs



Impoverished blood corpuscles highly magnified.



Healthy blood corpuscles highly magnified.

The food you eat contains carbon. When your food is digested it is absorbed from the intestines into the blood. When the carbon in your food comes in contact with the oxygen carried by the iron in your blood, the carbon and oxygen unite and by so doing they give off tremendous energy, thereby giving you great force, strength and endurance. Without iron your blood carries no oxygen and without oxygen there is nothing to unite with the carbon in your food, so that what you eat does you no good—you do not get any strength from it—it is like putting coal into a stove without a fire. You cannot get any heat unless the coal unites with the fire.

The strongest weapon with which to prevent and overcome colds, pneumonia, kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervous prostration, in fact almost any disease or disease germs is plenty of good rich, pure blood, strength, energy and endurance and the greatest energy carrier in the body is organic iron, not metallic iron which people usually take, but organic iron like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, and like the iron contained in what is known as organic Nuxated Iron which may be had from almost any druggist. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength, energy and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down folks in two weeks' time.

It has been used and highly recommended by former United States Senators, Members of Congress, Judges of U. S. Courts, many physicians and prominent men.

Over 4,000,000 people are now using it annually. Satisfactory results are guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Sold by all druggists in tablet form only.

For sale by Keiffer Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Famous & Barr Co., Weipert Drug Co., and all other druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD—GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

WHETHER you are entertaining, or attending a social gathering, nothing else is quite so important as being at your prime. Why not make certain that you will be? Do as thousands do. First thing in the morning, cleanse your system with Pluto Water. Accumulated waste is detrimental to both health and clear thinking. Pluto acts in 30 minutes to two hours, without griping. It is safe and harmless. Bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana. Your physician prescribes it.

$120,000 Y.W.C.A. DRIVE TO OPEN EARLY IN APRIL

Campaign of 10 Days Will Be Held to Pay Debts and Provide for 1922 Work.

The St. Louis Y. W. C. A. will launch a public appeal early in April for $120,000 to pay off back debts and provide for 1922 work, the solicitation to continue for 10 days.

The Executive Committee includes Mrs. James W. Lee, general chairman women's organization; Mrs. J. J. Fisher, president of the local Y. W. C. A.; Mrs. J. H. Hoskins and Mrs. E. R. McCarthy, associate chairmen; Mrs. J. Porter Tirrill and Mrs. Robert P. Hedges, women's teams, Mrs. Samuel C. Davis, local finance; Mrs. Guy Blackmer, field finance; Mrs. W. R. Ratcliffe, speakers; Mrs. W. K. Bixby, treasurer; Mrs. Tom Anderson, vice chairman of finance; Miss Sara Duke, campaign secretary; Mrs. George Lane Edwards, chairman Field Committee; Miss Ina Scherrebeck, field city secretary; Miss Hattie P. Anderson, local general secretary; Mrs. Phillip Fouke, motor corps; Miss Bertha Muehlenbrock, Y. W. C. A. girls' teams; Mrs. Benjamin Gratz, trustee representative; Mrs. Charles Pope O'Fallon and Mrs. Harry January.

About 80 women's teams are being recruited, in addition to 10 teams of Y. W. C. A. girls. Captains of women's teams will meet for luncheon tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the Y. W. C. A.

The $120,000 is urgently needed to pay off current indebtedness and keep the doors of the St. Louis Y. W. C. A. open during the coming year, the committee states. The organization, which administers a yearly budget of well over $500,000, has a debt of $60,000 which has been accumulating since 1917, when the last campaign exclusively for maintenance was held. The Y. W. C. A. Latmar Club campaign of 1920 was launched to meet a special housing crisis, and almost the entire amount secured was used for housing projects, chief of which was the Y. W. C. A. hotel at Olive and Pendleton.

worthy daughter of her father. She has a method that is distinctly her own, and while acting opportunities are at a minimum for her in the present instance, she shows that she can do an ingenue role effectively without trotting out the tricks and didoes of her predecessors."

Herald: "Miss Cohan is an attractive young creature who looks like her father, and for that reason finds the whole theater world prejudiced in her favor. She kissed him after the play was over, and the audience found in that little ceremony more heart than the whole of the new play contained."

Fifth of the Cohans.

TIMES: "The play was built as a means of promoting the stage ambitions of the fifth Cohan. To that end it was written with tact and discretion, giving her just enough to do to try her mettle, and yet in no way pushing her forward. In looks, and now and again in manner, she is very like her father."

Mail: "Also we have Georgette Cohan, daughter, with all the garish little tricks of vaudeville eliminated from her voice and manner, playing father's comedy in father's characteristic style, and doing it with a deal of confidence and considerable simple charm. Which gives us further excuse for being proud of the Cohan family."

Evening World: "Looking like her mother and acting like her father, Georgette Cohan made a pleasing impression in her first role here, playing Madeleine with directness, sincerity and an excellent sense of character."

How to Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has No Equal for Prompt Results. Takes but a Moment to Prepare, and Saves You About $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is that pine contains several elements that have a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you make a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, good and tastes very pleasant.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, hoarseness, or any ordinary throat ailment.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c & 30c.

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

ARTIST WHO PLAYS HERE THURSDAY, AND TEACHER

SILOTI GIVES RECITAL HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

Eminent Russian Pianist Will Offer Two of His Own Transcriptions From Bach.

Alexander Siloti, who made his first American appearance in a quarter of a century with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Jan. 6, and who won as brilliant a success as any soloist has achieved here in years, will give his first recital in this city on Thursday evening at the Sheldon Memorial auditorium.

Siloti is a first cousin of Sergei Rachmaninoff, and is one of the few surviving pupils of the greatest pianist of all time, Franz Liszt. He is ranked as probably the foremost living interpreter of Bach, of whose works he is a profound student. Two of his offerings will be his own transcriptions of Bach's Prelude for Organ, in E Minor, and of the Prelude from the fourth suite for violoncello alone. The program will be as follows:

Andante and Variations—Schubert-Taussig
Three Etudes, Nos. 19, 26 and 13—Chopin
Ballade in A flat, Op. 47..—Chopin
(According to Liszt's indications.)
Etude in D flat, Consolation, No. 5, and Rhapsody No. 12 ....Liszt
Organ Prelude in E Minor.....Bach
Transcribed for piano by Mr. Siloti.)
Five Preludes from The Well-Tempered Clavier ....Bach
Prelude from Suite No. 4, for Violoncello) Alone ....Bach Transcribed for piano by Mr. Siloti.)

Siloti, as a young man, was not only a pupil, but an intimate friend of Liszt, concerning whom he has written an entertaining book of reminiscences.

GUSIKOFF, STEINDEL AND PESETZKI TO GIVE CONCERT

Tschaikowsky's Trio for Violin, Violoncello and Piano to Be Feature of Program Tuesday.

Tschaikowsky's Trio, "To the Memory of a Great Artist," for violin, violoncello and piano, will be the feature of a recital to be given Tuesday night at the Odeon. Those taking part will be Michel Gusikoff, concertmaster of the Symphony Orchestra; H. Max Steindel, solo 'cellist, and David Pesetzki, pianist.

Gusikoff's solo numbers will be the Tartini-Kreisler "Devil's Trill" sonata, and Kreisler's "Liebeslied." Pesetzki will play Mozart's Variations, Godowsky's "Alt Wien," Chopin's Scherzo in C-sharp Minor, and Moszkowski's "The Juggleress." Steindel's selections will be the Servais-Steindel Fantasia, "O cara memoria," and Popper's Tarantella, No. 2.

The movements of the Tschaikowsky Trio, which will conclude the program, are Moderato assai, Theme and Variations and Allegro risoluto e con fuoco.

Violinist Devoting Much of Time to Relief Work in Austria This Year.

Fritz Kreisler's only appearance here this season will be at the Odeon on the evening of March 22. The violinist is spending only four months in the United States this year, as he is devoting much of his time to relief work in Austria.

His program is announced as follows: Beethoven's "Kreutzer Sonata," Mendelssohn's Concerto in E Minor, Schubert's Rondo in D Major, arranged by Carl Friedberg; Porpora's Minuet, Cartier's "La Chasse," Cyril Scott's "Lotus Land" and Kreisler's "La Gitana."

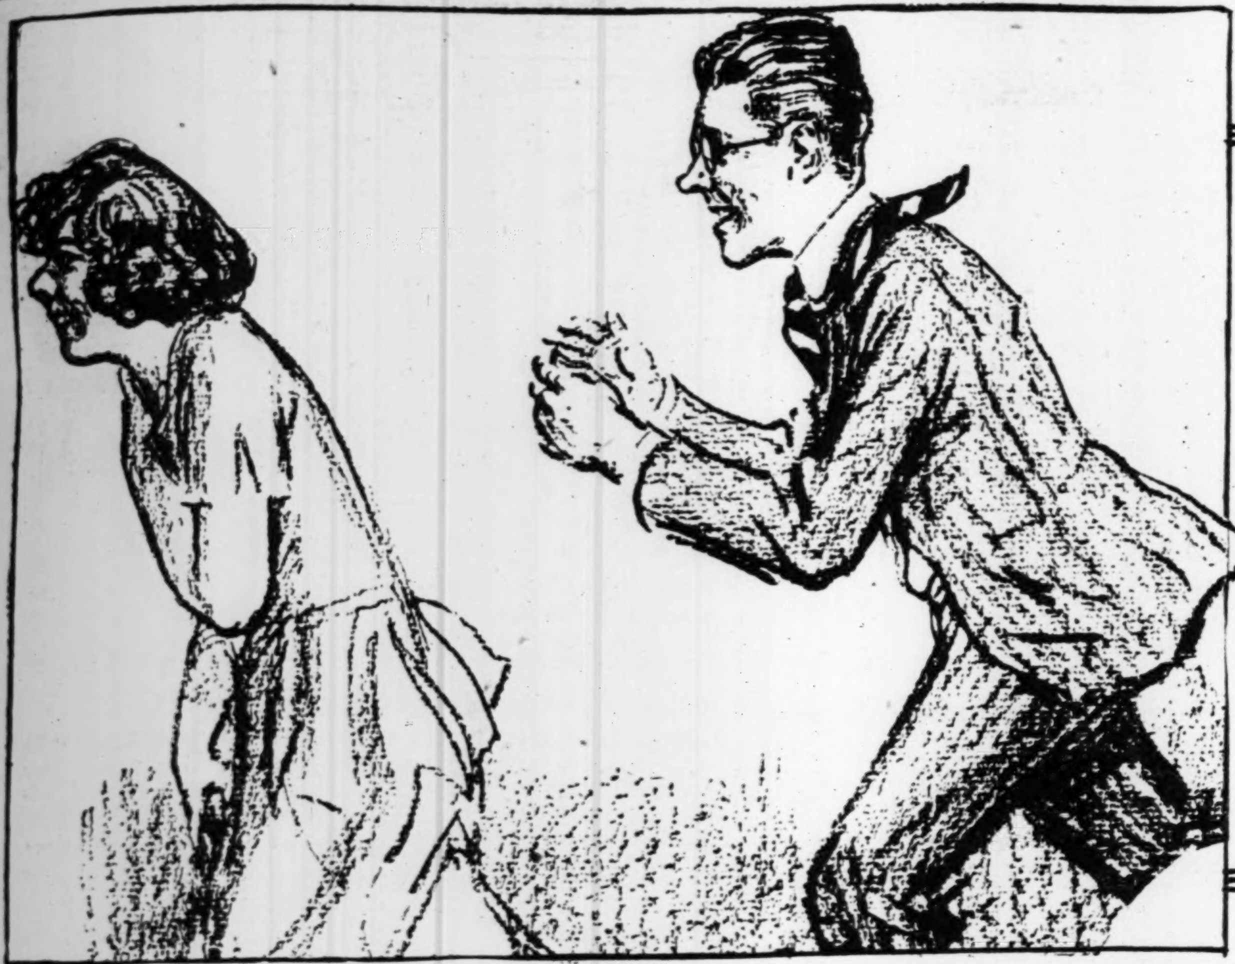
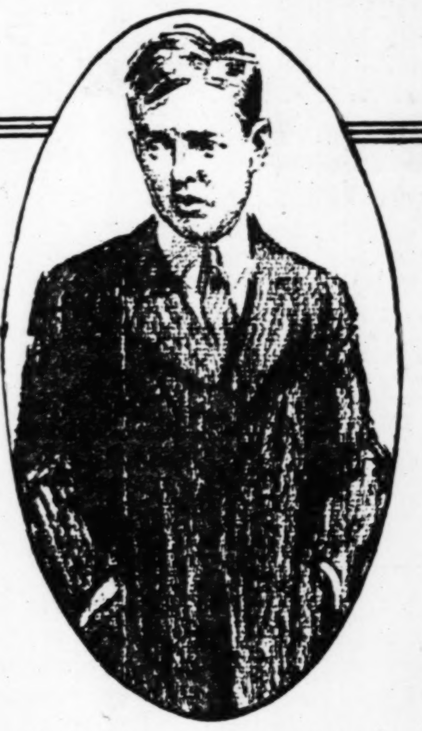
PART FIVE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 12, 1922. PAGES 13—22

THE GROWING BOY

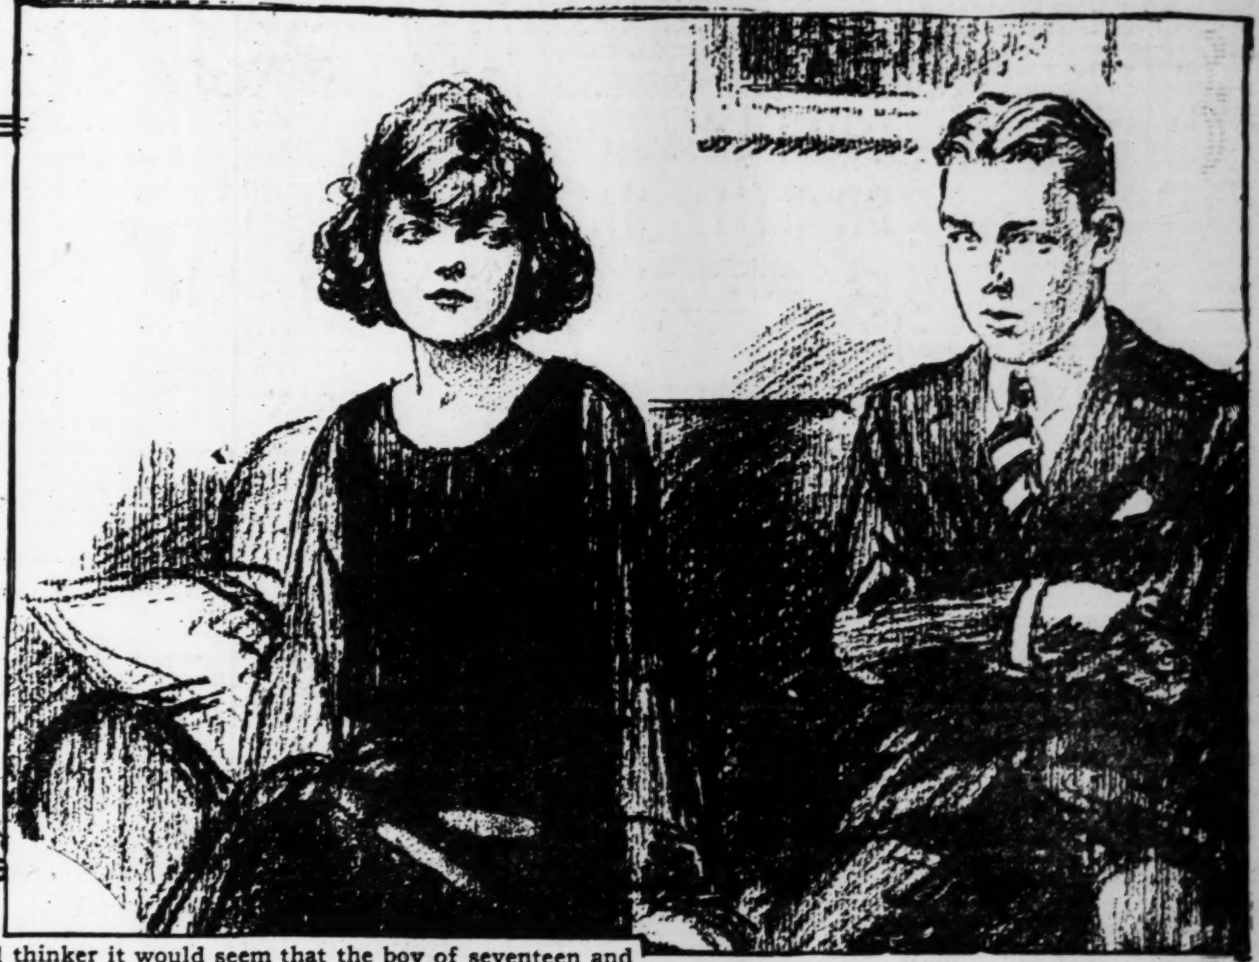
BY W. E. HILL



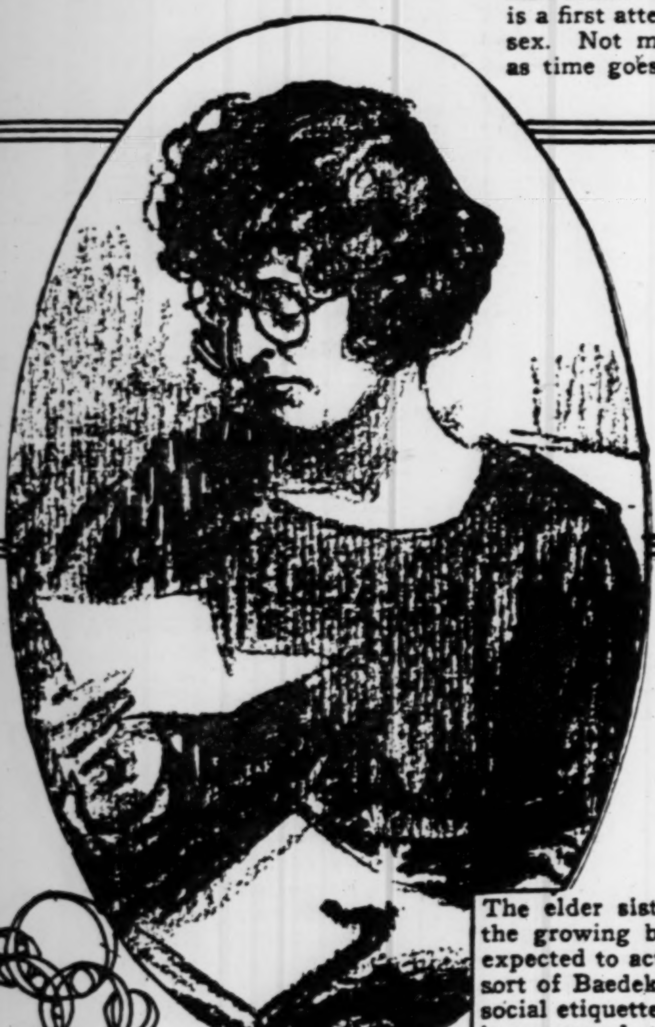
Clayton is chasing Shirley all over the yard. This is early caveman stuff. He is threatening to rub mud on Shirley's face. This is a first attempt by Clayton to flirt with a member of the opposite sex. Not much finesse, as yet. However, Clayton will improve as time goes on.



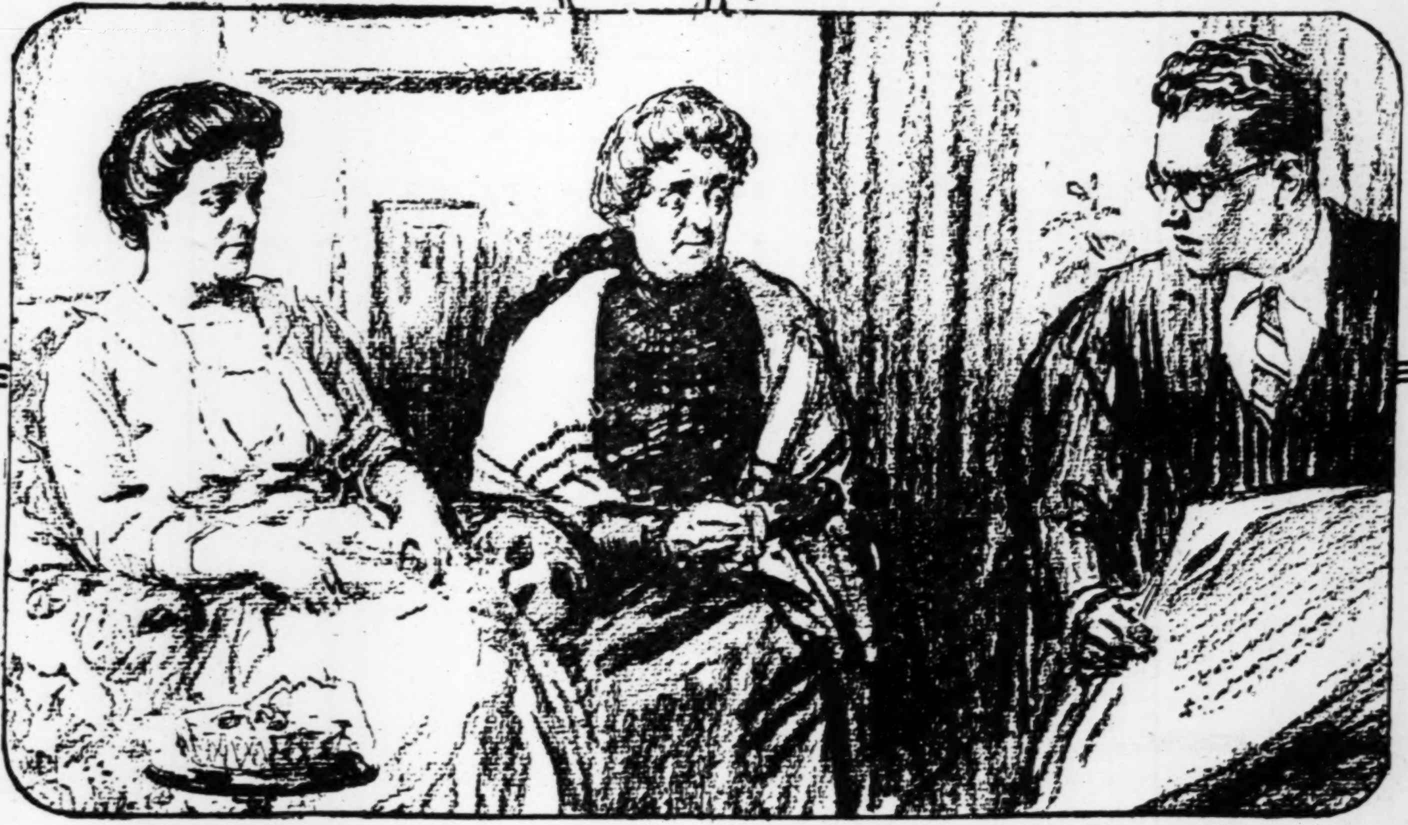
The lost illusion. "Thirty! Why, gee, she's middle-aged!"



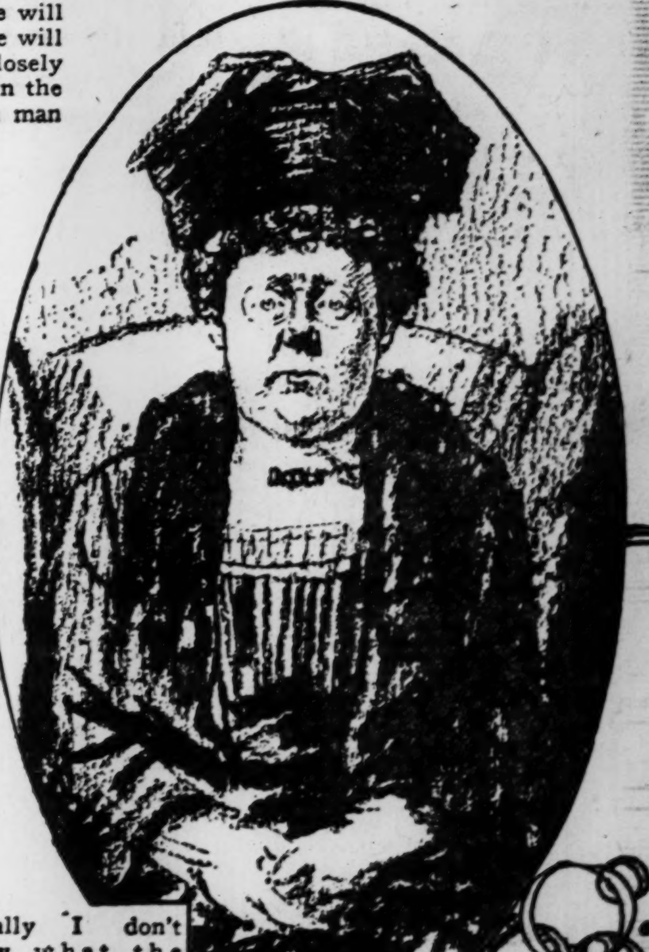
To the casual thinker it would seem that the boy of seventeen and the girl of like age ought to be pretty well matched. Not for a moment. The growing girl of seventeen summers is at least three centuries ahead of the growing boy. "Don't you think," she will ask, "that platonic friendship is a fine thing?" And then she will follow it up, if he is bashful, by asking him to look very closely and tell her what he thinks are her eyes, brown or hazel? On the way home the boy will observe, no doubt, that, anyhow, a man never can understand a woman.



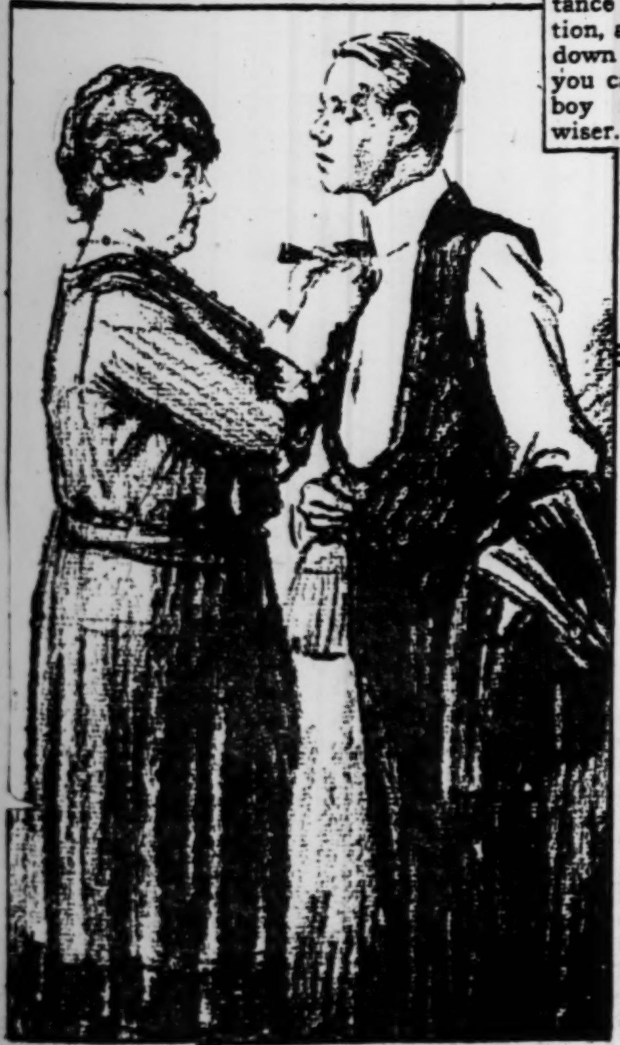
The elder sister of the growing boy is expected to act as a sort of Baedeker on social etiquette. She is supposed to be the last word on drafting an acceptance to an invitation, and if she falls down on her job you can be sure the boy is none the wiser.



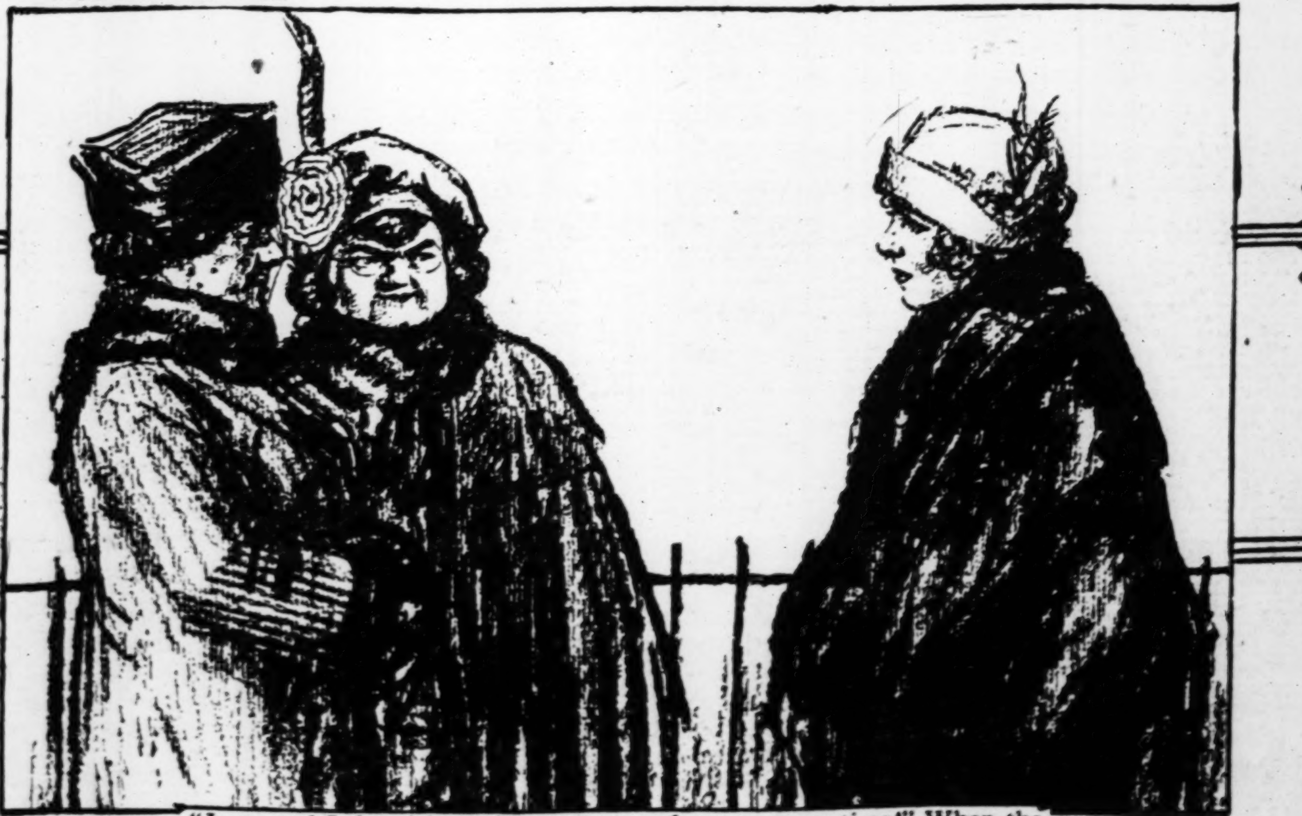
The eternal gap between the generations is the hardest thing in the world to bridge over. For instance, neither mamma nor grandma can see why Harold should want to take his very best young lady to tea at a big hotel, when he can just as well bring her home for a nice cup of tea with mamma and grandma. And no chaperone? Oh, dear! And again, oh, dear! In her day argues grandma, no really nice girl would think for a moment of stepping into a public hostelry with a young man unless her mother or father were with her. And what would Harold think, adds mamma, if she and grandma were to smoke cigarettes in a public restaurant, and dance all over the place wearing dresses 'way above their knees, like the girls of today! How would he like that.



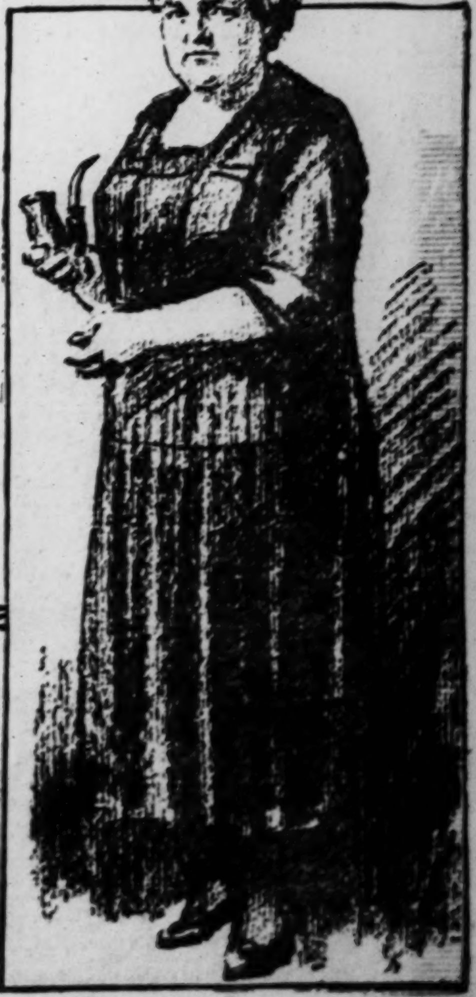
"Really I don't know what the young people of today are coming to! For my part, I've decided that Lawrence shall touch no liquor stronger than punch until his twenty-fifth birthday! Such is the wise decision of Lawrence's mamma. Lawrence, be it known, is, at the moment of speaking, tripping the light fantastic at the country club with a flask on his hip and a flapper for his partner who has been expelled from finishing school for having a still in her room.



The first evening jacket and the tie that won't tie rightly. "I hope," Edwin's mother is saying as she makes a bad job of the tie, "you'll remember to thank Mrs. Munson and tell her how much you've enjoyed the party," which is, of course, the last thing Edwin will remember to do.



"Janet and I do wish you'd run over and see us some time!" When the growing boy reaches, say, the mature age of seventeen the mammas of the growing girls of his acquaintance (particularly if she is of the stout, wholesome type) grow very friendly with the boy's sister, and make no end of advances.



"I don't want him to start in on those terrible cigarettes, so if he has to smoke, I've bought him this nice pipe for his birthday."

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to cardholders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

THE JESUITS, 1534-1921—By T. J. Campbell, S. J. The first complete history of the Jesuits, in English, written by one of the members of the society. It makes available a great deal of information which has not been co-ordinated up to the present, or has been only written in French, Spanish, Italian or German. The book is indexed and contains much bibliographical material.

REPRESENTATIVE ONE-ACT PLAYS BY BRITISH AND IRISH AUTHORS—By B. H. Clark. A collection of 21 plays, the work of the best contemporary British and Irish playwrights, excluding Barrie and Shaw, who have been omitted because of "limitations of copyright." Each play is preceded by biographical data. A number of bibliographies finish the volume. One of these is a list of noteworthy one-act plays which are not found in this collection.

SIMPLE FURNISHING AND ARRANGEMENT—By H. and J. Glogg. Useful suggestions for the selection of furniture for either large or small houses. The authors comment on modern as well as antique styles, and take up the matters of decoration and arrangement of rooms. The book is attractively illustrated and indexed.

GOLDFISH VARIETIES AND TROPICAL AQUARIUM FISHES—By W. T. Innes. In his preface the author says he aims "to present in simple yet comprehensive form a practical digest of all available information on aquaria and allied subjects." The illustrations are photographed or drawn from life.

OUR HAWAII—By C. London. This is a new edition of the book. It contains a hitherto unpublished essay, "My Hawaiian Aloha," by Jack London. Mrs. London has brought the volume up to date for tourists with the addition of the chapter, "Hawaii, 1921." The text has been revised throughout.

THE STORY OF THE AMERICAN HYMN—By E. S. Ninde. Traces the gradual change from the Psalms of the Bay Psalm Book of early New England to the adoption of hymns "accommodated" to the worship in the American Protestant churches. The authors of American hymns and their work are then given in chronological order. The book contains many interesting portraits.

PORTMANTEAU ADAPTATIONS—By S. Walker. Contains three adaptations and two original plays by Mr. Walker, "Nellijumbo" and "Sir David Wears a Crown." The last is the sequel to "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil." The introduction gives the history of the "Portmanteau" and its plays.

Countess Divorced But New Match Is Unlikely

Cathcart Suit Is Undefended But Wife of Earl of Craven Seems Unlikely to Enter Proceedings Against Him—Lady Mills Plans Sahara Trip

(Copyright, 1922, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, March 11.—In the Cathcart undefended divorce suit last week the main feature of the evidence was a trip to Deauville made by Countess Cathcart and the Earl of Craven, the corespondents. At Deauville they did not conceal their pleasure at being in each other's company, as was indicated by a photograph of them snapped on the polo grounds at that fashionable French watering place.

Craven, whose mother was Miss Cornelia Bradley Martin of New York, had but recently come into the title, and wore on his left arm a badge of mourning for his father, who was mysteriously drowned.

In such cases it often happens that the respondent and the corespondent wed after the divorce becomes absolute. But in this case it is said that the Countess of Craven has no intention of divorcing the Earl, although it was current rumor before her husband succeeded to the title and estates that she contemplated doing so.

Lady Dorothy Mills (whose mother, formerly Miss Louise Corbin of New York, was the first wife of the fifth Earl of Oxford), is one of the cleverest novelists and writers in titled British society, if not the cleverest.

As has been chronicled recently, Lady Dorothy has been writing poetry and verse since childhood and has determined to enter definitely upon the career of an author. Her two novels already published, "Card Houses" and "The Laughter of Fools," reflect her own time with sparkling realism. Her new novel on the theme of jealousy, which exclusive society is awaiting, is to be issued in the spring.

Lady Dorothy is said to be going to the Desert of the Sahara between Tunis and Tripoli to obtain material for a book about little known troglodytes.

One of the most notable debutantes of the season will be Lady Alexandra Curzon, the youngest daughter of Marquis Curzon and the first wife who was Miss Mary Leiter of Washington. Lady Alexandra, like her sister, Lady Irene Curzon and Lady Cynthia Mosley, is a keen sportswoman. At present she is at a "finishing" school in Paris.

Countess Beatty (Miss Ethel Field of Chicago), and Lady Henry Grosvenor have gone to Biarritz. They were together there last winter and very much enjoyed their stay at the Hotel du Palace, when they occupied the King Edward VII suite.

Among the most interesting personages called to London to attend Princess Mary's wedding were Lord d'Abernon, Great Britain's first Ambassador in Berlin since diplomatic relations were sundered eight years ago, and his wife, who was Lady Helen Venetia Duncombe, oldest of the three daughters of the first Earl of Feversham. Their gift to the Princess was a pair of antique leaden urns. Lord d'Abernon has held numerous diplomatic and other posts. In 1882 he represented England, Belgium and Holland in the Council of the Ottoman Debt; a year later he was financial adviser to the Egyptian Government and after holding that office six years he became Governor of the Imperial Roman Band at Constantinople, retaining that position seven years.

Miss Ellen Terry, who was present at the first night of the new Indian play, "The Wheel," at the Apollo Theater, received almost as much applause when she came into the stalls as her niece, Miss Phyllis Neilson-Terry, who made her reappearance on the London stage after an absence of over seven years. Miss Marion Terry was there, too, and Mr. Dennis Neilson-Terry and his wife, Miss Mary Glynne, Lord and Lady Howard de Walden, the latter in a chinchilla cloak and a diamond headdress, were in the stage box. Others in the stalls were Lady Diana Cooper and her husband, Sir John and Lady Bland-Sutton, and Mrs. J. B. Fagan, who has only recently recovered from a severe attack of influenza.

Washington U. Orator Selected.

Israel Treiman of the law school class of 1924 has been designated to represent Washington University in the Missouri Valley oratorical contest to be held in Graham Memorial chapel, on the university campus, March 17. Selection was made after a tryout in which seven candidates participated. Ralph Fuchs, senior in the law school, was second, and these are to receive medals from Dr. Isaac Lippincott, professor of economic resources and president of the debating council of the university.

Blood will tell invariably in garden seeds

YOU'VE got to put the best into your garden—above all, the best seeds. You cannot afford to waste your time and labor. And nature gives the planter only one chance a season; don't forget that!

Why take unnecessary chances? Plant only pure-bred seeds. They are worth more than ordinary seeds, for they produce more and better vegetables, or flowers.

The Ferry system of breeding seeds is scientifically accurate. We have been doing it sixty years. Nothing is left to guess-work. Any plant short of perfect is uprooted.

You would prefer a Jersey to a scrub. For similar reasons you would prefer these highly bred seeds—the result of constant testing, comparing, discarding, improving. A Ferry-bred tomato is no more like the pale, watery, tasteless tomato of ordinary breeding than Ferry's sweet corn is like horse corn.

Plan to plant Ferry's Seeds. You can get them "at the store around the corner." Price, 10 cents per paper. Write for Ferry's Seed Annual. It tells how and what to plant—and how to can surplus crops for the winter, Send for this valuable book today.

PHYSICAL TEST FOR PUPILS AT CLAYTON

Recommendations to Parents for Improvement of Children Will Result From Examinations.

A school health demonstration in which more than 600 children of the Clayton public schools will be weighed, measured and examined physically was begun last week under the auspices of the St. Louis County Tuberculosis Committee of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. Superintendent of Instruction E. E. Morton of the Clayton schools, and Dr. E. C. Krause of the school hygiene department of the State Board of Health, held a conference yesterday with A. W. Jones Jr., secretary and manager of the Tuberculosis Society to decide on making the demonstration of practical value to the children and the community generally. It was determined to carry out a program similar to that of the school health demonstration in Wellston last spring.

A physician and nurse will conduct the examination in each of the schools in rotation, it is announced. Weighing and measuring will come first, and further examination will depend on the results of these tests. Children who are found to be below normal in weight or to show evidences of physical disorders of any kind will be referred for thorough physical examination. This will be conducted only with the consent and co-operation of the parents, it is stated. If serious defects are discovered the child will be recommended to his own family physician for treatment to correct the difficulty. In no case will the demonstration extend to the treatment of the children.

Demonsration's Object

The demonstration is designed to call attention of the parents of children who are under weight to the necessity of watching their diet more closely and otherwise exercising careful supervision over the general health of their children.

The health demonstration in Wellston last spring was the basis of a set of recommendations made to parents of the children suffering from malnutrition, which has led to a great improvement in their health, it is stated, and the same results are expected from the one going on at Clayton and elsewhere.

Normandie District Included.

Tomorrow the County Tuberculosis Committee will start a demonstration of the same kind in the Normandie school district under the auspices of Prof. Fred Miller, superintendent of schools in that district. Fifteen hundred children will be examined, it is announced, each being visited as the committee receives requests to go into it.

In connection with these tests, or as a forerunner of them, the County Tuberculosis Committee is pushing the Modern Health Crusade in the county schools and is finding much enthusiasm on the part of both teachers and pupils in this health "game." Superintendents all are glad to permit the introduction of the Modern Health Crusade as part of the regular school work and parent-teachers' organizations are co-operating heartily in the movement. The co-operation in this direction is said to have encouraged the committee to feel that the response to the health demonstrations will be cordial and that parents will co-operate in this as they have in the crusade.

NORWEGIAN ACTORS TO APPEAR AGAIN AT LITTLE THEATER

Borgy Hammer and Her Company Will Play Return Engagement in English.

Mme. Borgy Hammer, Norwegian actress, and her company, will play a return engagement at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild for a week beginning April 3. She made her initial St. Louis appearance at the Guild Theater in January, when Ibsen's dramas, "Ghosts" and "The Master Builder," were given. They will be repeated, and in addition "Rosmersholm" will be presented.

The plays are given in English and Mme. Hammer is supported by a number of American actors, and by her husband, Rolf Fjell. Booth he and his wife were members of national theaters of Norway before coming to America.

The Importance of Healthy Kidneys

In the removal of waste material from the body, the kidneys are called upon to perform a very important duty. The failure of these marvelous and delicately constructed organs to properly do their work means retention in the system of poisonous matter. This poisons the system, and if permitted to remain results in severe backache, headache, torpid liver, constipation and eventually Bright's disease. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy, a combination of herbs and other healthful ingredients was discovered about 50 years ago, and its value in strengthening the kidneys and liver was at once appreciated. Today it stands as one of the standard remedies in the treatment of diseases of the kidneys and liver. Many persons suffer from diseases of the kidneys unknowingly. The use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy will invariably improve your health and make you feel that life is really worth the living.

MANAGING BOARD OF Y. M. H. A. REORGANIZED

Officials of Organizations Changed to Secure Wider Representation of Jewish Community.

The Managing Board of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Delmar boulevard near Grand avenue, has been reorganized with the following officers: David Sommers, president; Harry Lesser, first vice president; Milton Hellman, second vice president; Sidney R. Baer, treasurer, and Walter Freund, secretary. The activities of the organization will be under the charge of an Executive Board composed of Sidney Rothschild, Fred Z. Salomon, Walter Freund, Milton A. Hellman and Walter Marx.

The activities of the organization though constructive, have been somewhat hampered by lack of funds. The reorganization was effected principally to bring about wider representation of the Jewish community, and the new board, whose influence and experience will be most valuable, assures adequate finances to develop to a greater degree the work which is to be done.

The changing of the name from the Young Men's Hebrew Association to the Jewish Community Center is contemplated. The organization is to be made a real communal center of Jewish activities for St. Louis Jews. The present building is to be completely renovated and refurnished, and a prominent resident director is to be engaged, who will personally supervise the activities which will take place there. These activities will include educational, religious, physical and social groups, and each branch will be conducted by a competent head.

The reorganized management was effected to make it possible to institute a drive for $500,000 for the purpose of erecting a new building. The building campaign, however, will not be immediate, as the Advisory Board believes that conditions are not suitable for such a drive at this time. The present membership will be increased, as the larger management effected by the reorganization will make it possible to develop the field of work.

The Board of Directors will consist of Walter Freund, Sam Stein, Ed. Platt, Mark Steinberg, Morton May, Walter Marx, Emil Mayer, Maurice Weil, Sam Rosenfeld, Aaron Fuller, Aaron Waldheim, Fred Salomon, Milton Hellman, Sidney R. Baer, Harry Lesser, Alvin Goldman, Marc Harris, Walter Glasser, Sidney Rothschild, Sidney Shoenberg, Robert Friedman, Nat K. Baum, David Sommers, Fred Bach and Jerome Sternberg.

INGROWN NAILS

Toe Nail Turns Out Itself if you Toughen the Skin

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

1750 TAKING EXTENSION COURSES

More than 1750 men and women are taking special courses organized by the extension division of Washington University. Last year business institutions of the city paid tuition of between 600 and 800 employes in whom special interest was felt, while this year less than a dozen are studying under that condition. This falling off, Dr. E. W. Shipley, director of the division, says, is accounted for by business conditions. Cultural courses have made up the attendance loss in the business courses.

Of those doing special duty, 14 per cent are college graduates, 26 per cent have had two or more years at college, 32 per cent have had one year at college, and 68 per cent are high school graduates.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED BY THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied, the itching stops, and after two or three applications the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulhpur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

MARGARETE MATZENAUER.

WAGNER PROGRAM ENDS GANZ'S FIRST SEASON

Mme. Matzenauer Soloist This Week—Final "Pop" Concert Next Sunday.

The Symphony Orchestra's first season under the consulship of Rudolph Ganz will come to a close with the concerts of Friday and Saturday and next Sunday afternoon. On March 22 and 23 the orchestra will give its fifth and final pair of concerts in Kansas City, and will then start on its spring tour in the Southwest.

The director's valedictory program for the regular concerts this week will consist exclusively of Wagner's compositions, and the soloist will be Mme. Margarete Matzenauer, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera Company. It is the same program which the orchestra played at its third evening concert in Kansas City, but on that occasion the soloist was Mme. Julia Claussen.

The selections chosen are as follows:

Overture to The Flying Dutchman.
Santa's Ballad from the Flying Dutchman.
Overture to Tannhauser.
A Siegfried Idyll.
Songs with Orchestra.
(a) Traeume.
(b) Schmerzen.
Ride of the Valkyries, from The Valkyries.
Prelude and Love-Death, from Tristan and Isolde.

Ganz Pupil Soloist.

The soloist at this afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon will be Miss Edna Gunnar Peterson, pianist, of Chicago. She is another of the pupils of Director Ganz. Her offering will be Grieg's pianoforte concerto, and the program will be as follows:

Festival Overture .... Simpson
Second movement from Symphony No. 6, the Pathetic... Tschaikowsky
Concerto in A Minor.......... Grieg
(a) La Veillee de l'Ange guardien—Pierne
(b) March of the Little Lead Soldiers .... Pierne
Capriccio Espagnol, Op. 34—Rimsky-Korsakoff

The twentieth and final popular concert, on next Sunday afternoon, will be orchestral entirely, without a soloist. Featured will be Smetana's overture to "The Bartered Bride," Grieg's "Heart Wounds" and "Last Spring," for string orchestra; and two new works by Walter Kramer, "Valse Triste" and "Chant Negre."

Dr. Loeb to Lecture on Taxation.

Dr. Isidor Loeb, dean of the school of business and public administration at the University of Missouri, will lecture on the constitutional convention and taxation problems Tuesday evening, at 8:15 o'clock, in the auditorium of Washington University school of medicine building, at Euclid and Scott avenues. The lecture will be open to the public.

If Ruptured Try This Free

Anyone ruptured, man, woman or child, should call at our office at once for free trial of the Rice Method, including the wonderful Lymphol Stimulating Application. Just put it on the rupture and the muscles begin to tighten; they begin to bind together so the opening closes naturally and the need of a support or truss is done away with. Don't neglect to call or send for this free trial. Even if your rupture doesn't bother, what is the use of wearing trusses all your life? Why suffer this nuisance? Why run the risk of gangrene and such dangers from a small and innocent little rupture, the kind that has thrown thousands on the operating table? A host of men and women are daily running such risk just because their ruptures do not hurt nor prevent them from getting around. Follow the example of the thousands who have accepted our great free trial offer and later reported solid and lasting cures. It is certainly a wonderful thing and has aided in the cure of ruptures that were as big as a man's two fists. Try and call today before serious trouble comes. Office hours: 9 to 12 a. m., 1 to 6 p. m., and Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9. Sundays, 10 to 1. If you cannot call at once, phone Olive 2397 or Central 1561, or write, and a free demonstrating trial and book of valuable information about rupture will be mailed you without charge. William S. Rice, Inc., Calumet Bldg., Room 718, 114 North Seventh St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR A CONSTIPATED CHILD

A small dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will bring quick relief.

MOTHER, when one of the children is constipated are you going to give the first laxative within reach? It is dangerous to do so. Some have been known to rupture the intestines of little children. Don't be beguiled by the outside sugary appearance. Look into the formula. Calomel is seldom necessary; salts, minerals, coal tar, never!

Unlike these, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is admirable for children, as it is for grown people, too. Mothers have been giving it to children for 30 years. They know it does not gripe, and is free from narcotics. The formula is on every package, and you can see it is vegetable, just a combination of Egyptian Senna and other laxative herbs with pepsin. Use it yourself and you will find it is not necessary to take it every day, nor to increase the dose, and that it is pleasant to the taste. Bottles can be had at all drug stores, and the cost is only about a cent a dose. Have no hesitancy giving it to a baby in arms. It is absolutely safe.

Half-Ounce Bottle Free

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write me today.

WHEN a fish is considered to be not much good as a food fish, we look upon it as neither valuable or useful. This Family Makes Its Reading Count

The Man

Here is a typical active minded family. The father with his evening paper, the wife and son with their particular reading.

The man comes across an article on the financial situation. Although he is acquainted in general with finance, his knowledge is not specific on certain phases of this subject or economics.

He decides to put his newly purchased set of the Encyclopaedia Britannica to the test. There he finds not only a thorough survey on all subjects bearing on finance, economics, statistics, politics and government, but he is able to obtain definite information on any phase of these subjects.

Here he finds not a dry academic study, but an intensely interesting review written by men who know thoroughly the subjects they write about. He reads point after point which has never occurred to him before which bears directly on the vital financial and industrial questions of the day. Naturally the fresh, unhackneyed, intelligent viewpoints of these articles delight him. He gets in a few minutes the kind of facts which make his conversation on these subjects "different" and, what is more important, he has a real basis for arriving at an intelligent conclusion on these vital subjects of the day.

The Woman

An advertisement of a fur sale catches the wife's eye. She needs a new set of furs or a fur coat and is eager to save money by buying it now. But how can she tell whether the fur she will look at is genuine or not—or must she take a salesman's word for it? She turns to the Britannica for information, though she is very skeptical about an encyclopaedia acting as a shopping guide.

You can imagine her amazement to find there over seventy furs described in detail—their sources, sizes, colors, special markings, uses, values. She chooses the ones which specially interest her, learns their fine points, what imitations are on the market, and lastly, studies the tables comparing their durability and weight. After this she feels that, for the first time in her life, she can buy furs intelligently.

The Boy

The high school boy, with his eye always on the lookout for interesting articles on sports and animals, sees an article about a fish that he had never heard of. He has learned the usefulness of the Britannica from his father. He hardly thinks that an encyclopaedia will contain information interesting to him about this particular kind of fish, but he is willing to find out whether the Britannica can help him in unusual ways.

He is fascinated to learn that the Britannica gives him information about not only this fish but others he has been wanting to know about. Later in the evening he curiously looks to see whether football is covered in the Britannica and, to his great delight, he finds here an article written by Walter Camp, and he, too, gets a new vision of the usefulness of the Britannica.

This family is only one of thousands whose members are daily surprised and pleased at the great wealth of practical and pertinent information in

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

This extraordinary work was prepared with the purpose of giving to everybody, no matter what their position in life, business occupation or profession, information which will be valuable in their daily work and play. For the man the Britannica contains thousands of articles on such subjects as engineering, railways, flying machines, chemistry, physics, architecture; for the woman the Britannica tells about education, physiology, domestic science, hygiene, art, music, literature and numerous other subjects; for the child it answers thousands of questions that come to a boy's or girl's active mind and supplements school studies.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica, both in the beautiful Cambridge Issue and in the popular Handy Volume Issue, is sold for a small amount down and moderate monthly payments. Send for the large illustrated booklet describing the Britannica and giving complete prices and terms of payment on which this wonderful work may be purchased.

HAYNES PRODUCTION GREATLY INCREASED

That Haynes production has been more than doubled since Feb. 1 of this year, was the statement made by Alton G. Seiberling, vice president and general manager of the Haynes Automobile Co., Kokomo, Ind. Mr. Seiberling declared that the rapid increase in the factory output was made necessary by the large volume of orders received since the national automobile shows.

"It is my firm belief that the automobile industry has an extremely bright era ahead of it, and that the total sales for 1922 will far exceed last year's total.

"The buying public apparently have begun to realize that the low level of automobile prices has been reached, and that, of course, means the stabilization of the market. The industry has passed the period of stress, and the outlook for the coming months is very favorable."

PAINTINGS OF LINCOLN AND FORD ON BOARD

The Johnson Automobile Co. has just erected a 50-foot illuminated billboard on the east side of the large service yard, adjoining their building at 3667-69 Olive street.

This board shows life-size paintings of Henry Ford and Abraham Lincoln, and calls attention to Ford and Lincoln cars. The wording on the board also calls attention to the large service yard for the convenience of customers.

"STARR," DURANT'S NEW CAR TO SELL FOR $348

The four-cylinder, five-passenger automobile to sell for $348, which W. C. Durant, president of the Durant Motors, Inc., announced several weeks ago he would build in large quantities in order to compete with Ford, was formally introduced to the public Thursday in Washington, D. C.

The new product is to be known as the Starr car. It is to be manufactured by Durant Motors, Inc., under a contract with the Starr Motor Car Co., which will control the distribution of the car in the United States and its possessions.

It is a conventional type automobile, with recognized standard parts. From semielliptic springs to vacuum feed gasoline tank and electrical equipment.

The Starr car is powered with a Red Seal Continental motor. It has a disc clutch, selective sliding transmission with three speeds forward and reverse, Timken bearings front and rear, Timken rear axle, conventional hand lever brake, internal and external brake bands, and full chassis of conventional type with Hotchkiss type driving shaft.

The "tubular backbone," a Durant feature, is claimed to give the chassis unusual rigidity and strength. The body is full five-passenger and its streamline design includes a high hood and slanting windshield. The Starr will be produced in all popular models, production in quantities is promised by June 1.

According to H. W. Spalding, president of the Spalding Motor Co., distributors for the Durant cars in St. Louis and adjacent territory, present Durant distributors throughout the country will have charge of the distribution of the Starr car in their respective territories.

The above prices are f. o. b. factory. The MacCarthy-Archer Auto Co. are distributers for the H. C. S. in St. Louis and adjacent territory.

SEIBERLING CORD TIRE ANNOUNCED BY FACTORY

"A tire that will be known everywhere," is the slogan of the newly formed Seiberling Rubber Co. of Akron, O., concerning the Seiberling Cords, upon which it hopes to build a national business.

After eight months in the making, during which product, policies and personnel have been welded together, the new company formally announces its product to motorists.

The new Seiberling Rubber Co. has purchased the plants of the Lehigh Tire & Rubber Co. at New Castle, Pa., and the Portage Rubber Co., Akron, O. General offices are located at Akron, O. Both plants are now in production and distribution of tires has already begun.

A factory branch of the company was recently opened in St. Louis in the Garrett Building, 4116 Union avenue, with H. E. Langdon as manager. Langdon has for many years been identified with the rubber industry in a sales executive capacity, having served as manager mechanical goods sales for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Australia and later held the same position in New England.

The personnel of the factory is as follows: F. A. Seiberlin, president and general manager; C. W. Seiberling, vice president in charge of purchase; I. R. Bailey, vice president in charge of sales, W. S. Wolfe, vice president in charge of production; W. A. M. Vaughan, treasurer; W. E. Palmer, secretary,; K. B. Kilborn, chief engineer; Walter Keith, chief chemist.

HYMAN TO HANDLE STUTZ ADVERTISING

W. N. Thompson, president of the Stutz Mortor Car Co. of America, Inc., of Indianapolis, Ind., has just announced the appointment of H. R. Hyman as advertising counsel. Mr. Hyman is identified with the Charles H. Fuller Co. of Chicago, one of the pioneer advertising agencies in the automotive field, and will represent that organization in the handling of the Stutz account.

GARDNER SHIPS TRAINLOAD TO BOSTON

"So great has been the demand for Gardner cars, shipments are being made by the trainload," said Russell E. Gardner Jr., vice president for sales of the Gardner Motor Co., Inc., prior to his trip to Boston with a trainload of Gardner automobiles, to attend the New England Automobile Show, which opens this week.

ONE AUTO FOR EVERY 10.2 PERSONS IN U. S.

According to the final totals of motor cars registered there is now one automobile for every 10.2 persons in the United States. In Iowa there is one motor car for every 5.28 persons, in Alabama one to every 29.50 persons. In between these extremes come all the other states, with the agricultural states leading by a comfortable margin.

New York is still on top of the list of registrations with over 800,000 motor cars, Nevada is at the bottom with a little over 10,000. Florida showed the largest per cent increase in registrations last year with an increase of 32.40 per cent. The average gain for all the states was 17.6 per cent.

Starting with New York which has the largest number of motor cars of any State and running down the list we find these states in the order named New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California, Illinois, Michigan, Texas, Iowa and Indiana. In the ratio of persons per car, Iowa leads all others. Other states in order of the number of persons per car are: South Dakota (second), Nebraska, California, Kansas, Colorado, Oregon, Nevada, North Dakota. It is interesting to note that while Nevada is last in the number of motor cars registered, it is eighth in the ratio of persons per car."

CHANDLER SIX

Is Lowest Priced Car Of Its Class

It is not alone through supreme beauty and mechanical mastery that the new Chandler Six is making its conquering way.

Equally important to buyers is its economy.

No car in its class, wheel base and horse power considered, is priced so low.

Either the cheaper cars are smaller or have less bore and stroke, or both.

This same Chandler price advantage carries through the seven passenger, coupe and sedan models.

Chandler policy has always been to sell a fine car at lowest price. Never has this been so successfully achieved as in the latest Chandler.

If you are—buying for beauty buying for power buying for price

See the Chandler. It is supreme in all three.

Always Faithful in Service

It pays to own the Hupmobile. Everyone seems to know that it is especially long-lived, especially faithful in service.

It's almost a proverb among skilled repairmen that the Hupmobile is better built, and that it stays out of the shop far more consistently.

Owners have found that yearly repair and replacement costs, barring accidents, are next to nothing.

It is a remarkably fine performer when it's new; and the same fine performer when it's old.

NO U. S. FUND FOR FOREST TOURISTS

Millions Go Every Year, but Congress Does Not Provide a Fire Pit or Sanitary Facilities.

Right now is the time thousands of people get the "dope" together and plan that summer vacation. It will astonish a lot of people to know that the figures show 10,000,000 vacation days were spent in your national forests last year. Four million tourists were counted and the average was two and a half days per person, says the American Forestry Association of Washington. By auto and train they get into their playgrounds at the first breath of spring and from then on it is a parade until snow time comes.

"National forests were set aside primarily to produce timber and protect the watersheds of streams," says the association's statement. "These are their primary functions and no other use should take precedence, but American business methods demand the greatest possible aggregate return from these vast areas. If the use of the forests for great play places increases their service power without detracting from the main output, namely, livestock, timber and water; it should be fostered and developed.

"Recreation is practically a wholly added return from the forests. Timber growing, livestock grazing and watershed protection continue undiminished. The 10,000,000 days of play Americans spent last year in the national forests is created wealth.

"Roads and trails built for administrative and protective purposes serve also for recreation. But curious as it may appear not one cent has ever been set aside by Congress to develop solely the recreation resources of the forests. No camp shelters, fireplaces, sanitaries, garbage pits or other camp necessities have been supplied through Federal funds.

"With the tremendous use now present it is imperative that provision be made at least to protect those people there annually spending there there a vacation" the American Forestry Association points out. "Simple minimum sanitary improvements must be built to protect human lives. Scores die each year from drinking polluted waters in the mountains. The installation of these necessities will prevent much of this loss. Fire places must be built to prevent forest fires.

"Only full appreciation of the gravity of the situation by the public and Congress will insure funds to carry on this work. Congress should provide for this activity during the coming session. Unless money is provided many forest camps will be without sanitary necessities during the coming year and lives will thereby be sacrificed. Added annual return from forest recreation demands that the activity in our national forests be organized to produce values to the greatest degree. The need of simple health protection in these areas is paramount. Protection must be provided immediately if sickness and death are to be prevented from visiting some of the millions who each year seek vacation-land in their forests."

MICHELIN TIRE CO. CONDUCTS CONTEST

A nation-wide contest has been launched by the Michelin Tire Co. offering $1000 in cash and 65 other prizes for securing a suitable name for the tire man which has been a feature of Michelin advertising for years.

It seems this tire man already has a name, but the Michelin company feels the name is not exactly suitable because it is not a name easily understood or remembered.

The rules governing the contest are simple. All the contestant has to do is find a suitable name for the tire man and an appropriate slogan or phrase of not more than 10 words. After selecting a name and phrase the contestant must mail them to the Michelin factory at Milltown, N. J., before March 25. Rules governing contest can be obtained from Michelin tire dealers in St. Louis.

DISTRIBUTOR NAMED FOR SPRING INSERTS

The Spring Service Shop, official service department for the Tuthill Sales Co. of St. Louis, have recently appointed distributors of the Center-Fed Spring Inserts for 17 states in the Mississippi Valley.

The inserts, which are manufactured by the Center-Fed Spring Insert Co. of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., are made from low carbon steel, .025 in thickness with a one-quarter inch slot cut through the center running lengthwise of each leaf to within one inch from the end, and oil is fed to each insert by use of a high pressure oil gun.

The inserts are claimed to prevent formation of rust on spring leaves; stop spring squeaks; add to tire and gasoline mileage; eliminate a great amount of spring breakage, and add to the comfort of riding.

EARL ANNOUNCES PRICE REDUCTION

A reduction in the price of all models of the Earl car, effective at once, ranging from $190 to $200, was announced Friday by the Earl Motors, Inc., by telegram to the Briscoe Motor Sales Co., local distributors.

The Earl touring car, which formerly listed at $1185, now sells for $995. The brougham and sedan were reduced from $1885 to $1695, while the new special model roadster remains at $1485. The light delivery wagon was reduced from $1185 to $995.

The above prices are f. o. b. Jackson, Mich.

Buick

Buick production has increased so immensely that it has been possible to make greater strides each season in the handling of each operation. The buyer of a Buick car profits by the consequently lowered manufacturing costs, as well as by the unusual quality built into the Buick car itself.

INVITE ME TO YOUR NEXT BLOWOUT

"POP" CAUSED BY LEAN MIXTURE

On a bright, snappy morning you step on the starter and the motor starts, runs for a second, and stops. You try it again, and it does better, but when you feed a little more gas, "pop, pop," and the motor dies.

That is caused by too lean a mixture. But you ask yourself—why does it "pop."

First you must form a mental picture of the four cycles or strokes of a piston, namely, the intake, compression, power and exhaust; strokes also picture the valves, on the intake stroke, as the piston goes down. The intake valve opens, allowing the suction of the piston to draw gas from the carburetor into the cylinder; then the intake valve closes, the exhaust valve also remains closed, and the piston starts up on compression stroke. When it reaches the top dead center, or 10 degrees past, the spark occurs, and the compressed gas explodes and drives the piston down on the power stroke. The exhause valve then opens as the piston comes up, and forces the burned gases out through the exhaust valve, manifold, and out the muffler.

When the mixture is too lean there still remains in the cylinder certain quantities of burning gases which cannot be forced out by the piston on exhaust stroke. Under this condition, as the intake opens and the piston starts down on the next intake stroke, the burning gases, which still remain in the cylinder, ignite the new intake charge, and the flash is followed out the intake valve to the intake manifold, then to the carburetor, hence the "pop."

REDUCTION ANNOUNCED ON CLETRAC TRACTORS

A reduction of $200 on the model "F" Cletrac tractor, effective at once was announced last week by the Cleveland Tractor Co. of Cleveland, O.

The new price of the(model F, which was introduced last September, is now $595 f. o. b. factory.

No changes were made in the price of the larger Cletrac model "W," nor in the line of Cletrac cultivators which now includes the two-row corn and cotton cultivator, straddle single-row cultivator and straddle two-row cultivator.

The Ideal Motor Sales Co. are distirbutors in St. Louis for the Cletrac Tractor.

CLOSED CAR SHOWING STEADY GAIN IN FAVOR

Statistics just published by the Class Journal Co. covering percentage of closed cars produced in the United States since 1915 show that the closed car has grown in favor very rapidly within the last three years.

Closed cars represented 1.5 per cent of total production in 1915. There was no change in 1916, but for the succeeding years, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920 and 1921, the percentage of production representing closed cars was 4 per cent, 7 per cent, 10 per cent, 18 per cent and 25 per cent respectively.

Commenting on these figures, S. E. Ackerman, sales manager for the Franklin Automobile Co., has recalled the spirit of scepticism with which the sedan which was first offered the American public in 1913 by the Franklin Automobile Co., was received. During that year, the company built and sold 13 closed cars. Later the brougham was added to this line, and more recently, the touring-limousine and the coupe.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

COTTON FIRM BUYS 7-STORY BUILDING AT OLIVE AND 17TH

Lesser-Goldman Company Said to Have Paid About $200,000 for Structure at Southwest Corner.

FORMERLY OCCUPIED BY HARDWARE FIRM

Burdeau Realty Co. Said to Have Made Concession in Price Because of Street Widening Ordinance.

By Berry Moore.

The Lesser-Goldman Cotton Co., one of the largest and most important concerns of the kind in America, through the Martin-Breit Real Estate Co., has bought the seven-story building at the southwest corner of Olive and Seventeenth streets, constructed and owned by the Burdeau Realty Co., of which George T. Burdeau is president. The site has 80 feet frontage on Olive street by a depth of 109 feet on Seventeenth street.

The consideration was about $200,000, but if the building were erected today it would cost greatly in excess of these figures, exclusive of the site, it was stated by real estate authorities. The Burdeau company made a liberal concession in the price, it was stated, in view of the ordinance providing for the widening of Olive street, and which if put into execution would materially reduce the value of this building.

Will Occupy Three Floors.

The concern will occupy the fifth, sixth and seventh stories of the building, which will be installed with modern classing rooms, modeled after the classing rooms of the United States Government in Washington, D. C. The remainder of the building, comprising basement, first second, third and fourth floors, will be leased through the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co., which reports that it already has a number of desirable tenants in prospect for the space at attractive rentals.

The Lesser-Goldman Cotton Company, which has had its headquarters and executive offices at 112-114 South Main street in St. Louis since 1894, operates on a large scale throughout Arkansas and Oklahoma, and maintains branch offices at all the principal points in those states, as well as in other states throughout the South and East.

The building at Seventeenth and Olive streets was formerly occupied by the Southern Hardware Company, which was absorbed by the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Company.

40 Feet to Be Added to Street.

Forty feet are to be added to the width of Olive street betwen Twelfth street and Channing avenue, a distance of 20 blocks, and work in this connection has progressed to the legal stage of preparing and arranging condemnation suits to obtain possession of the needed land. The present width of the street is 60 feet between building lines and the 40 feet is to be added to this, chiefly on the south side. The ordinance authorizing the City's Law Department to begin its work in the matter was passed several months ago.

After judgments have been rendered in the condemnation proceedings, the city can take possession of this strip of land and remove the buildings which are in the way. It is believed that the work can be completed within the first full construction season. The paving to be laid has not been decided on and the cost has not yet been closely studied.

This is the second important transaction for property in this section of Olive street since the first of the year. The other involved the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Olive streets, which was acquired by J. J. Sigel for $85,000 through Cornet & Zeibig. A year ago the southwest corner of Eighteenth and Olive streets was bought by the Union Station Bank as a site for a building for its own use, the seller, Frank Ruff, being represented by the real estate department of the Mercantile Trust Co. These acquisitions were predicated on the belief that the widening of the street as proposed would enhance its importance as a business center.

Renewed Activity Reflected.

Renewed activity is reflected throughout the real estate field with the approach of spring, J. M. Levi of the J. M. Levi company says.

The demand for investment purposes, he declares, is especially noteworthy, while there are many buyers for homes in prospect. This refers, he says also, to flats which are acquired both as homes and investments.

The outlook is gratifying in the extreme, Levi continued. All real estate is now on a substantial basis, which accounts for the preference shown for it for investment purposes. The call for vacant property for sites for homes and apartments of the better order is a feature, but the supply of lots within the city limits available for such purposes is well-nigh absorbed, he declared. Accordingly, builders are going into the county for sites for buildings of these types. Despite the high prices of construction, building will not lag the forthcoming season, if present indications can be relied upon.

Building at Seventeenth and Olive Streets Bought by Cotton Concern

BROADWAY AND LOCUST ST. CORNER FIGURES IN SALES

Fee to Property Now Occupied by 11-Story Building Disposed of by Mercantile Trust Co. to Belmont R. E. Firm.

The Mercantile Trust Co. has announced the sale of the fee to the southeast corner of Broadway and Locust street to the Belmont Real Estate Co., of which George D. Markham is president. The lot forms a part of the Boatmen's Bank Building annex, fronting 57 feet 6 inches on Broadway by 115 feet on Locust street.

The site is occupied by the 11-story building of the Bell Telephone Co. and railroad ticket offices.

The ground is under a 99-year lease to the Ranier Real Estate Co. at an annual net rental of $11,500, the lessors paying the taxes and the insurance. It was sold on behalf of the Augustus B. Hart and Mary H. Semple heirs.

Sale to Net 5 Per Cent.

Owing to the existence of this 99-year lease, the sale was made on the basis of the interest return and was sold to net the purchaser a fraction over 5 per cent on the investment. The Belmont Real Estate Co. acquired the property for a permanent investment.

C. H. McMillan, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., conducted the negotiations leading to this sale, while the Hart and Semple estates were represented by Frederick H. Semple of Fisher, Semple & Co.

The fees to land under the 99-year lease, and on which large buildings have been erected have long been considered excellent investments, and many wealthy estates in St. Louis have acquired such properties for permanent investment.

Is in Business Center.

The location is in the heart of the financial district. The importance of this area as a financial center will be enhanced with the completion of the building being erected at the northeast corner of Broadway and Locust street. The site for the latter building was also acquired through the Merchant Trust Co.

SELECTION OF ST. LOUIS FOR CHILDREN'S HOME URGED

In a letter declaring the mortality of a city, especially the infant death rate, to be the most convincing index as to the desirability of that city as a site for a home for children, Health Commissioner Starkloff has given the St. Louis Convention Bureau his reasons why the Brotherhood of American Yeomen should select St. Louis or the vicinity for location of its proposed $10,000,000 children's home.

He cites the St. Louis infant death rate, of 61 in each thousand born, as the lowest in the larger cities of the country, and points out that deaths here from diarrhea and enteritis, the greatest foes to infants under two years old, were also low for the United States cities in 1921, being but 128. Comparative mortality for persons of all ages shows St. Louis in fourth place.

St. Louis' freedom from epidemics of a local nature, its ample public and private hospital facilities, its medical schools, and its supply of pure water are given as adidtional reasons for selecting this city as the site for the home.

MUSCLE SHOALS

THE MOST GIGANTIC INDUSTRIAL PROJECT IN THE WORLD

What Will Adjoining Land Be Worth When This Wonderful Enterprise Is Completed?

Florence, Alabama

Florence, that wonderful little city in Alabama, which had the good fortune to become great over night due to one of the greatest industrial enterprises since the Panama Canal being placed at its doors, is starting on one of the greatest booms in history. Upon the completion of the dam and the development of Muscle Shoals a new kind of manufacturing city will come into creation in the Tennessee Valley. Higher wages can be paid because coal-burning cost will be eliminated. What large manufacturer will not jump at the chance of getting some of this power at the low cost?

Buy Lots Cheap Now

Building lots in Florence can now be purchased at the prices per foot which prevail in the usual small town. But they are rapidly being bought up and the values will become greater and greater as Muscle Shoals develops. There is an opportunity here for you to get in now. We are offering building lots within the incorporated limits of the city, on the Huntsville road, the main artery between Florence and the great Wilson Dam. There is no greater coming industrial center in the United States today. Come in to our St. Louis office at 10th and Olive and see maps, photographs, etc. Surely an opportunity—investigate!

M. E. D.—Silver embroideries or braids may be cleaned by dusting them with Vienna lime, then brushing off with a velvet brush. Another method is to cover the braid with alabaster in very fine powder; brush it until it becomes bright and clean.

M. G. S.—Ebony stain: To 1 pint of boiling water add ¾ ounce of copperas and 8 ounces logwood chips. Apply this to the wood to be stained, hot. When the surface has dried thoroughly wet it with a solution composed of 7 ounces steel filings dissolved in ¼ pint of vinegar.

J. F.—Removing ink stains: First apply tallow to the ink spot, then wash in a solution of pyrophosphate until both tallow and ink spot have disappeared. The pyrophosphate soda is a salt and does not injure vegetable fiber. Another formula is to use a mixture of four parts of tartar and two parts of powdered alum. This is not injurious to cloth and may help you in your problem of removing the old blood stains from the silk shirt.

M. P.—1. The 10 largest railroads are: The Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Atlantic Coast Line, Atchison, Topeka & Sante Fe, Chicago Burlington & Quincy, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railways and Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. 2. The modern high-grade express passenger locomotive can run at the rate of 112 miles an hour on a heavy rail, straight track, provided it is ballasted by a train behind it to keep it from jumping off. The fastest time on record for a distance of over 440 miles was made by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern R. R. from Bufalo to Chicago in June, 1905, the rate being 69.69 miles per hour.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

LOVE.—Consult a lawyer. You are probably the man's common-law wife.

MRS. M. G.—Under the circumstances you can force your husband to pay the back alimony.

SPRINGFIELD.—A man who has an insane wife cannot legally marry another woman without a divorce.

H. L. W.—The bank was not a member of the Federal Reserve or the Clearing House at the time of its closing.

M. O.—Report the facts concerning the slacker to the United States Attorney in the Federal Building, Ninth and Olive streets.

JOHN.—The agent can have your furniture seized by attachment or execution for jumping your lease unless the furniture is exempt to you as head of the family.

J. D.—If there was a real common-law marriage, the persons might be prosecuted if they lived in adultery afterwards. Divorce would be necessary before either could marry again.

DAILY READER.—You cannot make wine for your own use. The United States Enforcement Agents can confiscate wine or whisky if it was made or sold or transported in violation of the law.

THANK YOU.—The Government allowance to disabled soldiers is exempt from income taxation. Your income of less than $1000 from stocks is not taxable. Write to the Collector of the county in which your property is located concerning taxes due.

EX-SERVICE.—You are not entitled to the Missouri bonus. You may be entitled to the Ohio or to the Mississippi bonus. Write the Secretary of State, Columbus, O., and to the Secretary of State, Jackson, Miss., for information.

C. C.—43.—If a man has been absent and unheard of for seven years, he is presumed to be dead. If his wife should remarry under such circumstances she could not be prosecuted for bigamy. However, it would be much safer and better in every way to get a divorce first.

K. C. M.—The mortgage can be foreclosed at any time before the note is barred by the general statute of limitations whether the note is proved against the estate or not. But there could be no judgment for a deficiency unless the note was allowed as a demand in the Probate Court.

A READER.—A tenant may give the landlord a notice that he will move any time, but he must pay a full month's rent for month following next rent payment. Example as follows: Rent is paid for month of February on the first, notice is given on Feb. 14 of intention to vacate. On March 1 the tenant must pay the whole rent for March regardless of the date on which he moves.

WORRIED WIFE.—The insurance assigned to your husband's father and sister is not affected by debts or funeral expenses in case of his death. You would not share in such an insurance policy. Your husband could draw money from the bank, which had been deposited in your name if he was appointed administrator of your estate, but would have to account for it in the Probate Court.

MANUFACTURER J.—1. We do not know of any law prohibiting a person who is not a graduate of medicine from manufacturing and selling patent medicines and toilet preparations in the State of Oklahoma. 2. A license would probably be necessary. Write to the Secretary of State, Oklahoma City, Ok., for information regarding it. 3. The true manufacturer's name should be stated on the label.

JIM CROW.—If the savings account is a joint account it will go to the survivor, but if it is merely an account in which the husband deposits money and permits the wife to check against it or draw it out, it will form part of the husband's estate upon his death. Difficulties may arise in connection with the State inheritance tax, unless it can be clearly shown that the account was a joint account, creating a tenancy by the entirety. Many if not most cases of bank accounts in both names are not really joint accounts at all.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

YOURS TRULY.—We have no faith whatever in the appliance advertised. Consult an orthopedic surgeon and have him advise you.

JOE.—A tubercular test of a cow will demonstrate whether or not she is tubercular. Any veterinary can make this test at a nominal expense.

J. P.—We do not know that any one oculist in the United States is considered the best. Such things are matters of opinion. Every large city at least has most competent oculists.

E. J.—For oily hair: Have an ointment made of 1 dram of sulphur to 1 ounce of rose ointment. Part the hair and into the part rub a little of the ointment into the scalp; not the hair. Repeat this, covering the scalp nightly. After one week wash the head with soap and water, dry and reapply the ointment as before, but only every other night. Continue in this way, reducing the applications of the salve until it is made only once a week. Relapses may occur, in which event the treatment should be at once resumed. After the second week it is well to use a lotion of 20 per cent sulphurous acid in dilute alcohol, applying on the days that the ointment is not used. This will overcome the too oily effect of the ointment and the too drying effect of the alcohol.

Traffic Re-Manufactured TRUCKS

Not the so-called rebuilt, but remanufactured. We tear these trucks down completely, re-busch, re-bore and replace all the worn parts with new parts, and it is done by the men who built them originally. They have new inclosed cabs, new bodies and are painted like new; in fact, we give the same guarantee as we do on a new truck.

They are equipped with stake open and covered express bodies, hydraulic and hand hoists. A selection second to none, and a price that you can afford to pay. A small payment down and the balance in (12) twelve months.

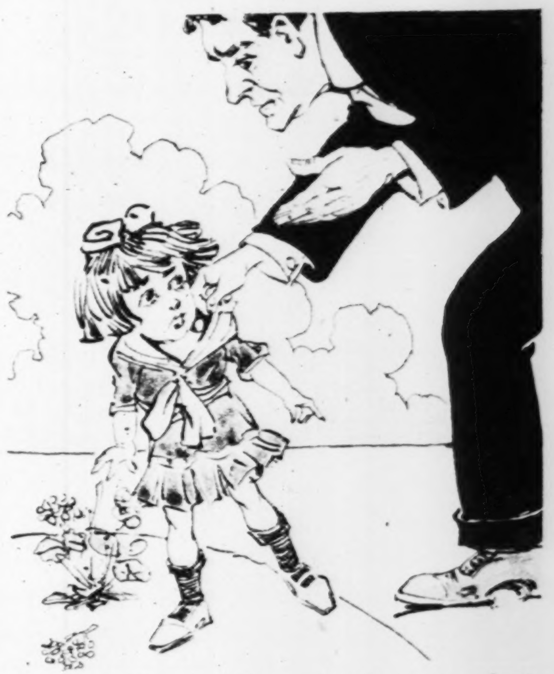
AN AMERICAN ROYAL PRINCESS

In this portrait the distinguished London painter, Philip A. de Laszlo, has depicted Princess Miguel de Braganza. The Princess, formerly Miss Anita Rhinelander Stewart of New York, is one of the few American women of the present generation who have married Princes of royal blood. Her husband, Pretender to the throne of Portugal, is the son of an Austrian Princess and the grandson of King Miguel, who was deposed from the Portuguese throne in 1883. Miss Stewart's marriage to the Prince at Inverness, Scotland, in 1909, attracted no little comment at the time, as it was a remarkable instance of characteristic American charm achieving union with a royal European house of no indisputable nobility. Princess de Braganza is at present in New York, and this portrait is one of the features of the brilliant show of Laszlo's portraits of celebrities given recently in the East.

WHY CHILDREN TELL LIES

Parents and their wrong methods of training are blamed by student of old, old problem, who says home discipline often amounts to punishment for speaking the truth—"Don't lie to your children and then maul them when they lie to you," urges this writer, who believes youngsters should be controlled not by fear but by love — True stories of unjust chastisement and harmful deceptions by fathers and mothers :: :: ::



A small child accidentally breaks off a flower. Her big father seizes her and asks, "Did you do that?" at the same time raising an arm to strike. The child knows that if she tells the truth she will be whipped, that if she lies she will escape punishment.

By W. E. APT, St. Louis Attorney.

A GREAT many parents are daily teaching their children to lie, using wrong methods in training, which can easily destroy their children's faith, not only in them but in humanity as well; and in a measure destroy their children's chance of happiness and success, and the pitiful part of it is, they do not realize the irreparable harm they are doing.

The trouble is and has been we have not searched for the cause of "why children lie," the cause of willfulness, the cause of untruthfulness and of other systems, which if not treated right in the home, and at the right time, may lead to dire consequences. But, instead, children are often punished (at least the child has every right to think so) for telling the truth.

For instance: We find a wee bit of a child, immature in both body and mind, who accidentally breaks off a flower in the front yard. A big, strong parent grabs the child by the collar and asks, "Did you do that?" at the same time raising an arm to strike. What is the result? Although it was an accident, the child knows that if he tells the truth he will receive a whipping, if he lies he will be let off without punishment. It would be tempting for some of us older folks to stretch the truth a little in a case like that, but nevertheless we often place a premium on lying, and when children find out that telling a lie will get them out of the many troubles the little fellows fall heir to, they will do it unless they have had the proper training.

And proper training does not mean physical punishment, shouted commands, shutting up in dark rooms and telling them the boogie man will get them, making them go to bed without their supper and other barbarous treatment. I say this kind of treatment should not take place in a home. Children should be made comrades, not slaves; should be encouraged and helped, not punished, and by all means not punished for telling the truth.

There is no question but children are punished for telling the truth. My attention was called to this fact when I was working on a farm near Lisbon, Ia. The party for whom I worked had the reputation of serving extra good meals, and no one knew this better than the minister who filled the pulpit in their church on Sunday. In fact, he generally arranged to take dinner with us. One particular Sunday, after church, found the minister, the boy and myself sitting on the back seat of the wagon. I heard the minister ask the little fellow if he had been to church, and the boy answered, "Yes, sir, I was." "Well," asked the minister, "do you remember what my text was?" The boy said he did and that it was something about a miracle.

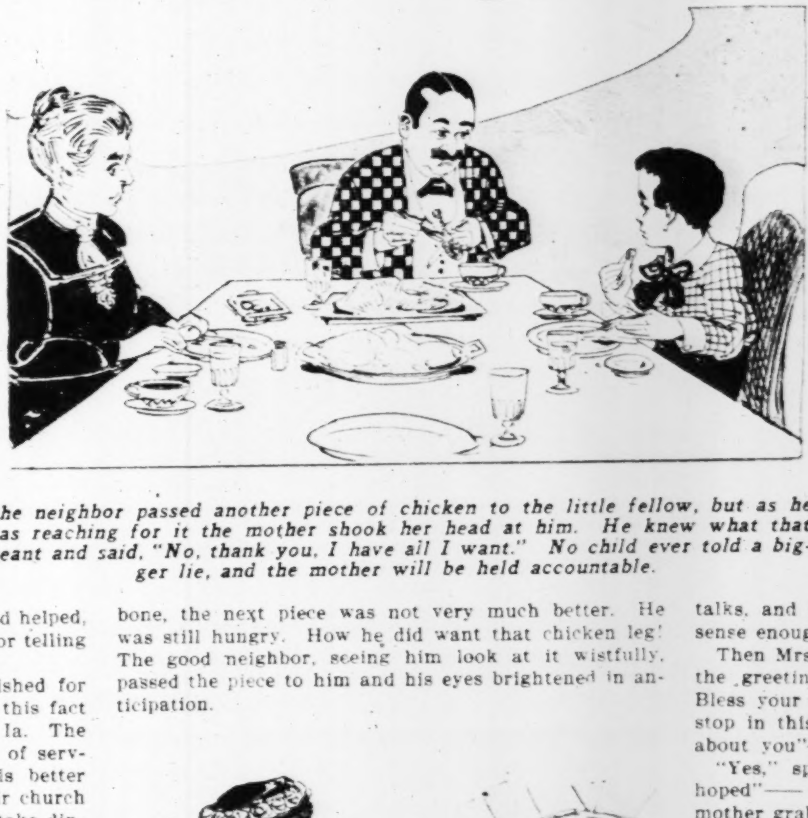
"You are right," said the minister. "Now, my son, can you tell me what a miracle is?" The boy replied: "Yes, sir, I think I can. A miracle is a—is a—I don't know that I can just tell, but I know mother said it would be a miracle if you didn't tag us home to dinner today."

That little boy was taken into the woodshed when we arrived home and given one of the hardest whippings a boy ever received, and do you know what for? For telling the absolute truth, because I heard the mother say that very thing.

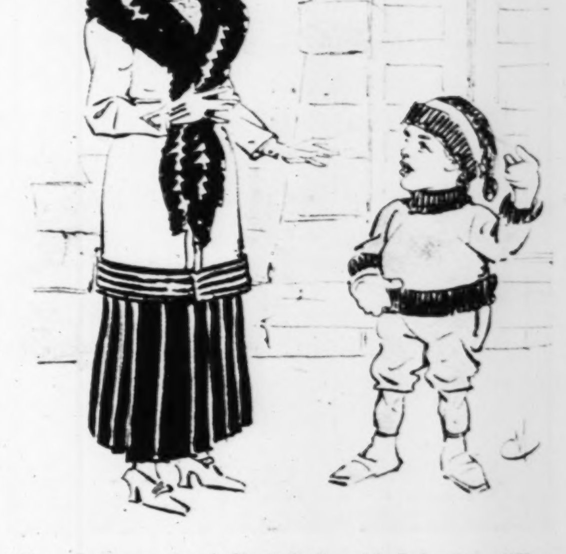
What can be expected from a child who receives that kind of training? He is too young to understand and naturally thinks he has the right to repeat what he hears his parents say.

Instead of a hardship, as some parents try to make us believe, the training of a child should be a genuine pleasure, because if the parents share every confidence, every joy and sorrow of the child, they will receive as a result its unqualified respect; and what a source of pride now, as well as in after years, to have children whose every action shows culture and refinement, perfect little gentlemen and gentlewomen, yet full of fun and childish enthusiasm.

Did you ever notice the little fellow taken to a neighbor's for dinner, how his eyes fairly popped out at the sight of fried chicken, cream gravy and other good things, and how the mother sat right across from him at the table and kept an eye on him all the time? The first piece of chicken the little fellow got was mostly bone, the next piece was not very much better. He was still hungry. How he did want that chicken leg! The good neighbor, seeing him look at it wistfully, passed the piece to him and his eyes brightened in anticipation.



The neighbor passed another piece of chicken to the little fellow, but as he was reaching for it the mother shook her head at him. He knew what that meant and said, "No, thank you, I have all I want." No child ever told a bigger lie, and the mother will be held accountable.



"Yes, I know you, all right," said Johnnie. "You are Mrs. Case, the one who is trying to run the whole church." "Why, who said I was trying to run the whole church?" she asked. Johnnie replied: "My mamma said so. I heard her."

As he was reaching for the drumstick he looked across the table and saw his mother shaking her head. He knew what that shake meant and he said: "No, thank you, I have all I want." No child ever told a bigger lie, and the mother will be held accountable.

I believe it is wrong to tell children there is a Santa Claus, that he drives reindeer, that he comes down that old dirty chimney.

A friend with whom I was riding on a train told me of an experience that he and his wife had with their little boy. He said his wife taught the boy to pray as soon as he was able to walk. Every evening she would have him kneel and ask Jesus to bless mamma and papa, uncle and auntie, in fact, taught him to ask Jesus to bless everybody. One day he came home from school and said: "See here, mamma, you and papa have been telling me big stories. You said there was a Santa Claus, that he drove reindeer and that he came down the chimney and gave me presents. Now, Johnnie Jones told me today there isn't any Santa Claus, that his mamma and papa were his Santa Claus and you and papa were my Santa Claus."

"Well," replied the mother, "I guess Johnnie is right, in a way, but listen, son: everybody tells that to the children; we thought you would enjoy your presents better."

"That's all right," said the boy, "but you told me a story, just the same, and when I get a little bigger I am going to look into that Jesus business, too, I tell you that."

I believe every one of these little home fictions of parents will be a defective stone in the child's life structure, a defect that may not show so much at the time, but, as sure as taxes and death, will show when life's storms, struggles and temptations begin to test the material, as it were, that we are responsible for, the child having developed under our training.

I recall a family that was loved and respected in the community for their truth, their Christian influence and fine citizenship. Once I asked the mother how old her daughter Dorothy was, and she said: "Dorothy will be 13 years old this coming September." I was shocked when Dorothy said: "It is a funny thing, because when I am on the street car mamma tells the conductor I am 10 and papa told the conductor on the train when we were on our way to visit auntie that I was 11." Think of it, this little girl, an only child, was taught to tell a lie on a street car and on a train to save half fare.

A conductor of a passenger train told me that children of parents with whom he was personally acquainted, and who rode with him quite often, had fewer birthdays than some women do after they reach the age of 25.

Cannot you, reader, recall talking with your neighbor in her front room, while her children played on the floor and listened to the conversation? Mrs. Jones was seen coming down the street, when your neighbor said: "There is Mrs. Jones. I do hope she won't come trotting in here this morning. You know, that woman makes me sick. She just sits around and talks and talks, and doesn't say anything; she honestly hasn't sense enough to know when she is not wanted."

Then Mrs. Jones knocks at the door. Now, listen to the greeting: "Why, Mrs. Jones, how do you do? Bless your dear heart, I was so afraid you would not stop in this morning. Mrs. Dunn and I were talking about you"——

"Yes," spoke up little Johnnie, "mamma said she hoped"—— That was as far as Johnnie got; the good mother grabbed him by the ear and shoved him out in the kitchen, with the understanding that should he dare to speak again, that is, to attempt to tell the truth, he would receive a good whipping.

I do not believe children forget these things, when you have them on your lap teaching them the Ten Commandments, one of which is, "Thou shalt not lie."

I was in a Southern city not long ago, and I found the members of a church divided on account of a remark made by one of the members, and repeated by her little boy. One of the ladies of the church met a little fellow on the street, and while talking to him she thought he did not recognize her, and said: "Johnnie, I do not believe you know me, do you?" "Yes, I know you, all right," said Johnnie. "You are Mrs. Case, the one who is trying to run the whole church." "Why, Johnnie, who said I was trying to run the whole church?" she asked. "My mamma said so. I heard her tell Mrs. Ellis that you was too flip and was trying to run the whole church."

As a result, the two families have not spoken for two years, so that would make it two years since Johnnie received a whipping for telling the truth.

I knew of a merchant in my home town who lost a very good customer on account of a remark he made, which was repeated by his little boy. The merchant had a big deal on with a country customer, and as a business proposition, took him home to dinner. Among other things, he sent home a choice beef roast, which his wife prepared with her usual skill. When they were seated at the table the little boy said: "Why, papa, this is roast beef." "Of course," said his father, "what of it?" "Why, you told mamma this

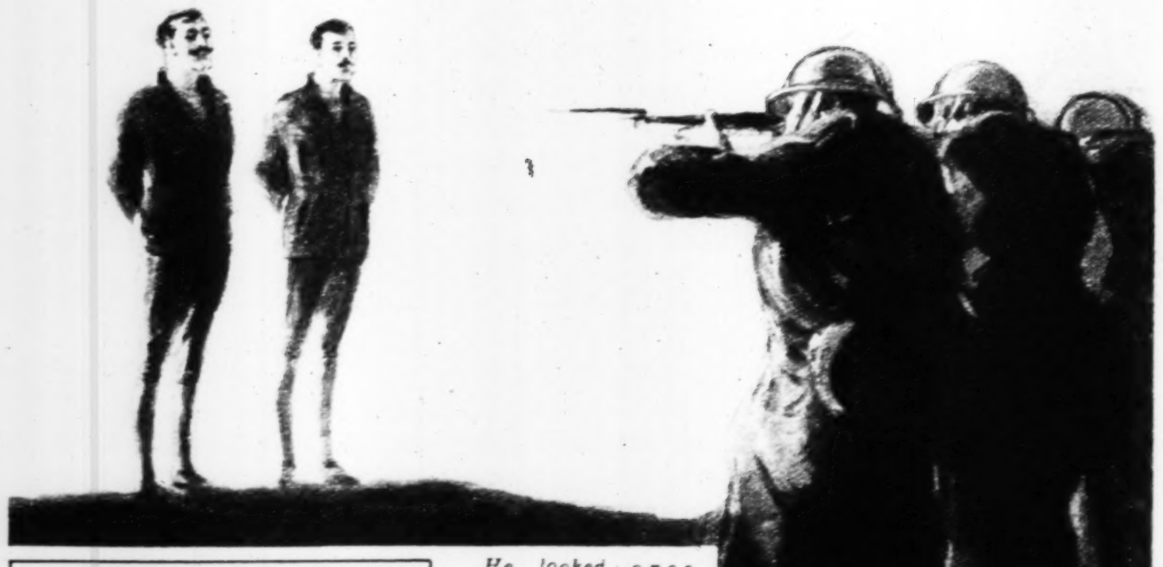
France Honors Man Shot for Cowardice

Widow's successful fight for restitution discloses amazing paradox that man executed for cowardice himself gave the order to fire—War Minister says it was "misapplication of the regulations" that resulted in death of Lieut. Herduin, but wife demands that responsible General be punished—All France moved by revelations of afflicting war tragedy :: :: ::



He looked once more on the distant hills, then slowly closed his eyes and in a clear voice gave the command: "Fire!"

Lieut. Gustave Herduin, executed through "a misapplication of the regulations."

Lieut. Herduin and the devoted wife whose efforts to redeem his honor have been successful.

The boy for whose sake his father desired that his own name should be purged of disgrace.

WAR, the ugliest of enterprises, must have its ugly by-products. Recently the attention of all France has been drawn to the dramatic spectacle afforded by a woman fighting to clear the name of her soldier husband and to visit punishment upon the high military officer responsible for his shameful death. In this campaign she was fulfilling the injunction laid upon her by the dead man in the hour of his last agony, to redeem his memory for the sake of their small son.

It is a moving tale, for he was a blithe fellow, who, by the manner of his dying, gave the lie to the charge of cowardice, upon which he was put to death. This calumny has been removed, but the widow vows, with bitter grimness, never to rest until the guilty superior has been meted justice.

The tragedy goes back to the awful days before Verdun, where France's armies reeled before the incessant thunder of the Crown Prince's divisions, seeking to pass the eastern gateway. Into this furnace of death companies and regiments were poured, never to emerge. As a detail of the vast, shuddering drama, the Seventeenth Company of the 347th Infantry Regiment, commanded by Second Lieutenants Gustave Herduin and Marcel Milliant, were ordered to occupy and hold, "at all costs," a position near Thiaumont Farm.

It was a point of considerable importance, and the German gunners straightway laid upon it a terrific barrage. Moreover, a strong detachment of German scouts, working under cover of the fire, penetrated the line and captured a considerable part of the regiment on the right. When the company had lost more than half its effectives under bombardment, Lieut. Herduin dispatched a courier to the regimental commander on the left, reporting his condition and asking for orders. What the reply was has not been divulged, but judging from the fact that it was from this quarter that the charges were subsequently made, it is easily inferred that the orders were to hold on.

The Seventeenth did hold on until there remained of the original company 31 men. Then the Lieutenant gave the order to withdraw, and the pathetic fragment crept back to the support trenches, dragging their machine guns with them. Two days later they were ordered to rejoin the remainder of the regiment at Fleury.

On their arrival they warmly greeted their immediate superior, Capt. Delaruelle. "It was a close scrape," Herduin explained, "but we managed to pull out 31 men and the machine guns. One could not hope for much more."

With a white face the Captain pulled two documents from his pocket. "I have warrants here for the immediate execution of yourself and Milliant," he said. "You must prepare for death at once."

"What!" cried the appalled Herduin. "You do not mean that we are to be shot like pigs! Without trial! Impossible! There must be some mistake!" Capt. Delaruelle exhibited the warrants. There was no mistake. Second Lieutenants Herduin and Milliant were to be summarily shot for cowardice in abandoning their position.

"But without a hearing?" protested the condemned men. "Surely the General will hear our explanation. This is inhuman!" Capt. Delaruelle was entirely in sympathy with his comrades; he risked censure by sending a messenger to headquarters to inquire if any alteration of the order was possible. The reply came back as cold and crisp as death:

"No observations. Immediate execution."

Pale and resolved, the two officers divested themselves of the insignia of their rank. Milliant was unmarried, but Herduin had a wife and a baby boy. He asked permission to write a letter, which was granted. He wrote:

"My Adored Little Wife:

"We have suffered a grave check. Nearly all my battalion, except myself and a few men, have been captured by the boches, and I am reproached for having come out of it. I've been wrong not to let myself be taken also. Col. Bernard treats us as cowards—we two officers who are left—as if 30 could hold like 400.

"Thus I sustain the penalty. I have no shame. My comrades who know me know that I never was a coward. But before I die, bonnie Fernande, I think of you and of my Lulu (the son). Claim my pension; you have the right to it. I have a tranquil conscience. I wish to die commanding the execution squad, before my men, who weep.

"I embrace you madly for the last time. Cry, after my death, against military justice. The chiefs always look for someone on whom to throw responsibility—and always find someone so they may clear themselves.

"My adored treasure, I send you a long kiss, thinking of all our past happiness. I embrace my beloved boy. He will have no need to blush for his father, who has always done his duty. Oh, to think that this is the last time I shall ever write! But be courageous, my beautiful angel. Think of me as I give you the last and eternal kiss.

"My hand is firm. I die with tranquil conscience. Adieu. I love you. GUSTAVE.

"P. S.—I shall be buried in Fleury Wood, to the north of Verdun. 'X' will give you all information."

The order was that the two men should be executed by members of their own regiment. A firing squad of six was picked. Never had men been selected for more abhorrent duty. The prisoners, with bared heads and throats, took their places on a railway embankment. Milliant was almost in a state of collapse. At the critical moment, Capt. Delaruelle, commanding the firing squad, broke into hysterical weeping, and threw up his hands, exclaiming: "I cannot! It is too much!" The executioners were bordering on panic.

Then Herduin's voice rang out. "Old comrade," he called to Capt. Delaruelle, "I shall not inflict this torture on you. Compose yourself. I shall give the word." Then to the soldiers: "My children, we are not cowards. It appears that we did not hold on long enough. Ah, well, one must hold on to the end for France. And now—look straight. Aim right at our hearts. Don't disfigure our faces. Are you ready?" He paused, his handsome figure and that of his companion silhouetted against the gray morning sky. He looked once more at the distant rim of wooded hills, closed his eyes, and in a clear voice gave the command:

"Fire!"

A tiny swirl of smoke floated upward. The squad turned quickly and marched at quickstep away from the embankment, on the other side of which sprawled two limp forms.

Despite her agony, Madame Herduin, living with her old mother and her 4-year-old boy, in a cellar at shell-battered Rheims, remembered she was as good a patriot as she knew her husband to be, and forced herself to keep silence during the war. As soon as it was over, however, she began the task of obtaining justice, indomitable in the face of the immense obstacles she found in her path. The Post-Dispatch correspondent found her a few days ago in the little back street hotel of Paris which she manages in order to provide support for her mother and boy.

"Gustave," she said, "was always one of the bravest. He was not just a civilian mobilized at the outbreak of the war. He had been a soldier for 18 years and had been decorated for two previous campaigns. It has all been done to protect the Generals. It would not have happened had he been with his own regiment, where everybody knew him and knew that he could never be a coward. But through his own eagerness he was with another regiment.

"When the war began he was convalescing from a broken leg. He had still 15 days of this to run. But, anxious to get back to his regiment, he reported himself to the commanding officer at Rheims. He was told that his regiment, which had been badly cut up near Sedan, was re-forming a long way back and he was invited to join a regiment on the spot. This he did and remained with it to the end."

Madame Herduin then told of her fight to obtain reversal of the execution decision. "A few days after the armistice I went to the War Ministry. Vainly the Whose Body?

HOW NEW YORK'S HIGHEST COURT DECIDED PUZZLING INSURANCE CASE . .

Widow of Edwin Ensign won three verdicts against insurance company which alleged that Ensign was not burned to death in his summer camp cottage —No proof that he still lived, but effort was made to prove that the body of a man already dead was put in the cottage before it burned—Case recalls remarkable exploit of John A. Brock of St. Louis, who "died" in a fire but came to life a year later

AS THE climax of litigation in a case of absorbing interest to insurance companies, lawyers and holders of life insurance policies, the Court of Appeals of New York—highest tribunal in the State—has decided that Edwin D. Ensign, an undertaker of Hudson, N. Y., died in a fire which destroyed his summer camp on the shore of Lake Charles, 12 miles from his home, and that it was his body which was taken from the ruins of the camp cottage.

Despite the court decision there is still much speculation as to queer aspects of the case in Ensign's home town, and those not learned in the law still have opposing opinions, though a trial court and two appellate courts have decided that Ensign's wife and his business partner are entitled to collect the insurance on his life.

In legal circles the case also has aroused keen interest and lawyers in all parts of the country have been writing to Albany for full copies of the final decision.

In some respects this was one of the most remarkable insurance cases ever adjudicated.

The fact that Ensign carried $103,250 insurance on his life has led to a bitter court contest, in the course of which one of the insurance companies in a test suit had contended that the body was found in the ruins was not Ensign's and that the man whose body was found was not killed in the fire, but died earlier of influenza-pneumonia.

Ensign left his home the afternoon of Dec. 12, 1918, in an automobile truck, telling his wife and members of his family that he was going to the summer camp. This was not thought to be unusual, as he frequently had visited the camp in the winter months.

That night the camp cottage burned. About 1 a. m. the next morning a body, burned beyond recognition, was taken from the ruins by Ray T. Bates, partner of Ensign in the undertaking business.

Naturally, the ashes and debris on the site of the burned cottage were carefully sifted and searched in an effort to find something which could be identified as Ensign's property. It was a matter of common knowledge that Ensign had several gold-crowned teeth and that he habitually carried a gold watch. The teeth and the watch were not found. A bunch of keys, identified as having belonged to Ensign, and one penny, blackened by the heat of the fire, were found.

There was a search for more money in the ruins when members of the Wentzel family, living near the camp, revealed that on the night of the fire Ensign bought milk at the Wentzel home and received a dime and five pennies in change.

News that Ensign had been burned to death caused a sensation in Hudson, where Ensign was a leading citizen. He had been prominent in civic affairs and only the night before the fire he had been elected master of the local Masonic lodge.

When Ensign's wife, Kathryn, put in claims for his insurance it became apparent that she would not be able to collect without a contest. A test of the validity of the claim was made by one insurance company, which had written policies on Ensign's life to the total of about $36,000.

There was another sensation when the allegations of the insurance company were made public. They led to heated discussions in the town of Hudson.

The company alleged that a week before Ensign's departure there were in his morgue in Hudson the bodies of five men who had no homes and some of whom had died of pneumonia. It was asserted by the company's lawyers that one of these bodies had been placed in the cottage before it was burned, though, of course, no absolute and incontrovertible proof of this could be brought forward.

The litigation in which these assertions were put forward was a suit by Mrs. Ensign to recover on the insurance policies. She testified she had not seen her husband since he left home with the truck and she said she believed it was his body that was found in the cottage ruins.

The trial in the Circuit Court of Columbia County was most bitterly contested. The line of questioning pursued by lawyers showed that the insurance company investigators had delved into every circumstance attending Ensign's visit to the camp and the subsequent search of the ruins for his body.

It was shown that on the day he left home Ensign ate a hearty breakfast of sausage and pancakes, bread and butter and coffee. He had luncheon about 11 a. m. and took two sandwiches with him to the camp.

That evening, according to testimony, he bought a quart of milk at the Wentzel home, sat and chatted with the family half an hour and then went to his camp, which he was never seen to leave.

The body was buried soon after it was brought from the camp to Hudson by Ensign's partner, Bates. It was disinterred two weeks later and autopsy was made.

Experts testified for the insurance company that the autopsy showed two things. One was that the man had died of influenza-pneumonia and that apparently no food had entered his stomach in a long time, probably for a period of several days.

This expert testimony was combatted by the testimony of experts for the defendants that the action of the fire and the lapse of time before the exhuming of the body had made the results of an autopsy so uncertain as to be of no value.

All sorts of queer angles were introduced into the testimony. One assertion of the insurance company was that experts who had viewed the body taken from the ruins were convinced that it was that of a man at least 6 feet tall. Ensign's height was about 5 feet 6 inches.

To controvert this testimony the plaintiff's lawyers put on experts who testified that the condition of the body dug from the ruins was such that it would have been impossible for anyone even to approximate the man's height or even to form an idea as to his build and size in life.

Witnesses testified that many times in the fall and winter months Ensign had driven to the camp and always went in his truck when he intended to remain there overnight. They said it was his custom to park the truck near the cottage on these occasions. In view of this testimony the lawyers for the insurance company laid great stress on the fact that the night of the fire Ensign did not, as usual, park his truck alongside the cottage, but put it in the Wentzel barn.

It was brought out at the trial that on the night of the fire Ensign telephoned to Bates from the Wentzel home, but Bates was not permitted to relate what was said in the telephone conversation.

Another bit of testimony was that on the night of the fire Bates instructed a chauffeur to put skid chains on his automobile. This was several hours before a second telephone message from the Wentzel home informed Bates that the Ensign cottage had burned. After receiving this message Bates hurried to the camp in the machine on which the chains had been put.

An odd circumstance of the trial in the Circuit Court was that the jury panel had been exhausted, so that only seven men, instead of the usual 12, remained to try the case. There was an agreement to go to trial before seven jurors. The trial resulted in a verdict in favor of Mrs. Ensign and a judgment in her favor for $36,808.01.

The case was taken to the Appellate division of the court, where the jury finding was sustained by a three-to-two decision. The insurance company carried the case to the Court of Appeals, the highest tribunal in New York.

The effort to settle the controversy as to whether Ensign is dead or alive will recall to many insurance men and lawyers the case of John Alvin Brock, a St. Louis contractor who "died" in March, 1916, in a fire which destroyed the barn on his farm at Cuba, Mo., and who came back to life a year later and confessed that he had pretended to be dead to enable his wife to collect a total of $10,000 insurance from two insurance companies and a lodge.

Brock's exploit was most spectacular. One night Brock and his son burned brush on the farm. Toward midnight they went to bed. An hour later the log barn was in flames. Brock ran into the burning building to carry out harness and farm implements. He was not seen to come out. When the fire was extinguished the ashes yielded up only Brock's watch and his false teeth.

These mementos and a small quantity of ashes from the ruins of the barn were placed in a full-sized burial casket and Brock had a big funeral. The burial was conducted by a fraternal lodge and as the casket was lowered into the grave an official of the order mournfully, yet hopefully, exclaimed: "Farewell, Brother Brock, until we meet again."

This was a prophetic utterance, for they met again a year later. On his return, after his arrest in Woodward, Ok., Brock told some details of his exploit which had not hitherto been known to the public.

When he rushed into the barn through its front door he did not devote himself to saving harness and implements, but he quickly skinned off his vest, with the watch in its pocket, and threw it on the ground. To add realism to the subsequent discovery he put his false teeth near the vest. Then he ran out the rear door of the barn and under a smoke screen he made his way to the house and hid in the attic. He made it known that while mourners were sitting beside his casket in the parlor he came out of his hiding place long enough to assure his wife that he was still alive and to give some needed directions for his funeral.

An insurance company which had paid a claim of $2500 to Mrs. Brock became suspicious when it learned that she had deposited the money but had drawn against it a check for $2000, which she mailed to "John Alvin" at Pueblo, Colo.

"Alvin," who had bought a farm near Pueblo, was watched. He announced that he was to be married, and a short time later he was joined by Mrs. Brock, and although they already were man and wife they were again married in Colorado. The trail was hot and soon after Brock moved to Oklahoma he was arrested. He and Mrs. Brock were indicted, but the charges against the wife were dropped. Brock pleaded guilty to obtaining money by fraud and was sentenced to serve two years in the penitentiary. He was paroled and never served any part of the sentence.

The Taylor Case—Is It the "Impossible" Perfect Crime?

"Technique" used in murdering the motion picture director in Hollywood apparently modeled on that of the Joseph B. Elwell assassination in New York—Detectives recall a case in St. Louis when real slayer of Thomas Reynolds was acquitted by a jury but was driven by remorse to confession and suicide :: ::

IS THERE such a thing as a perfect crime?

Have the criminologists, from Lombroso down to the present time, been working on a false and untenable theory in taking it for granted that the perpetrator of a felony, especially a murder, always leaves the trail to his detection open by making some mistake which establishes his guilt?

Those great fictional detectives, Lecoq, with his magnifying glass and plaster casts of footprints; Sherlock Holmes, with his fine deductions from muddy shoe heels and cigar ashes, and Craig Kennedy, with his ingenious mechanical crime detectors, would never admit the possibility of a perfect crime—of a felony so planned and executed that the keenest detective mind could not solve it.

This time-honored tradition that something done or omitted before, during or after the commission of a crime is certain to point the way to its solution has been rudely shaken by the recent murders of Joseph B. Elwell in New York and William D. Taylor in Los Angeles.

Detectives, professional and amateur, at opposite edges of the continent, up to the time when this is written, have failed to find the traditional flaw, the fatal defect in the fabric of crime in either of these cases.

The murders, strangely similar in many respects, seemed at first to be of a type that offered promise of easy solution by the process of elimination, one of the most elemental expedients known to detectives.

In the profession of running down criminals it is an axiom that the chance of finding the guilty person through elimination increases in proportion to the number of suspects to be eliminated.

When a murder has been committed, with no eyewitness, and suspicion falls on only one person, corroboration can come only through confession and circumstantial evidence. Where there are many suspects the examination of any one of them may develop facts which will bring the culprit to justice. Your true detective is never appalled by a large number of suspects. He revels in "round-ups." The zest of the game is in eliminating one suspect after another until the stern, inflexible finger of condemnation points to one of the many.

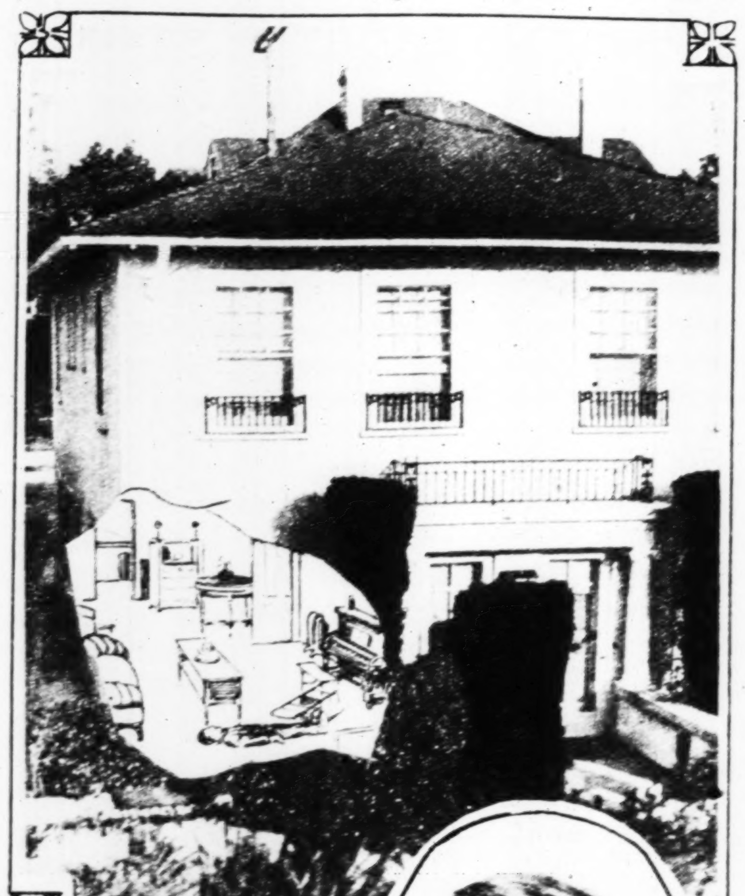
Ideal opportunities to test the elimination process presented themselves in the Elwell and Taylor cases.

These men, though they lived alone, except for household servants, were not hermits. Both were of middle age. Elwell, turfman, whist expert, lover of the bright lights of Broadway, lived in a luxurious apartment on Riverside Drive, New York. Many women visited him there.

Taylor, moving picture director for a big producing company, had a bungalow in the Hollywood suburb of Los Angeles. His position as shaper of the destinies of moving picture actresses was hardly less potent than Elwell's wealth in attracting feminine interest. Avarice and ambition are twin sisters.

Both men were found dead of pistol wounds. Elwell sitting in a chair in the reception room of his apartment in the early morning of June 11, 1920, and Taylor, sitting in a chair at a desk in the living room of his bungalow the morning of Feb. 2 last. No weapon was found in either case. In Elwell's room the only clews picked up were a .45-caliber automatic pistol shell and the stub of a cigarette of a brand different from those Elwell habitually smoked.

A handkerchief bearing the initials M. M. M. was found in the room where Taylor died. It was claimed by Mary Miles Minter, moving picture actress, with an explanation which convinced detectives it had no bearing on the crime.



Home in Hollywood, Cal., where Taylor was murdered, with diagram showing rooms where crime was committed. To right, a portrait of William D. Taylor.

Mabel Normand, another moving picture actress, had been a visitor at Taylor's bungalow the night before Taylor was found dead. He had escorted her to her automobile about 7:30 p. m., half an hour after his negro servant had left the bungalow to remain away all night. What happened in the bungalow after Miss Normand's departure is the mystery which the police have been trying to solve. One theory is that the slayer slipped in at the door while Taylor was going to the automobile with Mabel Normand.

In each case the life and career of the murdered man was made the subject of the most searching scrutiny. In its ramifications the Elwell investigation extended all over the country, into every circle of society and for years back into the dead man's past. It included the questioning of his divorced wife, his former partner in horse racing and more than 50 women in his circle of New York acquaintances. Every real and suspected enmity was probed, with no definite result.

Similar procedure was followed in the Taylor investigation. Many movie actresses and studio employes were questioned. Taylor's life was subjected to no less searching scrutiny than Elwell's and suspect after suspect was eliminated without establishing a motive for the murder.

In each case it was found that the ground may have been laid for a crime prompted by jealousy or revenge, but it was impossible to obtain sufficient evidence on which to base an accusation.

In the Elwell inquiry there was a hint that connection with a gigantic bootlegging ring may have led Elwell to his death at the hand of someone prompted by revenge or fear of exposure, but of this there was no definite proof.

Similarly in the Taylor case one of the leads followed seemed to point to the connection of a "dope ring" with the crime. This was one of several "movie scandal" stories put in circulation after the murder.

Detectives of the St. Louis Police Department who have closely watched developments in the investigation of the Elwell and Taylor murders are recalling the murder of Thomas Reynolds here March 17, 1896, which, they say, came as near being a "perfect crime" as any which ever came under their observation. A study of this crime suggests the possibility that in both the Elwell and Taylor cases the murderer has never been beyond arm's reach of the detectives, but through sheer nerve and confidence in the perfection of the planning and execution of the crime has passed unscathed in the ordeal of being questioned as a suspect.

The slayer of Thomas Reynolds went unwhipped of justice, so far as the courts were concerned, but retribution came swiftly, unerringly and in tragic form, as the sequel will show.

Among the guests at the Cleveland House, a downtown hotel which has since passed out of existence, were Reynolds and Charles Meyers. Their rooms, rented by the week, were on the same floor.

In those days the St. Patrick's Day parade was an annual event. It passed on Fourth street, a block from the hotel. The festive spirit was in the air. Everybody in the hotel, including the clerk and the other employes, ran up to Fourth street when band music proclaimed the approach of the parade. Everybody except Reynolds, who was slightly ill and remained in his room, though at the time he was not missed from the hotel contingent which watched the parade. In fact, so fallible is human testimony, several of the hotel guests afterwards said they saw Reynolds in the crowd, watching the parade at the very time when in truth he was being murdered in his room.

Charles Meyers was among those who watched the parade. He was there when the head of the procession passed. He talked with fellow guests. He was there when the last line of the parade passed and he walked back to the hotel with the other guests.

That night it was noted that Reynolds was not in his room, but this was not regarded as significant. He paid in advance. He had little or no baggage, and it was thought he had decided to "move."

A week later a janitor found Reynold's body under a pile of ashes in the basement of the hotel. He had been strangled with a piece of rope, which was tied tightly around his neck.

All the guests and employes at the hotel were "rounded up" and taken to police headquarters. Among them was Meyers. John Keeley, then Assistant Chief of Detectives, now a Detective Sergeant, questioned the guests and directed the investigation. The piece of rope around the dead man's neck was the only definite clew and every effort was made to establish its ownership.

A grocer whose store was near the hotel read newspaper accounts of the murder and recalled that about the middle of March he had sold a piece of rope to a man who said he was a guest at the Cleveland House. This transaction was fixed in his mind, because he did not keep rope in stock. The piece of rope which he sold to the hotel guest was one which he

WHERE GREAT FLOCKS OF WILD DUCKS ARE GUESTS OF AN AMERICAN CITY

By municipal ordinance, Oakland, Cal., has established a bird refuge comprising 30 acres of water and adjoining lawn, where food is provided daily for wild fowl—During last fall and winter it is estimated that 100,000 birds were on the lake, situated in heart of fashionable residence district :: :: ::

By ROBERT H. MOULTON

In the finest residence district of Oakland, myriads of ducks settle on the lawns to eat food which has been prepared and left for them by bird lovers. A scene familiar in the vicinity of the sanctuary is pictured here.

VENICE is famous for its pigeons, but where in the world is there a town with a quarter of a million inhabitants where wild ducks make a sanctuary of a beautiful lake lying within the corporate limits of the city and where each year a festival is held in honor of these winged visitors? The answer is, Oakland, Cal.

Several years ago Oakland set aside a part of Lake Merritt, in one of the most fashionable residence districts of the city, as a bird refuge. Wild fowl had been in the habit of dropping into this lake, beginning early in the fall, on their migration from the wilds of Canada to Southern climes. Some of the birds found the situation so much to their liking that they remained there the whole winter through. They were not molested, since the lake was in a park, where no shooting was allowed.

At first, only a few hundred birds stopped over at the lake, but their numbers increased each year and when, three years ago, the municipal government of Oakland decided that it would be a good idea to encourage more birds to come and accordingly fenced off a part of the lake for them, the flocks grew as if by magic. Last fall and early this winter saw probably 100,000 on the lake. There they found food provided for them, and some 30 acres fenced from the remainder of the lake by booms, so that no boat, man or dog could reach their nesting place.

Just back of this preserve they found a long sweep of sloping lawn, on which lay corn, wheat, barley and crumbled loaves of bread, a fresh supply each morning, spread there by the city government of Oakland, so that the myriads of feathered guests need not venture outside the protected area of Lakeside Park in search of food.

For years ducks in large numbers have been coming to Lake Merritt, but since Oakland's government began the systematic feeding and encouragement of the birds, their numbers have grown so greatly that the budget for grain and other food had to be vastly increased. An entire day devoted to a wild duck festival, as inaugurated two years ago, has now become an annual event. A pageant of decorated boats on the lake, and a parade of decorated automobiles on the drive surrounding this bit of salt water, opened the festival.

In the afternoon hundreds of children from the Oakland public schools, all in costume, danced folk and outdoor dances on the lawn bordering the lake. So tame are the ducks that they do not even attempt to get out of the way of the children as they dance, and when they do have to, they walk and fly among the youngsters and over their heads like great clouds of huge butterflies, as if they knowingly were taking part in the festival.

Yet 100 yards outside the park not a duck is to be seen, nor could they be approached even if they were seen. They come flying in at great heights, and drop suddenly to the lake, as if aware that there they will find safety and food, even in the midst of human beings.

An ordinance of the City of Oakland provides in perpetuity for the protection and feeding of the ducks. Dogs and cats and every variety of firearms are barred from the park, from the time the ducks begin coming in until they have departed in the spring. An annually increasing number of ducks remain every summer to nest and rear their young in reed-grown corners of the lake, where they are rigidly protected and fed all the year round. The result is that May and June sees many families of ducks on this lake, in the midst of the best residential section of Oakland.

The young of these city-bred birds, urged by nature to return to their birthplace for their own nesting the year following their birth, naturally increase the number of resident ducks on Lake Merritt, until in time there will be a large flock of permanent birds in the city.

The first wild ducks to arrive in the autumn are pintails, which begin to settle down on the lake by the last week in August, and by the first of September are present in thousands. The majority of these come from the Klamath Lake reservation, near the border line of California and Oregon. The pintails are the most clannish of ducks, flocking together in large "rafts" on the lake, feeding together in flocks and parading up and down the lawns in regiments. They are almost as fearless as the mallards—said to be the ancestor of the domestic duck—and soon lose all fear of man.

The second autumn flight of ducks is more cosmopolitan and includes more pintails, widgeons, teals, shovelers and mallards. This migratory horde comes about the middle of October, and from much farther north than the Klamath reservation, the movement having its origin in that part of Alaska known as "the flats," consisting of about 200 square miles of marshlands in the vicinity of Circle City and Rampart. As the feeding and nesting grounds become frozen, the ducks start southward, and the time of their arrival, of course, depends to some extent on the weather conditions on "the flats." This flight is much larger than the first, and brings the bulk of the birds to Lake Merritt.

There is, however, a third and last flight, which comes from even farther north, starting in the Yukon delta and the hidden pools, lakes and marshes of Saskatchewan. In this flight come myriads of shore birds, a few of which visit Lake Merritt, but the most of which hunt the mud flats farther south, along the coast of California, Lower California, Mexico and Central and South America.

Travelers in this flight begin to arrive shortly after Oct. 15, and thousands of them go to their favorite feeding grounds in the vast marshes between San Francisco and Sacramento. This flight ends the arrivals, and the ducks remain on Lake Merritt until well in February, seeming to know by some physical barometer of their own, just when the ice is going out in the Yukon, so that they are safe in starting northward.

Romance and Tragedy in a Life Without Toil

Henry B. Graham, child of wealth, impounded his inheritance to pay his debts—Made a new fortune without effort through wartime dividends on Graham Paper Co. stock—Married four times—Jilted one woman to wed her sister—Testified in court that he took 100 drinks a day—Died at the hands of a negro servant—Fourth wife killed herself before he was buried :: ::

Henry B. Graham in a characteristic pose.

WHEN Henry B. Graham went to his grave, sent there by the hand of his negro chauffeur and accompanied on his last journey by his fourth wife, who killed herself while he was awaiting burial, he left behind him in the memories of many St. Louisans the vivid impression of a life in which gaiety and tragedy were strangely mixed. His was an odd personality, which seemed to defy many of the rules of a well-ordered life. Yet four women there were who were willing to link their lives with his, and even the Goddess Fortune smiled on him at the very period of his life when, according to his own admission in court testimony, he was doing least to help himself.

Henry B. Graham, son of one of the founders of the Graham Paper Co., was a child of wealth and luxury. He had the rare opportunity of living a workless life. He went his own way unhampered by the necessity of shaping his existence to any whim but his own. Indulgent parents gave him all the so-called "advantages." But to what end?

The beautiful home near Clayton, where Graham was shot and killed in a sordid quarrel with a servant, has passed into other hands and "Finis" has been written for Graham and for Georgine Shore Graham, who became his fourth wife after he had jilted her sister. They lie side by side in Bellefontaine Cemetery, in costly bronze caskets which they themselves had selected.

Beautiful home near Clayton, where Graham was killed by his negro chauffeur and where his fourth wife shot and killed herself two days later.

Georgine Shore Graham, the fourth wife, who went to the grave with Graham.

Graham died at the age of 46. He was married at 22. His first wife died. She has no part in the strange train of events that brought Graham into public notice. Children of the first marriage are Marjorie, 19, and Mrs. Dorothy Fields, 21, of Coronado, Colo. There is a son, Henry B. Graham III, by the second marriage.

Graham's second wife was Zula Beatrice Rooker of Kansas City. They were married March 10, 1908. This Mrs. Graham obtained a divorce in May, 1912, alleging indignities. A month later Graham married Alice Bowerman while on a vacation trip in the West. With his faculty for doing spectacular things, he surprised his friends by bringing with him from the West his bride and the body of William F. Bagnell, a friend who had been killed in an automobile accident in Colorado. Alleging indignities, Graham obtained a divorce from his third wife June 3, 1916.

A St. Louis lawyer did a clever piece of detective work in connection with the second Mrs. Graham's divorce suit. Mrs. Graham had made it known that she intended to name "another woman" in her divorce petition. One morning she telephoned to the attorney that her husband had left home in his automobile and that she had reason to believe he intended to meet someone who was coming in from Detroit on a Wabash train. The lawyer followed Graham to Union Station, but there lost track of him. The train was late and he noticed that a woman who was waiting for the train was asking frequent questions about it at the information window. He followed her to the window several times and also asked questions about the train and finally got into conversation with her. She confided to him that she had gone to the station to meet Graham, as she and Graham wanted to meet a mutual friend who was coming from Detroit. The information unwittingly given to the lawyer by this woman as to her acquaintance and friendship with Graham greatly aided Mrs. Graham in obtaining her divorce without opposition on Graham's part.

This divorce was followed by one of the strangest episodes in a strange career, in which, within a period of one month and five days Graham wooed and won a woman, broke his compact with her and married her younger sister. He paid court to Mrs. Vera Elizabeth Snowden, wife of Edward J. Snowden, and it was agreed that Mrs. Snowden should obtain a divorce so as to be free to marry Graham. She kept her part of the compact, but July 9, 1916, she received a message telling her that her sister, Georgine Shore, was Graham's bride. Graham had met the younger sister while courting Mrs. Snowden. He and Georgine eloped to Algonac, Mich., and were married there.

The news of this marriage was a shock to Mrs. Snowden, who, under the terms of her divorce decree, had resumed her maiden name, Vera Shore. She filed a breach of promise suit against Graham, asking $100,000 damages, but later there was a compromise by which she accepted $4000 cash. That the jilting did not cause a permanent estrangement between Mrs. Snowden and her sister is shown by the fact that afterwards Vera Shore for a considerable period lived at the Graham home and for several seasons she acted as its caretaker when Graham and her sister were staying at their summer home in Michigan or spending the winter at Palm Beach, Fla. While thus playing the role of a stay-at-home, Vera Shore had opportunity to recall another queer twist in Graham's affairs in which she played a part. This was the impounding of his inheritance for the benefit of his creditors, a device in which she had aided him in his effort to husband the fortune of about $600,000 left to him by his father, the late H. B. Graham. A considerable part of this inheritance was in the form of common stock of the Graham Paper Co. Two trustees were appointed to take charge of the inheritance and there was an agreement that until all of Graham's debts should be paid he was to receive only $500 a month of the income.

There was another touch of the spectacular when Graham, after his marriage to Georgine Shore, made a second trust agreement, with other trustees, and filed suit to have the first agreement set aside, on the ground that he was drunk when he signed it.

The trying of this case brought out testimony as to Graham's astounding capacity for strong drink, he himself being the principal witness on that point.

He testified that for months before and after the signing of the first trust agreement it was his custom to take 100 drinks a day. He said he spent $450 a month for drinks in his home, his favorite thirst quenchers being whisky, gin and rum.

"I took 15 drinks before breakfast—and then I didn't eat breakfast," he said. "I smoked cigarettes all the time, and took a drink after each cigarette."

Oddly enough, while Graham was trying to have the original trust agreement set aside the trusteeship was piling up money for him at an astounding rate. It was brought out that war conditions had carried the Graham Paper Co. to the very crest of a prosperity wave and that dividends as high as 200 per cent had been paid on the common stock. The trustees were able to show that they had nursed the war baby well and had been able to pay debts of Graham amounting to about $75,000 and put $5000 a month to his credit. This was a great surprise, even to Graham, who had been taking only the stipulated allowance of $500 a month. The first trusteeship was sustained by the Circuit Court and the State Supreme Court and remained in effect until Graham's death.

Vera Shore testified that she collaborated with Graham in the preparations for the trusteeship and that she was given to understand that it would be a means of preventing the inheritance from being dissipated and thus guarding her dower right as Graham's wife, which she was fated never to be.

In seeking to establish the second trust agreement Graham said he was trying to safeguard the dower rights of his wife, Georgine, who had supplanted Vera in his affections.

But time heals many wounds and later no only did Vera make the Graham home her abiding place, but so did her father, George M. Shore, who was in the house on that fateful morning of Nov. 21 last, when the chauffeur's bullet killed Graham. The lasting nature of the reconciliation is shown by

ATOMIC ENERGY AT LA IS

Great English physicist successfully performs experiment which liberates most powerful force ever observed by man—Amoant contained in one-seventh of an ounce of matter would drive a ship across the Atlantic—Fascinating narrative of the explorations carried on inside the atom, where weights and distances are too minute to be comprehended -o- -o- -o- -o-

THE crash of a 16-inch shell on armor plate is like a floating feather striking the ground, compared to a force which science has recently isolated and measured. This new mass energy, according to the highest authority, is 600 million times greater than that of the swiftest rifle bullet. The amount of it contained in a handful of sawdust would wipe St. Louis from the face of the earth, and the quantity in a ton probably would destroy the earth itself.

It is atomic energy, which, until recently, has been merely a name for something that might exist. It has been to physics something of what the "elixir of life" has been to medicine—a goal always to be striven for, but not likely to be attained. In the first place, there was doubt that it existed at all; and there was doubt, in the second place, that if it did exist it could be released.

Two things have happened: Its existence has been demonstrated, and it has been released. True, these things were accomplished only by expending far more energy than was extracted in return. Moreover, there is, as yet, no method for controlling this energy, and little prospect of putting it to practical use. But these obstacles are no more formidable, perhaps, than were the ones which have been surmounted. A start has been made, and that is usually the hardest step. The man who made it is Sir Ernest Rutherford of Cambridge University, England, acknowledged as the foremost living authority on the atomic and electronic structure of matter.

A mere by-product of his feat was the added feat of transmuting elements, the ancient dream of the alchemists. To be sure, no lead has yet been changed to gold, but nitrogen, sodium, aluminum, boron, fluorine and phosphorous have been changed to hydrogen—and something else. The nature of the second product has not been ascertained.

Before going further into the narrative of the astounding achievement, it is imperative briefly to describe the nature of the atom and its constituents, else the story might not be understood. An idea of recent progress in physical research is suggested by the statement that the physics textbooks which were studied at school a dozen years ago are now quite out of date, and those persons who have not explored the subject since then would be amazed to know how much more has been found out. Hypotheses which were cautiously advanced 10 years ago as "mere theories, lacking substantiation," are now accepted as fundamental principles of the science, and speculation has gone on to fields not even thought of then.

Matter, it has long been known, consists of minute particles called molecules. These, in turn, are composed of atoms, and up to a few years ago it was believed that, in the atom, science had finally reached the smallest unit of matter. It was predicted that man could go no further. An interesting commentary on this belief is the fact that a book has recently been published entitled "Within the Atom," and devoted entirely to a discussion of the atom's constituents. These, we learn, are electrons.

Some people say that the electron is the last word. But physicists are already speculating on the theory that the electron may be divisible. They remember what was said about the atom. But, so far as the evidence is concerned, we must stop with the electron; it is the smallest unit of matter that we know to exist.

How small is it? It is hard to give an answer in comprehensible terms. Here is an analogy by Prof. Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics at Washington University: "A positive electron is to a speck of dust as a drop of water is to the earth."

Various molecules are composed of various numbers of atoms. That is where chemistry gets its formulas. Thus, water is H2O, which is to say, a molecule of water consists of two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen. It recalls the old doggerel:

Johnny was a chemist,
But Johnny is no more,
For what he thought was H2O
Was H2SO4.

The latter being sulphuric acid, a molecule of which contains two atoms hydrogen, one atom sulphur and four atoms oxygen. The starch molecule, one of the largest, contains 5000 atoms and is just beyond the range of microscopic vision. It is not difficult to break molecules up into the elemental atoms which compose them, but breaking up the atoms is a different undertaking.

The atom has been likened, very aptly, to our solar system. It has a central nucleus, corresponding to our sun, around which are stationed planetary bodies. Incredible as it may seem, the spaces between these bodies are so great, compared to the size of the bodies themselves, that an authority has described the atom as "mostly hole." Just as an asteroid can pass through our solar system without touching anything, so can infinitesimal particles pass through an atom without touching. In brief, the atom is a very loosely constructed system, which brings us to the surprising fact that, as all matter is made up of atoms, there is considerably more space than solid matter, even in the densest materials.

It may be stated at once that the nucleus of the atom is highly compact. It is composed of positive and negative electrons, two of the former for one each of the latter, because it takes one negative electron to bind two positives together. The outer, or planetary, bodies are negative electrons. The diameter of the nucleus is about one-two-thousandth of the diameter of the whole atom. While a negative electron is larger than a positive electron, the latter weighs 1800 times as much.

In a normal atom the total number of positive electrons equals the total number of negatives, which explains the structure of the atom. If the nucleus, for instance, contains eight positive electrons and four negatives (the relation always being 2 to 1), the other four negative electrons will be found stationed outside the nucleus as planetary bodies.

Hereafter, for convenience, we shall follow the professional custom of referring to positive electrons as "protons," and to the negative electrons simply as "electrons."

Observing the fact that these remarkable structures appeared practically indestructible, scientists concluded that they must be held together by tremendous forces, probably inherent in the nuclei. For it was found that, while an electron could easily be removed from the outer edge of the ring, and occasionally from further in, it seemed impossible to disrupt the nucleus, or, for that matter, even to penetrate to it. Moreover, when an electron was dislodged from the atom, it was observed that another was soon picked up to replace it, so that the atom as a whole remained unchanged.

This led to some interesting conclusions. First, the name, "atomic energy," was given to the supposed force which held the structures together, and it was believed that if some means could be found of disrupting the tight little nucleus, a huge amount of force would be liberated. Second, it was observed that the number of electrons in an atom apparently determined the identity of the element as a whole. For example, the simplest known atom is that of hydrogen, which contains merely one proton and one electron, the proton comprising the nucleus, with the electron as a planetary body. It is suggested that the two probably are whirling about each other much like a whirling dumbbell with the handle gone. The diameter of the gen atom has been calculated at approximat fiftieth of a millionth of a centimeter—which 100,000 times as great as the diameter of the themselves.

Other atoms are far more complex. One of t plest, the helium atom, has a nucleus and tw trons; the sodium atom has a nucleus and 11 electrons, and the atom of chlorine has 17. elements the numbers run still higher, and th tures are so complex that much remains to be about them. The largest known atomic numbe found in uranium.

One thing was made practically certain, it is the number and arrangement of elect protons in an atom which determines the of the element. To cite: The helium atom lated, consists of a nucleus and two exter trons, while a hydrogen atom consists of one a nucleus, and one electron. It is plain, theref if the helium atom can be "whittled down" to the thing which stumped the researchers was oblem of finding a force with which they could up the atomic nuclei. In casting about for such e, the radioactive elements were studied. These ments with high atomic numbers, and the best is radium. There are a few others. An atom adioactive element is continually shooting off proand electrons, at enormous speed and force. Some-electrons are ejected singly, and sometimes they out in company with protons. Groups such as latter are called alpha particles, while electrons ed singly are termed beta particles.

m came off with a speed of about 10,000 miles a
d. Here, then, was a possible missile with which bombard the nuclei of other atoms, and perhaps them up! The alpha particle from radium (and ium) was, by all odds, the most tremendous energy was what he reported: That he had been success-breaking up the atomic nuclei of six elements, riving protons out of them. Furthermore—and was the climax—the protons thus dislodged came with a force about one and one-half times greater the force used to expel them! It was nothing less a display of the fabled atomic energy! At one sider what this meant. The alpha particle struck ucleus while traveling at the rate of 10,000 miles ond, and with a momentum, in proportion to its t, about 400,000,000 times greater than that of the t rifle bullet. But the proton which it knocked came off with an energy approximately 50 per cent er than that of the alpha particle; that is to say, it came off with a mass energy 600,000,000 times greater than that of the swiftest rifle bullet!

It must be borne in mind, of course, that the method used in releasing the energy was highly impractical. First, the medium used in releasing it was itself a rare and powerful energy; and, second, by far the greater part of the medium was wasted. This was explained to the writer by Prof. Compton, himself a noted researcher who for a year was associated with Sir Ernest in similar work.

"If it were possible to shoot straight there would not be such a waste of energy," he said. "But the only way the experiment can be made is to take a large number of atoms, and fire a large number of alpha particles through them. The targets—that is, the atomic nuclei—are so small that a very small proportion of the particles make direct hits. Out of approximately a billion alpha particles, only one would hit the nucleus of an atom squarely. In his experiments, Sir Ernest fired off about 25,000,000,000 alpha particles, and got only 25,000 hits—and this notwithstanding the fact that he was shooting into a group of about a billion-billion atoms! You see, as a gunnery record, it isn't very inspiring."

He illustrated the difficulty of hitting the nucleus squarely by pointing out that the majority of the alpha particles pass through the atom much as a handful of shot would pass through a chicken-wire fence, and that hitting the nucleus is pretty much like trying to make one of the shot hit a certain joint in the wire. If you throw enough shot, you will finally hit the joint, and Sir Ernest, by firing 25,000,000,000 alpha particles, managed to hit about 25,000 atomic nuclei.

How, it may be asked, did he know how many hits he made? This was comparatively easy. When an alpha particle hits a nucleus, a flash results. By dividing the bombarded area into equal sectors, then counting the number of flashes in one of them and multiplying the count by the total number of sectors, he arrived with approximate accuracy at the total number of hits.

We have an interesting example of these flashes in our luminous watch dials. Although the numerals appear to emit a steady glow, what we actually see is a succession of flashes, so numerous and rapid that the eye does not distinguish them singly, any more than it distinguishes a motion picture film as a succession of still photographs. The numerals are made of a mixture of zinc sulphide and a radioactive element, and the flashes are produced by the alpha particles from the radioactive element striking the atomic nuclei of the sulphide. In making his experiments, Sir Ernest simply used a solution in which the flashes did not occur so frequently, and hence could be counted.

Not all nuclei are disrupted when struck by alpha particles. In fact, out of about 80 the only ones which Sir Ernest succeeded in disrupting were those of the six elements previously mentioned. He did break up the atomic nuclei of nitrogen, aluminum, flourin, boron, sodium and phosphorous. When he succeeded in driving protons out of these nuclei, two things happened: First, as told, energy was released. But that was not all. Remember that the identity of an element is partly determined by the number of electrons and protons in its atoms. Therefore, it is obvious that, if it lost some of these, its identity would change. In other words, if the atomic number of nitrogen is 7, and that number is reduced by bombardment to 3, then the atom is no longer nitrogen, but (again assuming the proper spacing) is the element whose atomic number is 3—which happens to be lithium.

Now, this is precisely what happened, only it was not so simple as it sounds. Sir Ernest had no way of determining how many protons he had knocked out, and therefore had no way of knowing what he had left. But this he knew: that each proton which came out brought an electron with it, and that each such pair combined to form an atom of hydrogen—the hydrogen atom being composed, as we have seen, of one proton and one electron. Thus it is clear that Sir Ernest had succeeded in transforming each of six elements into hydrogen and some undetermined element.

In view of all this, the natural question that arises is: How may it be possible to release atomic energy without wasting so much energy? This question was propounded by the writer to Prof. Compton.

"I wish I knew," he smiled. "If I did, the world would just about be my oyster. Just to illustrate how immense this energy is, I may say that a ship which requires 5000 tons of coal for a voyage across the Atlantic could cross on the energy contained in something like one-seventh of an ounce of matter. However, I might guess at a possible answer to your question.

RADIO EXPERTS OF GOVERNMENT TELL HOW TO BUILD RECEIVING SETS AT SMALL COST

Outlay on these home-made stations can be kept as low as $6, or more efficient apparatus may be constructed for $15, and they will hear messages over area varying from that of large city to 50-mile radius — Detailed instructions and diagrams have been prepared by wireless authorities in the Bureau of Standards, U. S. Department of Commerce, for making and installing equipment which will not be a toy, but practicable station

-o-

RADIO experts in the United States Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, Washington, have just rendered a big service to amateurs and would-be amateurs in wireless work by preparing detailed instructions for the building of home-made radio receiving sets.

The cost of such an apparatus that is here described may be as low as $6, or a more efficient set may be built for about $15, depending somewhat on the amateur's own ingenuity and his willingness to make certain parts rather than to buy them.

These receiving stations for amateurs, the experts promise, will hear the messages sent from medium-power transmitting stations within an area about equal to that of a large city or will hear high-power stations within 50 miles, provided that the sending stations use wave-lengths of between 300 and 250 meters, that is, wave frequencies between [illegible] and 1200 kilocycles per second.

By following these instructions and diagrams carefully the boy, business man, farmer or others interested in wireless can construct an apparatus which will receive the market and weather reports sent out by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture, the music and other entertainments sent broadcast and the dots and dashes of code wireless.

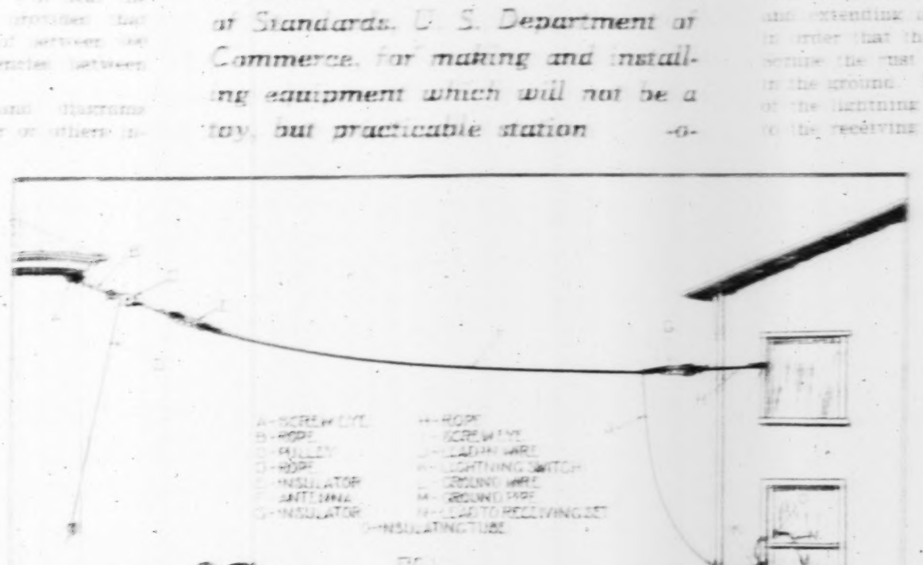
While receiving sets made in this way will pick up radio waves and are fully efficient, considering the simplicity of the instruments, they do not, of course, reproduce the sounds as loudly as the more expensive sets.

There are five essential parts—the antenna, lightning switch, ground connections, receiving sets and phone. The received signals come into the receiving set through the antenna and ground connection. In the receiving set they are converted into an electric current which produces the sound in the "phone." The phone is either one or a pair of telephone receivers worn on the head of the listener.

The purpose of the lightning switch is to protect the receiving set from damage by lightning. It is used to connect the antenna directly to ground when the receiving station is not being used. When the antenna and the connection to the ground are properly made and the lightning switch is closed an antenna acts as a lightning rod and is a protection rather than a source of danger to the building.

The principal part of the station is the "receiving set." In the set described here it is subdivided into two parts, the "tuner" and the "detector," and in more complicated sets still other elements are added.

The antenna is simply a wire suspended between two elevated points. Wherever there are two buildings, or a house and a tree, or two trees with one of them very close to the house, it relieves one of the need of erecting one or both antenna supports. The antenna should not be less than 30 feet above the ground and its length should be about 75 feet. (See Fig. 1.) While this illustration indicates a horizontal antenna, it is not important that it be strictly horizontal. It is, in fact, desirable to have the far end as high as possible. The "lead-in" wire, or drop-wire from the antenna itself should run as directly as possible to the lightning switch.



Details of aerial and lightning switch.

If the position of the adjoining buildings or trees is such that the distance between them is greater than about 85 feet, the antenna can still be held to a 75-foot distance between the insulators by increasing the length of the piece of rope, D, to which the far end of the antenna is attached. The rope, H, tieing the antenna insulator to the house should not be lengthened to overcome this difficulty, because by so doing the antenna "lead-in" or drop-wire, J, would be lengthened. The antenna parts, illustrated and described in detail, are as follows: A and I are screw eyes sufficiently strong to anchor the antenna at the ends. B and H are pieces of rope 3-8 or 1-2 inch in diameter, just long enough to allow the antenna to swing clear of the two supports. D is a piece of 3-8 or 1-2 inch rope sufficiently long to make the distance between E and G about 75 feet. C is a single-block pulley which may be used if readily available.

E and G are two insulators which may be constructed of any dry hard wood of sufficient strength to withstand the strain of the antenna; blocks about 1 1-2x2x10 inches will serve. The holes should be drilled as shown in Figure 1, sufficiently far from the end to give proper strength. If wood is used, the insulators should be boiled in paraffin for about one hour. If porcelain is used as insulators, it should be boiled in paraffin the same as the wood. Regular antenna insulators are advertised on the market, but the two improvised types just mentioned will be satisfactory for an amateur receiving antenna.

F is the antenna, about 75 feet between the insulators E and G. The wire may be No. 14 or No. 16 copper wire, either bare or insulated. The end of the antenna farthest from the receiving set may be secured to the insulator, E, by any satisfactory method, being careful not to kink the wire. Draw the other end of the antenna wire through the other insulator, G, to a point where the two insulators are separated by about 75 feet, twist the insulator, G, so as to form an anchor as shown in Figure 1. The remainder of the antenna wire, J, which now constitutes the "lead-in," or drop-wire, should be just long enough to reach the lightning switch.

K is the lightning switch. For the purpose of a small antenna this may be an ordinary porcelain base, 30 ampere, single-pole, double-throw battery switch. These switches, as ordinarily available, have a porcelain base about [illegible] inches. The "lead-in" wire, J, is attached to this switch at the middle point. The switch blade should always be thrown to the lower clip when the receiving set is not actually being used and to the upper clip when it is desired to receive signals.

L is the ground wire for the lightning switch; it may be a piece of the same size wire as used in the antenna, of sufficient length to reach from the lower clip of the lightning switch, K, to the clamp on the ground rod, M.

M is a piece of iron pipe or rod driven 3 to 6 feet into the ground, preferably where the ground is moist, and extending a sufficient distance above the ground in order that the ground clamp may be fastened to it. Scrape the rust or paint from the pipe before driving in the ground. N is a wire leading from the upper clip of the lightning switch through the porcelain tube, O, to the receiving set binding post marked "antenna."

O is a porcelain tube of sufficient length to reach through the window casing or wall. This tube should be mounted in the casing or wall so that it slopes down toward the outside of the building. This is done to keep the rain from following the tube through the wall to the interior.

P is the receiving set which will now be described in detail. N is the wire leading from the "antenna" binding post of the receiving set through the porcelain tube to the upper clip of the lightning switch. This wire, as well as the wire shown by Q, should be insulated and preferably flexible. A piece of ordinary lamp cord might be untwisted and serve for these two leads.

Q is a piece of flexible wire leading from the receiving set binding post marked "ground" to a water pipe, heating system or some other metallic conductor to ground, except M, Figure 1. If there are no water pipes or radiators in the room in which the receiving set is located, the wire should be run out of doors and connected to a special "ground" below the window, which shall not be the same as the "ground" for the lightning switch.

It is essential that for the best operation of the receiving set this "ground" be of the very best type. If the soil near the house is dry it is necessary to drive one or more pipes or rods sufficiently deep to encounter moist earth and connect the ground wire to the pipes or rods. This distance will ordinarily not exceed 6 feet. Where clay soil is encountered this distance may be reduced to 3 feet, while in sandy soil it may be increased to 10 feet. If some other metallic conductor, such as the casing of a drilled well, is not far away from the window, it will be a satisfactory "ground."

The detector and phone will have to be purchased. The tuner and certain accessories can be made at home. The tuner, R, shown in Figure 3, is a piece of cardboard or other nonmetallic tubing with turns of copper wire wound around it. The cardboard tubing may be an oatmeal box. Its construction is described in detail below.

The crystal detector, S, in Figure 3, may be of very simple design and yet quite satisfactory. The crystal, as it is ordinarily purchased, may be unmounted or mounted in a little block of metal. For mechanical reasons the mounted type may be more satisfactory, but that is of no great consequence. It is very important, however, that a very good tested crystal be used. It is probable also that a galena crystal will be more satisfactory to the beginner. The crystal detector may be made up of a tested crystal, three wood screws, short piece of copper wire, a nail, set-screw type of binding post and wood knob or cork. The tested crystal is held in position on the wood base by three brass wood-screws as shown at 1 in Figure 3. A bare copper wire may be wrapped tightly around the three brass screws for contact. The assembling of the rest of the crystal detector is clearly shown in Figure 3.

For the phone, T, in Figure 3, it is desirable to use a pair of telephone receivers connected by a head band, usually called a double telephone head set. The telephone receivers may be of the standard commercial makes having a resistance of between 2000 and 3000 ohms. The double telephone receivers will cost more than all the other parts of the station combined, but it is desirable to get them, especially if one plans to improve his receiving set later. If one does not care to invest in a set of double telephone receivers a single telephone receiver with a head band may be used, although it gives results somewhat less satisfactory.

The binding posts, switch arms and switch contacts may all be purchased from dealers who handle such goods or they may be quite readily improvised at home. There is nothing peculiar about the pieces of wood on which the equipment is mounted. They may be obtained from a dry packing box and covered with paraffin to keep out moisture.

Following is a detailed description of the method of winding the coil, construction of the wood panels and mounting of the wiring apparatus.

See the tuner, R, Figure 3. Having supplied one's self with a piece of cardboard tubing 4 inches in diameter and about 1-2 pound of No. 24 or No. 26 double cotton-covered copper wire, one is ready to start the winding of the tuner. Punch two holes in the tube about one-half inch from one end as shown at 2 on Figure 3. Weave the wire through these holes in such a way that the end of the wire will be quite firmly anchored, leaving about 12 inches of the wire free for connections. Start with the remainder of the wire to wrap the several turns in a single layer about the tube tightly and closely together. After 10 complete turns have been wound on the tube hold those turns snugly while a tap is being taken off. This tap is made by making a 6-inch loop of the wire and twisting it together at such a place that it will be slightly staggered from the first tap. This method of taking off taps is shown quite clearly at U, Figure 3.

Proceed in this manner until 6 twisted taps have been taken off at every 10 turns. After these first 70 turns have been wound on the tube then take off a 6-inch twisted tap for every succeeding single turn until 10 additional turns have been wound on the tube. After winding the last turn of wire, anchor the end by weaving it through two holes punched in the tube, much as was done at the start, leaving about 12 inches of wire free for connecting. It is to be understood that each of the 18 taps is slightly staggered from the one just above, so that the several taps will not be bunched along one line on the cardboard tube. (See Figure 3.)

It would be advisable, after winding the tuner as just described, to dip the tuner in hot paraffin. This will help to exclude moisture.

Having completed the tuner to this point, set it aside and construct the upright panel shown in Figure 2. This panel may be a piece of wood approximately one-half inch thick. The position of the several holes for the binding post, switch arms and switch contacts may first be laid out and drilled. The "antenna" and "ground" binding posts may be ordinary one-eighth inch brass bolts of sufficient length and supplied with three nuts and two washers. The first nut binds the bolt to the panel, the second nut holds one of the short pieces of stiff wire, while the third nut holds the antenna or ground wire, as the case may be. The switch arm with knob shown at V, Figure 3, may be purchased in the assembled form or it may be constructed from a thin slice cut from a broom handle and a bolt of sufficient length equipped with four nuts and two washers, together with a narrow strip of thin brass somewhat as shown.

The switch contacts, W, Figure 3, may be of the regular type furnished for this purpose or they may be brass bolts, equipped with one nut and one washer each, or they may even be nails driven through the panel with an individual tap fastened under the head or soldered to the projection of the nail through the panel. The switch contacts should be just close enough that the switch arm will not drop between the contacts, but also far enough apart that the switch arm can be set so as to touch only one contact at a time.

The telephone binding post should preferably be of the set-screw type, as shown at X, Figure 3.

Having constructed the several parts just mentioned and mounted them on the wood base, one is ready to connect the several taps to the switch contacts and attach the other necessary wires. Scrape the cotton insulation from the loop ends of the 16 twisted taps as well as from the ends of the two single wire taps coming from the first and last turns. Fasten the bare end of these wires to the proper switch contact as shown by the corresponding numbers in Figure 3. One should be careful not to cut or break any of the looped taps. It would be preferable to fasten the connecting wires to the switch contacts by binding them between the washer and the nut as shown at 3, Figure 3. A wire is run from the back of the binding post marked "ground," Figure 3, to the back of the left-hand switch-arm bolt, Y, thence to underneath the left-hand binding post marked "phones."

A wire is then run from underneath the right-hand binding post marked "phones" to underneath the binding post, 4, Figure 3, which forms a part of the crystal detector. A piece of No. 24 bare copper wire about 2 1-2 inches long, one end of which is twisted tightly around the nail, the nail passing through binding post 4, rests gently by its own weight on the crystal. The bare copper wire which was wrapped tightly around the three brass wood-screws holding the crystal in place is led to and fastened at the rest of the right-hand switch-arm bolt, V, thence to the upper left-hand binding post marked "antenna." As much as possible of this wiring is shown in Figure 3.

After all the parts of this crystal detector radio receiving set have been constructed and assembled, the first essential operation is to adjust the little piece of wire, which rests lightly on the crystal, to a sensitive point. This may be accomplished in several different ways. The use of a miniature buzzer transmitter is very satisfactory. Assuming that the most sensitive point on the crystal has been found, the rest of the operation is to get the radio receiving set in resonance or in tune with the station from which one wishes to hear messages. The tuning of the receiving set is attained by adjusting the inductance of the tuner. That is, one or both of the switch arms are rotated until the proper number of turns of wire of the tuner are made a part of the metallic circuit between the antenna and ground, so that together with the capacity of the antenna the receiving circuit is in resonance with the particular transmitting station.

It will be remembered that there are 10 turns of wire between each of the first 8 switch contacts and only 1 turn of wire between each 2 of the other contacts. The tuning of the receiving set is best accomplished by setting the right-hand switch-arm on contact 1 and rotating the left-hand switch-arm over all its contacts. If the desired signals are not heard, move the right-hand switch-arm to contact 2 and again rotate the left-hand switch-arm throughout its range. Proceed in this manner until the desired signals are heard.

It will be advantageous for the one using this radio receiving equipment to find out the wave frequencies, wave length, used by the several radio transmitting stations in his immediate vicinity.

The following list shows the approximate cost of the parts used in the construction of this radio receiving station. The total cost will depend largely on the kind of apparatus purchased and on the number of parts constructed at home.

For antenna: 100 to 150 feet of copper wire, bare or insulated, No. 14, about 75 cents; 3-8 or 1-2 inch rope, 2 cents per foot; 2 porcelain insulators, 20 cents; 1 pulley, 15 cents; 30-ampere battery switch, 30 cents; 1 porcelain tube, 10 cents. For ground connections: 1 clamp, 15 cents; 1 iron pipe or rod, 25 cents.

For receiving set: One-half pound No. 24 copper wire, double cotton covered, 75 cents; 1 cardboard box, 2 switch knobs and blades complete, $1; 18 switch contacts and nuts, 75 cents; 3 binding posts, set-screw type, 45 cents; 2 binding posts, any type, 30 cents; 1 crystal, tested, 25 cents; 3 wood screws, brass, 3-4 inch long, 3 cents; wood for panels, from packing box; 2 pounds paraffin, 30 cents; lamp cord, 2 to 3 cents per foot; test buzzer, 50 cents; dry battery, 30 cents; telephone receivers, $4 to $8; total, $11 to $15.

If nothing but the antenna wire, lightning switch, porcelain tube, crystal, telephone receiver, bolts and buzzer are purchased, this total can be reduced to about $6.

Atomic Energy Is at Last Released by Man

"It seems to me that the logical way to release the energy economically would be to devise some method under which, when the energy of one atom was released, it might, in turn, release the energy of two more—and so on indefinitely. In that case we could afford to use a comparatively powerful energy to get it started. But there are a lot of difficulties. I shouldn't like to start it unless I knew beforehand how to stop it. You see, one might start with a collision a million times too small to be seen, and end up about a tenth of a second later with the complete disappearance of the laboratory, including the professor who started the fun."

Apparently the problem of disrupting atoms other than the six mentioned must wait upon the discovery of a disrupting force more powerful than the alpha particle. Excepting the atomic energy itself, no more powerful energy than that of the alpha particle has been found. In his paper Sir Ernest said:

"If we had available atoms of 10 times the energy of the alpha particles of radium, we could probably penetrate the nuclear structure of all atoms, and occasionally effect their disintegration. But the general evidence indicates that the atoms are such stable structures, and that the nuclei are held together by such powerful forces, that only the most concentrated source of energy is likely to be effective in an attack upon them."

It must have been obvious to the reader that the radioactivity of such elements as radium and thorium is itself a display of atomic energy, of a kind similar to that which it was used to produce in the atoms of other elements. This is true, and so is its corollary; namely, that this activity results in the transformation of those elements that display it. Indeed, it is a commonly known fact that radium in time loses its "force"—one way of saying that it ceases to be radium. This comes about as has been related—it loses its identity by losing some of the electrons which compose its atoms.

Physicists incline toward the belief that, in earlier periods of its life, this planet had a far larger proportion of radioactive elements than at present. In fact, it is held that many of our elements reached their present state as a result of the disintegration of radioactive substances. This is given signal weight by the fact that the radiation substances head the list in the number of electrons and protons in atoms.

Another interesting theory is that the energy displayed by the sun is a form of atomic energy, probably radioactive. It has been calculated that, if the sun were made of coal which was burning with sufficient intensity to give off the energy which the sun actually does give off, it would burn down 20 feet every hour; that is, its diameter would be reduced 960 feet every 24 hours, a phenomenon that would soon be observable through the telescope. As a matter of fact, no such reduction is occurring, and it is concluded therefore that its energy derives from a source more powerful than that of mere conflagration.

The time when a city will be able to drive all its street cars and furnish all its light and heat on a few ounces of coal a year probably is not very near. Neither is it hopeless. When man can discover and liberate this stupendous force, he may also produce and control it economically.

In the meantime, for those who would like to experiment in their spare moments, this information is freely offered: The atomic number of lead is 82, the atomic number of gold is 79. All that you have to do to change your junk lead into gold is to reduce its atomic number to 79, and be sure that the electrons and protons are properly spaced, bearing in mind that the diameter of a (hydrogen) atom is about one-one-hundredth of a millionth of an inch, and that the diameter of the proton is about one one-hundred trillionth of an inch.

So try that on your microscope!

officials searched for a dossier concerning my husband. No record could be found. After that I was received by the Minister of Justice. He promised an inquiry. This must have been conclusive, for subsequently I received an official letter stating: 'I have the honor to inform you that no judgment of condemnation exists against your husband.'

"On this I was able to obtain my pension and immediate help. But I did not consider it sufficient. I insisted on the rehabilitation of my husband. I was told it was impossible because there was no judgment in existence which could be reversed. Then I demanded the posthumous award of the Legion of Honor, for which I was anxious on account of my boy. Instead I was offered the Croix de Guerre. I refused it."

Since then Madame Herduin has been helped by the League of the Rights of Men, the Socialist newspapers and Maitre Andre Berthnon, lawyer and Deputy, who questioned War Minister Barthou in the Chamber. A libel action was successfully brought against a Paris evening newspaper which had asserted that Herduin had abandoned his post and was a drunkard. A storm of indignation was aroused. Following this, War Minister Barthou wrote to Madame Herduin that as the result of the evidence in the libel suit he had had the affair re-examined. He added: "If this grievous event is to be judged impartially it cannot be separated from the tragic hours when the fate of France was bound up in victory before Verdun, but it can only have been brought about by a mistaken application of the regulations. Your husband, very well mentioned and decorated during the war, was a courageous officer, whose name you and your little son can bear with honor. The law does not permit revision of the case, but the Government, on my proposition, has decided to award you civil reparation."

The civil reparation was the award of 100,000 francs (normally $20,000)!

But she was not to be placated with money and soothing letters. She has demanded that the officer guilty of a "mistaken application of the regulations" be punished. There she has undertaken a formidable task. The military caste in the French Government is stronger now than it has been for generations.

But his widow cries for stern justice—as stern as the injustice meted to her husband. And a frail boy of 9 raises a wan face from his violin and says: "My papa was a brave man, is it not so?"

The Lie That Waked Tom Up

By MARY SINGER

ON SATURDAY night Tom Winters allowed himself to be drawn into a friendly game of poker, and won $30 dollars. Which does not signify that Tom was an habitual card player—quite the contrary. Of all model husbands, Tom stood somewhere in the lead of the procession. Weekly and to the dot he handed over his unopened pay envelope.

Such had been his intention on this epoch-marking Saturday night. But when he presented himself at his own apartment he found his wife gone, while a hurriedly scribbled note on the dining room table conveyed the message that she had been called to her mother.

Thus the deviation of Tom Winters from the path of husbandly virtue and the accumulation of the aforesaid $30.

All the way home Tom Winters felt the burden of those 30 unearned dollars. What should he do with them? He might buy Rose one of those beaded bags her heart was so set on, and say he had saved the money out of his allowance. But, then she might argue that the money could have been spent to better advantage. Rose was like that—always denying herself the little things that she needed. Then again, he might buy an electric vacuum cleaner, or a——

And so pondering, he once more approached his flat and let himself in. It was dark; she was not yet home. Tom flipped out his pay envelope. He had steamed it open to enter the game. For a few seconds he speculatively eyed that manila container of his weekly stipend, and then picked it up, counted a $5 bill from his card earnings, placed it with the four tens, carefully resealed the envelope, and sat down to wait.

A little past midnight Rose came home.

"That you, Tom?"

"Yep."

"Mother's not feeling well. So I stayed"——

Seen in the light of the shaded lamp, she was a rather small slip of a woman, with pale, colorless blonde hair, whose glints of red showed a possibility of beauty with proper care. Her round little face was pale, and wore a worried, harassed look that quite obliterated the charm of a pair of large, decidedly blue eyes. Coming to his chair, she made a perfunctory little peck at his hair, and then added a passionless kiss on his cheek as he tried to draw her near.

Then, sighting the pay envelope on the nearby table, she reached for it and wearily opened it, counting the bills as a matter of course. Twice she counted them, and then, with a fleeting glance at Tom, counted them a third time—holding the additional five off from the rest.

"Why—why, Tom—there's forty-five here."

"I know."

"You got a raise?"

Tom nodded.

"Oh, Tom!"

Whereupon she threw her arms about his neck, kissed him squarely upon the lips, and then sank against him, quite overcome. For four years he had stood still at $40 a week. And now——

"Maybe now, Tom, I can give the washing out?"

"You sure can, Roses."

That pet name came hard to Tom Winters. It was the first time he had called her that in four years. Once, it came to his lips naturally, but that seemed ages ago, when hope was high.

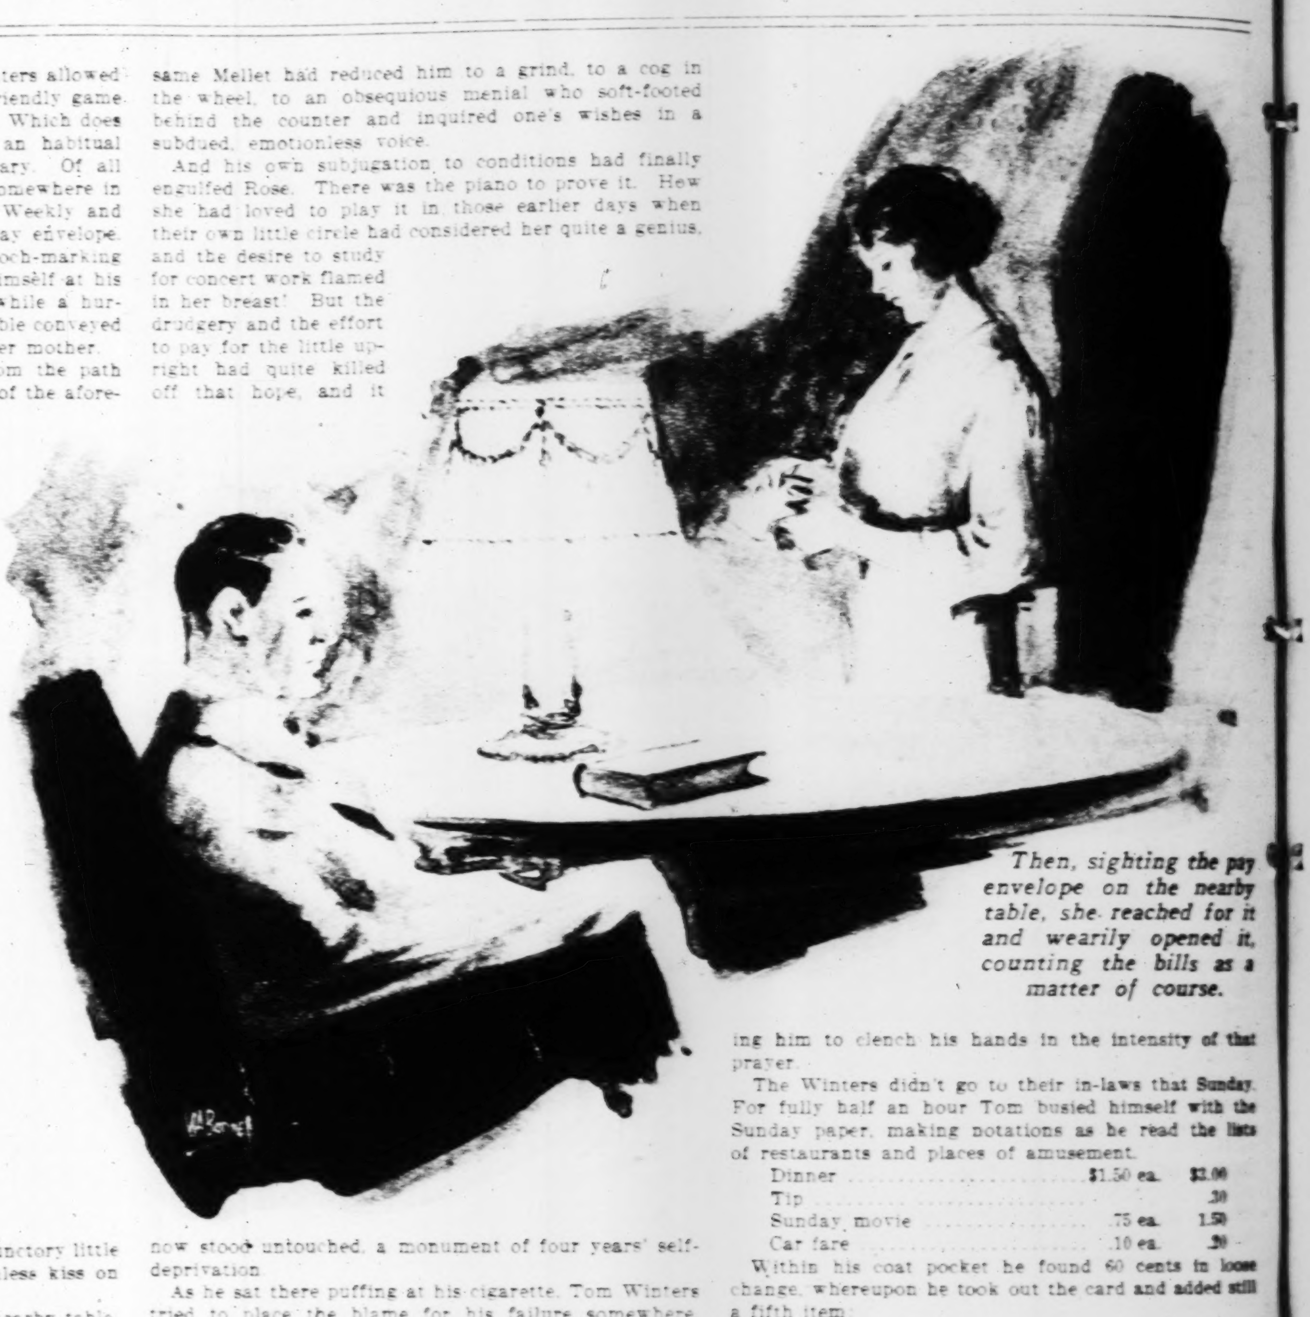
Theirs had been an ardent and romantic courtship, and they had started their marital life with fervor and confidence. People had said: "Tom Winters? Oh, he'll make good in no time! He's got pep and ambition! Some hustler!"

Those were the days when the dream of a house in the suburbs was still fresh enough to be almost within reach. Those were the times when he could still find oceans of pleasure in strolling down the avenue of a Sunday and pointing out the car that he intended to buy very soon. But, strangely, the house had materialized into a Ridgewood flat, to and from which he traveled for two hours each day; and the Sunday outings in the car had become weekly pilgrimages either to his mother or to her mother, followed by an evening spent in a stuffy movie house.

Tom Winters didn't know how it had all come about. Somewhere along those four years he had been robbed of his zeal, of his push, of his desire to get ahead. He couldn't put his finger upon the exact spot, but it was so hard just to keep existing. When one was through making both ends meet there was no room left for additional vim.

And then there had been the transfer to Mellet's store. Very vaguely Tom recognized that change as the turning point for the worse. It had been preceded by a $10 raise. Mellet's store was the most important of the whole chain of haberdashery shops, and only the very finest salesmen were detailed to it. And yet this same Mellet had reduced him to a grind, to a cog in the wheel, to an obsequious menial who soft-footed behind the counter and inquired one's wishes in a subdued, emotionless voice.

And his own subjugation to conditions had finally engulfed Rose. There was the piano to prove it. How she had loved to play it in those earlier days when their own little circle had considered her quite a genius, and the desire to study for concert work flamed in her breast! But the drudgery and the effort to pay for the little upright had quite killed off that hope, and it now stood untouched, a monument of four years' self-deprivation.



Then, sighting the pay envelope on the nearby table, she reached for it and wearily opened it, counting the bills as a matter of course.

As he sat there puffing at his cigarette, Tom Winters tried to place the blame for his failure somewhere. But he couldn't. He had just been dragged under with the tide.

And then Rose pattered back from the kitchen, carrying a silver coffee service that had been a wedding gift. Up to this moment she had never used it. It had been such a bother to polish. Rapidly she spread napkins and placed cold chicken sandwiches upon the table, settling herself to pour coffee into the very fine china cups.

Tom Winters was touched. No—he was utterly shaken.

"Isn't—won't it be a lot of work to clean that afterward, Roses?" he asked.

"Oh, no!" she lied. "Won't take but a moment."

Tom ate, and when he himself had cleared away the remains he came and put his hands under his wife's chin, lifting her eyes to his.

"Play something, dear."

Just for a moment she returned his steady gaze, and then quietly seated herself, while her fingers groped over the keys for melodies she had almost forgotten.

Tom stood and looked down upon her—watching her red, roughened hands search out the notes. As he looked a mist came over his eyes and a lump rose in his throat.

He stooped and quickly drew them to his lips.

"Oh, don't, Tom."

And then she broke down completely, and he was forced to pick her up, sit down in the wide morris chair and comfort her like a hysterical baby. It seemed hours before her sobbing ceased and she breathed normally again. Then she placed both hands upon his cheeks and looked straight into his eyes.

"Maybe now," she ventured, "things will go a lot easier."

"They will! They will!" promised Tom Winters; and though the words were gentle enough, the purpose that was suddenly born behind them was strong and bitterly determined.

And that night, while she slept with the traces of tears on her face, her head snuggled against his arm, Tom Winters lay wide-eyed, staring out into the darkness.

He had told a lie. For five more weeks he could make good that lie. After that—God! It would out and would kill her faith in him if she ever found out!

"God!"

Unuttered, the cry went up from his very soul, causing him to clench his hands in the intensity of that prayer.

The Winters didn't go to their in-laws that Sunday. For fully half an hour Tom busied himself with the Sunday paper, making notations as he read the lists of restaurants and places of amusement.

Dinner	$1.50 ea.	$3.00
Tip		.30
Sunday movie	.75 ea.	1.50
Car fare	.10 ea.	.20

Within his coat pocket he found 60 cents in loose change, whereupon he took out the card and added still a fifth item:

Sodas	.22 ea.	.44
Total		$5.44

Then he went into the kitchen where Rose was beginning to prepare luncheon.

"Put that away, Rose," he ordered, taking the paring knife from her fingers and shoving the pan of potatoes to one side. "We're going to have dinner in the city. Come on, now, set things to rights and let's get out."

It was well toward the end of that festive meal, while the waiter was clearing the table preparatory to serving the desserts, that Tom suddenly sat stiff and erect.

"Rose," he whispered, "there's Burr right over to our side. He's the big boss, you know."

Rose lifted her eyes and artfully turned her head.

"Who's that with him?"

"Wife."

"She—she doesn't look unusual. Just like a nice, motherly woman. Do you think he saw you, Tom?"

"What if he did? As far as this management is concerned, nobody knows that he's the boss and I'm the employe. My $1.50 and his are equally good."

A very sound little speech. A bit confident, too, but it was uttered to cover the panicky feeling that really possessed him.

The desserts came and were in due time disposed of. Tom reached into his pocket and drew forth a pack of cigarettes, lighting one, and settling back in his chair. His first impulse had been to flee as soon as he could, but a dogged persistence to hold his own counseled him otherwise.

Burr and his wife rose. There was no need for them to pass Tom's table, yet Burr deliberately edged through the small spaces and came directly toward him.

"How-do, Mr. Winters!" he greeted.

"How-do, Mr. Burr! Wonderful day, isn't it? My wife—Mr. Burr."

Whereupon Mrs. Burr, who had come up behind, was introduced. A gracious smile passed between the women, the dinner was remarked upon, and they were off.

"Nice sort of man, isn't he?" asked Rose.

"Who? Burr? Oh, yes! He's all right." It was Mellet whom Tom hated. "Strange," he mused to himself, "how big, how unaffected, how democratic, the really big men are, and how pompous their underlings"—Mellet, of course, in his mind—"are."

The movie house which they chose, of all the number, to honor with their presence, featured a play dealing with the very problem upon which their own lives had so nearly been wrecked. All through it Tom sat silently looking ahead. Sometime during the performance Rose's hand crept shyly into his own, but he just covered it and continued to stare ahead. Then there was a comedy by way of lightness and relief, and while Rose laughed as he hadn't heard her laugh in a long time, he barely looked at the screen. He was still thinking.

A young girl—blonde, flowerlike, in hoopskirts and bonnet—came out and sang "On the Bonnie, Bonnie Banks of Loch Lomond." As her voice plaintively and delicately intoned the words, Rose pressed his arm.

"I've—I've got that home, Tom," she whispered.

"Can you sing it?"

"M-m."

"Pretty thing, all right."

"What? The song or the girl?"

"The song and my girl."

"Tom!"

All in all, that day was a day of days. To Tom it brought back all the sweetness, all the softness, all the hushed expectancy that had marked their honeymoon four years before. Even the jolt home in the packed, ill-smelling subway failed to disturb the peaceful spirit that enveloped him. Tired, but inexpressibly happy, they trudged the five long blocks from the station to their fla.

That night Tom Winters lay awake again—but it was not to puzzle over what the future might bring; it was to vow to himself, with every fiber, with every breath, that he would keep that smile on Rose's lips; that he would make it easier for laughter to come and for song to bubble forth.

And so, in a new frame of mind, whistling cheerily, Tom Winters arose on Monday morning and set forth to work.

Yet the instant he passed the threshold of the shop wherein Mellet reigned an undisputed king, a damp, chill blanket tried to fasten down upon him.

"No, you don't!" he defied that spirit of awe and fear which tried to drive away every determined resolution from his mind.

"Good morning, everybody!"

In defiance to that ominous cheerlessness, Tom Winters sang the greeting out with an exaggerated bravado. For one moment the startled clerks were almost shaken from their habitual repression. But the next instant they glanced surreptitiously toward the corner where Mr. Mellet stood glaring upon the reckless intruder.

"Oh, good morning, Mr. Mellet."

And then, because he feared to wait and see whether there would be a reply to that greeting, Tom Winters threw his hat upon a shelf under the counter and broke forth into "The Bonnie, Bonnie, Ba-anks of—Loch Lomond."

A customer entered. With a bound Tom cleared the space between them.

"Yes, sir."

"I want to see a sports shirt. Got anything new?"

"Sports shirt," repeated Tom. "Oh, yes! Just step this way. Here are some"—hauling forth a box with one deft movement—"that are marked specially this week. Five dollars. Regular $9 values. They won't be duplicated, either. Fine, sturdy, washable silk. Stands laundering. Quiet patterns. You'll take three? Yes, sir. Have you seen our new ties? We have a decided reduction on knitted models."

For half an hour Tom Winters kept up an enthusiastic flow of talk. At the end of this time he rapidly added the costs of the different items and sang out:

"Fifty dollars straight, sir. Take it now or have the package sent?"

The morning wore on. Three more large sales were recorded, the mystification of the clerks growing with each one. Then Tom Winters went out to lunch and did a thing he hadn't done in four years.

"That you, Roses?" he asked as the operator switched him on and he heard his wife's soft answer. There was a little gasp, quickly stifled, that told him only too pointedly how he had surprised her. "Happy?"

"Why—yes."

"What you been doing?"

"Oh, cleaning and dusting, and—oh, yes! Tom, I've been practicing that song we heard. Coming home early?"

"Seven to the dot! Good-by. Keep smiling, Roses!"

That afternoon Mellet was called away to a conference with Burr. And a customer came in who asked for a pure linen shirt.

"Linen?" repeated Tom. "But"——

"Linen is what I said. Have you or haven't you got it?"

Tom's mind took a lightning leap to the stock in the back room. Two years before he had himself stored away linens and cambrics.

"We have, sir. Will you wait, please, while I go to our reserve stock?"

Tom brought forth the linens. The styles were plain and conservative and the price tags still bore the old figures.

"H-m," grunted the customer. "That's what I want. I'll take six."

When he left the store, Tom Winters stood and stared at him for the barest fraction of a second. Then he dashed into the inner stockroom and returned laden with boxes. From these he selected a few plain models, placed them in the window and settled down to hand-letter a sign:

VERY SPECIAL OFFER

REAL LINEN SHIRTS

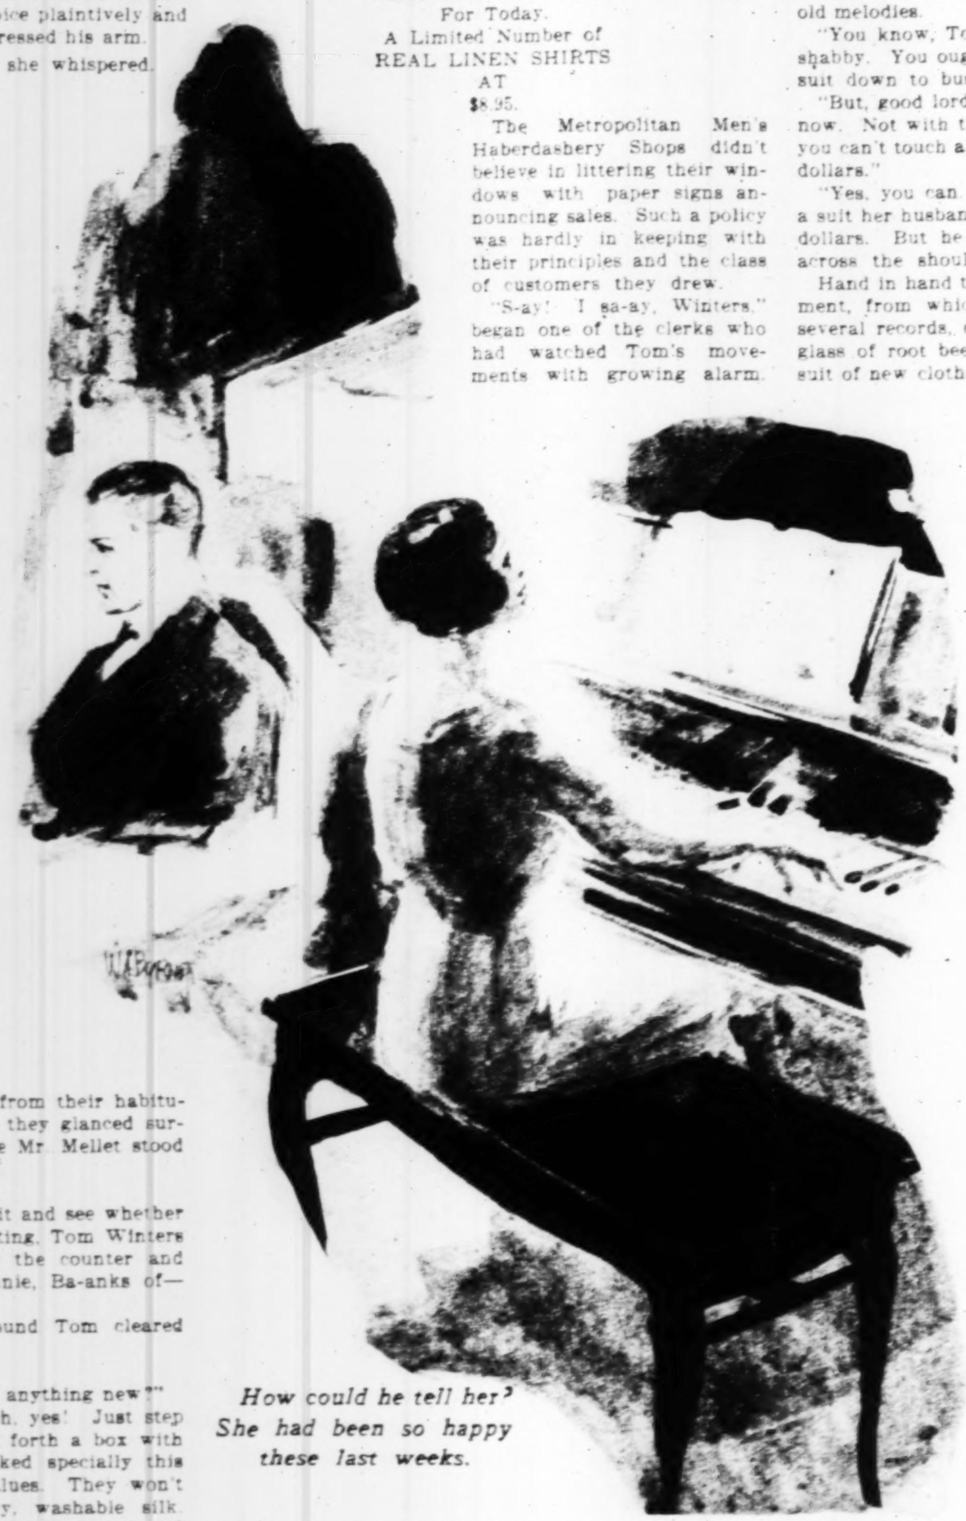
The Metropolitan Men's Haberdashery Shops didn't believe in littering their windows with paper signs announcing sales. Such a policy was hardly in keeping with their principles and the class of customers they drew.

"S-ay! I sa-ay, Winters," began one of the clerks who had watched Tom's movements with growing alarm.



How could he tell her? She had been so happy these last weeks.

"Did Mellet tell you"—— Tom swung around abruptly.

"Mellet," he declared, with undue emphasis, "didn't tell me anything. But"——

He closed his lips grimly. The puzzled salesman looked at him, and a new thought was born in his mind. Certainly Winters had been acting strangely all day. Perhaps old man Burr himself—The impression spread to the others.

At 5:30, when Mellet returned, the shop was doing a bustling business, and Tom Winters was, perhaps, the busiest of all.

Six o'clock came. The shades were drawn down in the windows, the counters were covered, boxes and papers cleared away, and the clerks filed out with mumbled good-nights.

"Just a minute, Winters."

"Yes, Mr. Mellet."

"Who authorized a change in the windows? And who gave you permission to hold a sale?"

"Nobody, sir. I did it myself. I happened to go into the stockroom for a linen shirt. There has been a sort of new demand for linens. So I just thought this was a good chance to sell off the old stock."

"I see."

That was all.

Tom headed for the subway. All the way home he swung from a strap, brooding over the events of the day. He was tired. More, he was depressed. He had made a good start. He had to hand it to himself. But what if it didn't bring him the desired raise?

"Then," he told himself, grimly, "it'll be worth the fight just to know that I've won back my pep, my push, my ambition."

At home Roses greeted him with a shy kiss. She had on a dainty little frock that belonged somewhere back in their courtship days.

"'Lo, Roses!"

"Hello, Tom. Tired?"

"You just said it! Worked some hard today. Something nice to eat? My, but doesn't somebody's sweetheart look ripping!"

It was well toward 10 o'clock when Rose suddenly turned from the piano, where she had been recalling old melodies.

"You know, Tom? That suit of yours looks sort of shabby. You ought to begin now to wear your Sunday suit down to business."

"But, good lord! I couldn't afford another suit right now. Not with the high price of merchandising. Why, you can't touch a really decent suit under eighty, ninety dollars."

"Yes, you can. Mrs. Budson, next door, showed me a suit her husband just had made. Cost him a hundred dollars. But he can't wear it. The coat's too tight across the shoulders."

Hand in hand they knocked at their neighbor's apartment, from which an hour later, having listened to several records, danced a waltz or two, partaken of a glass of root beer, Tom Winters led his wife back, a suit of new clothes over one arm.

"Nice folks, the Budsons."

"Awfully. They're just married about three months. Don't you think Alice is a dear?"

"Yep. Like Budson better, though. Reg'lar fellow. This's a nice suit, too. Bargain. I'll say, Roses, bet I look like a million dollars in it."

It was along during the third week of this self-bestowed increase that the post-card idea struck Tom Winters. They had been taking inventory of their stock, and as back numbers and broken lots were brought to light it suddenly occurred to him that if they only could use some form of advertising, all that back stuff could be made to bring very fine returns.

The store had a fine, active list of customers. To each of these he would send a postal card purporting to come from a friend. It would run something like this:

> Say, Old Man: Drop into the Metropolitan Haberdashery Shop tomorrow. They've an inventory sale which is not being advertised.
> Just bought some stuff myself. Some real values. Thought I'd let you know. Your friend,
> TOM.

"I'll write the things out by hand, and so give them the personal touch," he mused as he looked at his trial card. "And I guess it's all right to sign them Tom. Nearly every man has a friend or an acquaintance named Tom."

Then came another problem. Who would pay for those cards? Mellet would certainly not sanction such an idea.

"I'll order them anyway," he decided. "The bill won't come up for another month. If the idea works they certainly won't kick. If it doesn't work—I guess I'll be kicked."

But the plan worked. Out of a clear sky, so it seemed to Mellet and the other clerks, a veritable mob of shoppers invaded the store. From early morning till night things hummed along with such speed that Mellet himself was forced to go behind the counter.

And then J. M. Burr himself trotted in.

He was puffing from too much walking, but the genial smile that always lit his face radiated good cheer.

"Hello, Mellet! Just got a card from my friend Tom telling me to drop in here. Could get a few bargains. Got someone to wait on me?"

Mellet took the card from Burr's hand and read it over. Never a word did he say about it.

"Mr. Winters here will serve you."

Tom felt the blood come pounding to his forehead.

"Hold tight!" he counseled himself, fiercely. "Here's your test!"

"Yes, sir?" he stepped forward, briskly. "Shirts? Certainly. Here are some of the finest linens. Pre-war stock offered at pre-war prices. Just six of them left. You know their brand. Marked today at $7. Sold them only last week at $8.95. All six, sir? Hard or soft collars to wear with them? Both? Yes, sir. Here are the latest models—low and comfortable. No, sir. No reduction. New stock. Have you seen our socks for sport shoes? Look them over, sir. Not a flaw in the weave. Six pairs? All right, sir."

Moving so swiftly as almost to daze Burr, keeping up a convincing line of chatter, Tom pretty soon piled up the fact that after Graham's death his daughter, Margery, 19 years old, designated Vera Shore as her guardian.

Despite his inheritance of a considerable interest in a big commercial concern, Graham never was active in business. He was nominally secretary and later director of the Graham Paper Co., but when not away at vacation resorts he spent practically all of his time in his St. Louis County home. According to his own testimony, he did most of his prodigious drinking at home. He was not known as a "rounder" and was rarely seen in cafes.

He was fond of attracting attention by bizarre effects in dress, especially when at vacation resorts. He startled the Palm Beach colony by parading the beach in short white trousers, pink silk stockings and high-heeled shoes.

Many who drove past the beautiful Graham home admired its beauty, but few knew of the queer household domiciled there—of the man who took 100 drinks a day and the sisters, one wedded and one jilted—and their father, all living in amity.

The peace of this strangely assorted household was shattered by the hand of tragedy when Graham was shot and killed by the chauffeur, Clifford Taylor, in a quarrel which started when Graham rebuked Taylor for entering the living room with his hat on and with a pipe in his mouth. Mrs. Graham was an eyewitness to the shooting. Taylor's wife also was in the house.

Two women, one living and the other dead, were the principal witnesses at the trial of Taylor, who was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary. The living witness was Taylor's wife. The dead witness was Mrs. Graham. Here again entered that element of surprise which followed the Grahams to their graves and beyond.

When the oral evidence for the State was all in the prosecutor arose and offered a document in evidence. It was a voice from the grave—a last message from Mrs. Graham, fourth wife of the "hundred-drinks-a-day man," whose love for him was so great that she preferred to follow him into the beyond rather than remain on earth without him. The statement, written a short time before Mrs. Graham shot herself, was written to be used at the trial, but the fact of its existence was carefully kept a secret until the dramatic moment when it was placed in evidence. In it Mrs. Graham said the shooting was unprovoked. She said Graham was unarmed, though his revolver lay on a table in the hall, a considerable distance from where he was shot. This weapon was found on the table after the shooting.

As an offset to the statement left by Mrs. Graham the defense called Mrs. Taylor, who testified that at the time of the shooting she was looking through a door in such a way that she could see Graham, but could not see Taylor. She swore that Graham had a revolver in his hand and that her husband shot in self-defense.

This conflicting testimony seems to have raised a "reasonable doubt" in the minds of the jury, which, after deliberating seven hours, found Taylor guilty of manslaughter.

Wild Ducks Guests of American City

some very interesting facts. First, the ducks when they arrived were least afraid of the attendant who fed them: finally losing all fear of him, playing about his feet and into his hands like poultry in a barnyard. This attendant uses a low, shrill whistle, at sound of which the ducks from all parts of the lake will come flying at top speed, tumbling like divers on the grass in front of him to receive their food.

It was also found that the ducks, even on the first day of their arrival, were absolutely unafraid of an automobile. If a human being on foot disturbs the ducks when they are on land, or when on the water close to the shore, they are still not frightened enough to take flight. The appearance of a dog, however, large or small, even at a distance, is sufficient to send all the ducks rushing to mass together in "rafts" in the center of the lake. The making of this last discovery resulted in an ordinance forbidding the taking of dogs to the park during the time of the festival.

THE LIE THAT WAKED TOM UP

a considerable mound of merchandise. The bill totaled way past $60.

Burr laughed as he drew the money from his pocket. "Tell you what, Mellet," he chaffed. "I haven't bought as much from myself in a long, long time. Got to hand it to you, old man, you're some shark at training salesmen. So long, Mellet!"

On Saturday night, for the fourth time, Tom Winters steamed open his envelope and inserted $5. Then he looked at the ten still remaining from the memorable poker game.

"Time's almost up," he murmured. All during that fifth week he went about with a sick heart, forcing a spirit of cheerful pep into his rebellious soul. At noon hour he ate no lunch, but went around to the different shops to see whether he could land another job that would pay him more. But they were scarce and hard to find, and the salaries, he discovered, were fully $10 less than he was then getting. In every place it was the same old story. Didn't make any difference what your record was before—you had to make good in the new place.

And in one of the shops he encountered Burr.

"Hello, Winters!"

"How-do, Mr. Burr!"

"What you doing here?"

Tom gulped.

"Looking over the merchandise and comparing prices," he lied promptly.

"Fine idea. I tell you, Mellet has the right slant on things. You can't have faith in your own stuff unless you are absolutely sure it's the best there is at the price. Well, see you again."

Mellet had the right idea! A bitter smile forced itself to Tom's lips. What a world this was. People getting credit for the things they didn't do; other people not getting credit for the things they did do. Some little old game. Either you beat the game to it, or the game beat you.

There came the night when he put the last $5 bill into his pay envelope. Before him lay an empty, dreary week, and at the end of it—a confession to Rose. He would have to tell her. He would have to see the stricken, disappointed look flash across her face and a quiver take the softness from her lips. She wouldn't sing to him any more. They would have to forego their Sunday outings—and he would fall into the place of a liar and a deceiver.

Yet when the night came, he weakened. As he passed a pawnshop he fingered his watch. It would bring $20. But he—couldn't. It was Rose's gift to him some four years before, and never for a day had he been without it. If he could only put off telling her for a week or two. There had been something in Mellet's attitude that afternoon——

"Well, Winters," he had queried, "all played out? No more new ideas?"

"Not on your sweet life!" Tom had retorted. "I'm just laying low till things establish themselves on this new plane. We don't want to become an everyday sale and bargain house, like those places that are going out of business every day for the last 10 years. Too many sales spoil the party. The idea is to hold one every now and then—with a considerable lapse of time in between. That's what brings results."

"I see."

"You see," Tom had thought. "I wonder how much you really do see."

At the subway entrance he met a friend, who flashed a heavy and fat banknote roll. He could ask him for a loan. He was sure he'd get it, too. People trusted him.

"But what's the use? What's the use?"

He stumbled homeward.

"Hello, dear!" Rose's soft arms entwined themselves about his neck as she kissed him gently.

Tom reached into his pocket and extracted his pay envelope.

"Haven't time to take it now. Drop it into my bag, will you? And hurry up. The Budsons are having a little party tonight and we're invited to supper. Go on, dear, rush into your things! They're all laid out on the bed."

It was a jolly assemblage that gathered in the Budson home. The little repast was delicious; and, to finish, there were home-made cookies and fresh orangeade.

Then Budson enjoined quiet upon everyone and led Rose to the piano.

"Mrs. Winters is going to give us a tune or two," he announced.

Tom started. There was a time when it was quite natural for Rose to perform publicly. But now—she gave so little time to practicing. Why, it was only six weeks ago that she had approached their own piano for the first time in nearly four years! He didn't want her to trip up on anything.

Nor did she. Smoothly, with all their old agility, her fingers flew across the keyboard as the old favorite melodies sang out into the night.

Two bright spots of color leaped to her cheeks; her eyes shone with pleasure; and as she received the sincere little compliments and plaudits she flashed Tom a glance of utter happiness that struck despair into his heart.

How could he tell her? She had been so happy these last weeks. There had been born between them something tender and fine. Could he tear that apart and consign themselves again to the prosaic, hopeless plane of living that had imprisoned them before?

"I'll just run into the kitchen and take a cup of milk," whispered Rose as they entered their own flat. "Want some, too?"

"No, thanks. I'll turn in. I'm tired."

In the bedroom, however, he momentarily awaited a cry from her. Doubtless she would open the envelope now. How he dreaded to meet her questioning face! For 10 minutes he hesitated before switching off the light, and then, leaving it bright, he crept into bed, where he lay for another quarter of an hour staring at the ceiling. What could be detaining her?

And then the door opened and she came into the room. The opened envelope was in her hand.

"Why—why—oh, Tom! why didn't you tell me?"

Cold apprehension gripped at his heart. He sat up and looked her bravely in the eyes.

"Oh, Tom!" The tears came, and, sobbing convulsively, she sank down on the bed.

A whole torrent of words flew to Tom's lips and in their effort to gain precedence over one another, he became quite tongue-tied.

"Why—you see, dear—Roses, dear—I was trying to save it for the morning, when you would be able to take it more calmly. I wanted to"——

"But—but seventy-five a week! Tom! That's a fortune! I—oh—I"——

Tom sat bolt upright.

"What—what are you talking about?"

He took the envelope out of her hand and read the slip of paper that accompanied the bills:

> The Metropolitan Men's Haberdashery Shops wish to thank you for your very fine work.
> Beginning Monday, you will be in charge of the shop now conducted by Mr. Mellet, who has enthusiastically recommended you to succeed him, while he takes charge of our new shop on Fifty-ninth street.
> Your salary will start with $75 a week.
> JAMES M. BURR.

That night Tom Winters lay awake again, and if ever a man wanted to cry for sheer thankfulness it was he. It was a good old world after all, and the man who fought his game bravely, squarely, ceaselessly, was bound to win.

Why Children Tell Lies - -

morning that you were going to bring a 'mutton head' home with you for dinner."

A minister described to me how his mother had told him about a great black man, with eyes of fire, great split hoofs and wings 20 feet long, with which he flew through the air like lightning and carried off on the point of his spear all bad little boys who said naughty words, disobeyed their parents, or told lies. It was only natural that he should believe this story. He said he was 4 years old when that terrible dogma was first pumped into him, and for three long years he lived in a veritable hell. For two years he scarcely went a hundred yards away from the house by himself, and how he dreaded the darkness of night! He would lie awake until the rest of the household went to bed, and then lock his door so the black man couldn't get in. He would dream every night about this terrible monster. When he was 8 years old he asked his mother if the black man was still apt to get him. She said: "Yes; just a few days ago he got a boy 10 years old." And then she impressed on him how wicked it was to tell a lie.

The belief in that infernal doctrine made such a coward of him that for four years after, even though he knew it to be false, he would not leave the house after dark alone, no matter what the occasion.

After he started to school he began to observe things he could not understand. He saw boys who told lies, cheated and even swore, and the black man never got them. To be sure, they were older than he was, but what difference did that make? One day he asked the boys if they were not afraid of the great black man that carried off naughty boys, and they laughed at him. He became wiser day by day, as boys will, until finally he realized in full the deception that had been practiced on him.

"Yes," you say, "but what are we going to do about it?" I'll tell you a few do's and a few don't's. Don't lie to your children and then maul them when they lie to you. Don't train your children with fear, but with love. Above all, don't remain silent concerning the mysteries of life; don't imagine you can keep your boys and girls in ignorance. You were a boy or girl once, and you know you learned things later on which should have been told you by your parents at the proper time.

Think a little, use your brains in rearing your children, at least take as much pains with your boys and girls as you would to train a poodle dog to sit up and bark for a cracker.

For the sake of the boys and girls of today, who will be the men and women of tomorrow; if you would have them become good citizens and respect and love you, then use more time and care in training them.

Truth is the cement of human society. It holds us together as the mortar holds together the bricks of a house. Without truth, we could no more have a durable human society than without mortar we can have a durable brick house. Falsehood is like the frost which upheaves the foundations and pushes the wall out of plumb. We should not lie to the children; we should not be partners with them in prevarication and deceit; we should not tell them things they know to be false; we should not make them promises that we never intend to fulfill.

If we want our children to be square with us, we must be square with them. If we deceive them, they will grow up to deceive us. The only way to rear true men and women is to be true to them while they are growing up, in the home, church and school; in fact, everywhere. Let the prevailing atmosphere be that of absolute sincerity and truth. Your children should be your comrades in joy and sorrow, encouraged to tell the truth because it is right to do so, and by all means not punished for telling the truth.

The Taylor Case— - -

had strung near the ceiling of his store as a support for hams. He had consented to sell it only when the customer pointed it out and said it was just what he wanted for his purpose. He identified the rope by a peculiar knot which he had tied in it and by the odor of ham which still clung to it. He went to police headquarters and identified Meyers as the purchaser of the rope.

Meyers, cool and convincingly frank, as he had been throughout the investigation, admitted former ownership of the rope.

"I bought it to wrap a package which I was going to send away," he said. "Later I decided not to use the rope and I threw it from my room window into the street. Somebody must have picked it up and used it to kill Reynolds."

Several of the guests and employes who witnessed the parade were firm in their assertion that Meyers was with them during the entire time it was passing.

A motive for the murder was not apparent. Reynolds was not known to have had any possessions which would tempt a thief. There was no physical evidence that his room or clothing had been rifled.

Meyers was charged with murder and was tried and acquitted by a jury which regarded his alibi as perfect and accepted as reasonable his explanation of the ownership of the rope and its possible use by another.

One year later Charles Meyers, worn and haggard, walked up to Keely's desk at police headquarters.

"Do you remember me?" he asked.

"Sure I do, Charlie," replied the Assistant Chief. "What's on your mind?"

"That's it," sobbed the broken Meyers. "There's something on my mind and I've got to tell you about it. I want to be hanged. I killed Tom Reynolds."

With the keen eye of a trained detective Keeley observed Meyers closely for signs of drink or "dope." He saw none, but he did see that Meyers was mentally distraught.

"Why did you kill him?" he asked, more with a desire to "humor" his visitor than with the hope of corroborating the confession.

"Come with me and I'll show you," said Meyers.

He took Keeley to the back yard of the Cleveland House and removed a brick from the pavement. Under the brick was a wallet in which were a diamond ring, several other articles of jewelry, three unset diamonds and about $25 in paper money.

"That's why I did it," he said. "I buried the stuff here and then the police got busy and I was afraid to dig it up. Now I want to be hanged."

Meyers told the detective the murder was committed on St. Patrick's Day, while the parade was passing. Guests and employes of the hotel had been sincere in their testimony that Meyers had been watching the parade with them. They thought he was there in the crowd all the time, but in their absorption in watching the procession they had failed to note that he slipped away and went back to the hotel. In this short period of absence he murdered Reynolds and hid the body. Then he returned and took his place among the parade watchers.

Keeley took Meyers to the Circuit Attorney, who listened to the strange confession and decided that under the law Meyers could not be tried again, as he had once been placed in jeopardy and had been acquitted. So far as the law was concerned, the incident was closed.

It remained for Meyers to write the last chapter. He shot and killed himself a month later in Memphis.

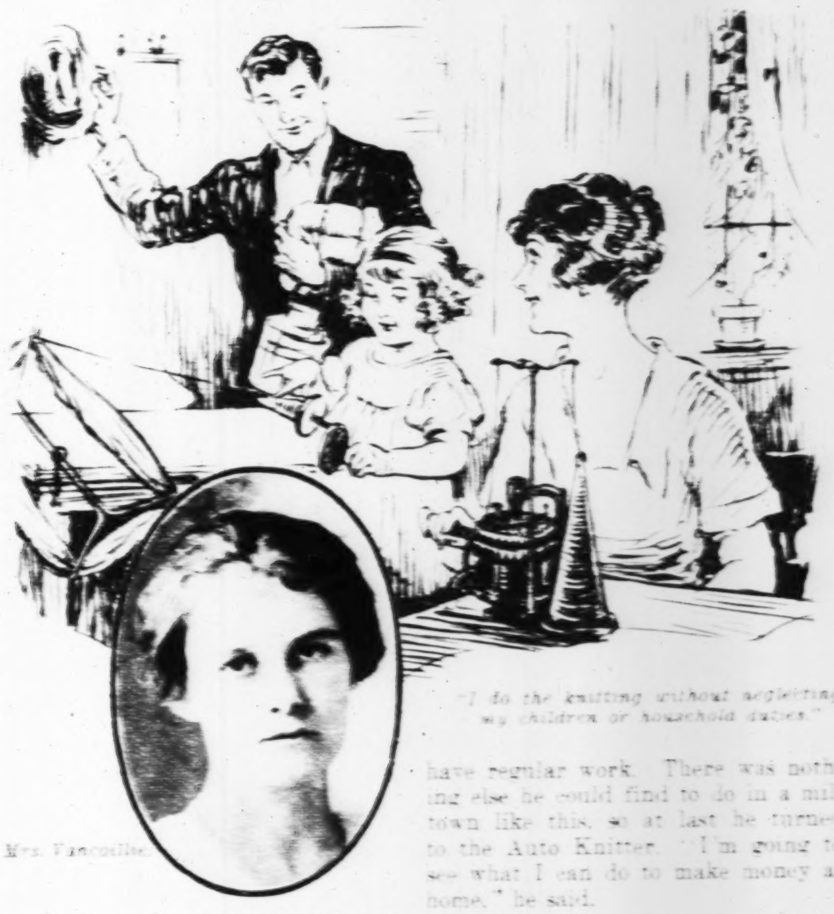
So far as the possibility of detection was concerned, Meyers committed a "perfect" crime, but it did not go unpunished, though the meting out of justice was left to his own hand.

Who knows but that remorse, the most relentless detective of all, is even now at work undermining the "perfect" structures of the Elwell and Taylor murders?

How I Earn $2.00 to $3.00 a Day At Home in Spare Time

A Pleasant, Profitable Occupation That Helps Us Make Both Ends Meet

By Mrs. Emile Vancoillie



Mrs. Vancoillie

"I do the knitting without neglecting my children or household duties."

NOW that I am actually earning from two to three dollars a day, right at home, in my spare time, our trials and troubles back in the Fall of 1919 seem like a dream—a nightmare that I am glad to forget.

But I can tell you there was nothing imaginary about those days, while we were struggling along trying to make both ends meet—and never quite succeeding.

My husband worked in a mill, and made good wages, but it seemed like he couldn't earn enough money to keep up with expenses. With our two little children to clothe and care for it seemed like we were always paying bills, or planning how we could lay aside the money to pay them.

Often my husband and I would talk things over, trying to find some way out of our troubles. I was eager to help, but I couldn't leave my home and children and go to work in a factory. I didn't know any sort of work that I could do at home to make money. It began to look like there was no answer to our problem.

AND so things went along until one day late in December the expressman drove up to our house and left a wooden box, addressed to Mr. Vancoillie. That night when my husband came home from work I showed him the box and asked what was in it.

"Oh, we'll call it a Christmas present for you," he laughed, and began taking the boards off the top. Pretty soon he lifted out some sort of a machine and set it on the floor.

"What in the world do you call that?" I asked.

"It is an Auto Knitter," he replied, "a machine to knit wool socks. I heard about it and sent for some of their literature. It looked so good that I decided to try out their plan. So I sent for one of their machines to surprise you."

Now it isn't like my husband to make wild, reckless decisions. But for the life of me I couldn't see the idea back of this purchase. I made up my mind that he sure had slipped up this time.

"A knitting machine!" I exclaimed. "Why, I never knit a sock in my life. I don't know the first thing about knitting."

"Of course you don't," replied that exasperating man of mine. "And you don't need to. See, we have an Instruction Book that tells just how to knit standard wool socks on the Auto Knitter. You can learn from this."

"But after the socks are knit—what then? What will we do with them?"

"Oh, that's the best part of it," my husband explained. "The Auto Knitter Hosiery Company agrees to buy every standard sock turned out on the machine. We simply bundle up the socks and send the package to them. They pay us a fixed price per dozen pairs. Also they send us yarn to take the place of that used in knitting the socks. So, you see, we always have yarn to knit more socks."

WELL, I must say I felt a lot better about the Auto Knitter after he explained it that way. If I could knit socks right at home, and sell them for real money, it sure would be fine. Why, it was as good as going out and working for wages—and I could do the knitting in spare time without neglecting my children or household duties.

But I still had my doubts about the Auto Knitter. I was afraid I would never learn to run it. However, when I read over the Instruction Book I found it wasn't nearly as hard as I had imagined. Then I sat down to the machine and began practicing. The machine was shipped with a piece of work already started on it, and that was a big help. It took a little time, of course, but in three days I had the machine working fine, and was making one sock after another.

Of course the neighbors soon learned about the Auto Knitter. I showed them samples of the socks, and they all wanted some right away, when they saw the fine work. So I began taking orders right away, and didn't have time at first, to knit any for the company. I found there was a good sale for ladies' stockings, too, so I knit them as well as the socks.

ON March 12, 1920, I balanced up my little account book, and found that, after taking out the money to pay for the machine I had a clear profit of $32.00—all earned in spare moments between my regular work.

I kept right on with my knitter during that Spring and Summer. When I didn't have any home trade I sent the standard socks in to the Auto Knitter people, and I always got good treatment from them. I could plan every time on getting a check from them by return mail. And they always sent along the replacement yarn, just like they agreed to do.

But the real test of the Auto Knitter came in the Fall. From November to January the mill where my husband was employed was closed down a good part of the time, and he didn't have regular work. There was nothing else he could find to do in a mill town like this, so at last he turned to the Auto Knitter. "I'm going to see what I can do to make money at home," he said.

Well, we both worked at the little Auto Knitter, and kept it busy during those "lean" months. And as a result they proved to be "fat" months for us. We never had to worry about "no work at the mill," as so many others were doing. If we didn't have home orders, we kept right on knitting, because we knew we could sell every standard sock to the company.

DURING this dull period the Auto Knitter just about made the living for our family of four. We hardly had to touch our little savings account. I can't imagine how in the world we would have made out without the machine, and the checks that it brought us so regularly.

After my husband went back to work at the mill full time, I kept right on knitting in my spare moments. In February, 1921, I made $59.90, and in March, $64.30. All of this was for home trade. The socks were sold to friends and neighbors without a bit of trouble.

My trade has kept growing steadily, and now I can count on making from $2.00 to $3.00 regularly every day, besides doing all my housework. And I have orders for from three to four weeks ahead. I can always knit a sock now in 10 to 12 minutes, and a lady's stocking in 15 minutes. The knitting is so easy and pleasant. It rests me from my housework. And I am making money every time I turn the handle of the Auto Knitter.

Make Money Right at Home Knitting Socks on the Auto Knitter

You have read here what Mrs. Vancoillie says about the Auto Knitter. There isn't a bit of guesswork in what she says. Here are actual facts, put on paper. The old problem of making both ends meet set the Vancoillies to thinking. Then came the Auto Knitter to help. And now, in her spare time, Mrs. Vancoillie is making from $2.00 to $3.00 per day. Just imagine $50.00 to $75.00 a month "extra" money!

We stand ready to make you the very same offer we made Mrs. Vancoillie. Our Home Work Plan is for you, too. You make standard wool socks in your own home in spare time, with the Auto Knitter. And we pay you for making them. That's the plan in a nutshell.

A Ready Market for Every Standard Sock

But, much as we like to receive shipments of standard socks from Auto Knitter owners, there is nothing at all in our Work Contract to force you to send your output to us. We agree to buy every standard sock sent in to us, the year around, and to pay a fixed price. We will also send replacement yarn for each lot of standard socks sent in. But you are at perfect liberty to sell these wool socks wherever you please. Local stores often are glad to get these fine wool socks, and pay good prices for them. It is very likely, too, that your friends and neighbors may want a supply.

The machine itself is thoroughly substantial. Many Auto Knitters have been operated for years with perfect satisfaction. The machine weighs about 20 pounds and may be clamped to any ordinary table. It makes a sock—top, body, heel and toe—without removing the work from the machine. And it's all done in a surprisingly short time.

Previous experience with machinery is not necessary. Nor do you need to know how to knit by hand. The Instruction Book makes everything plain. With the Auto Knitter you can learn to turn out standard wool socks that have all of the strength, warmth and quality of hand-knitted ones.

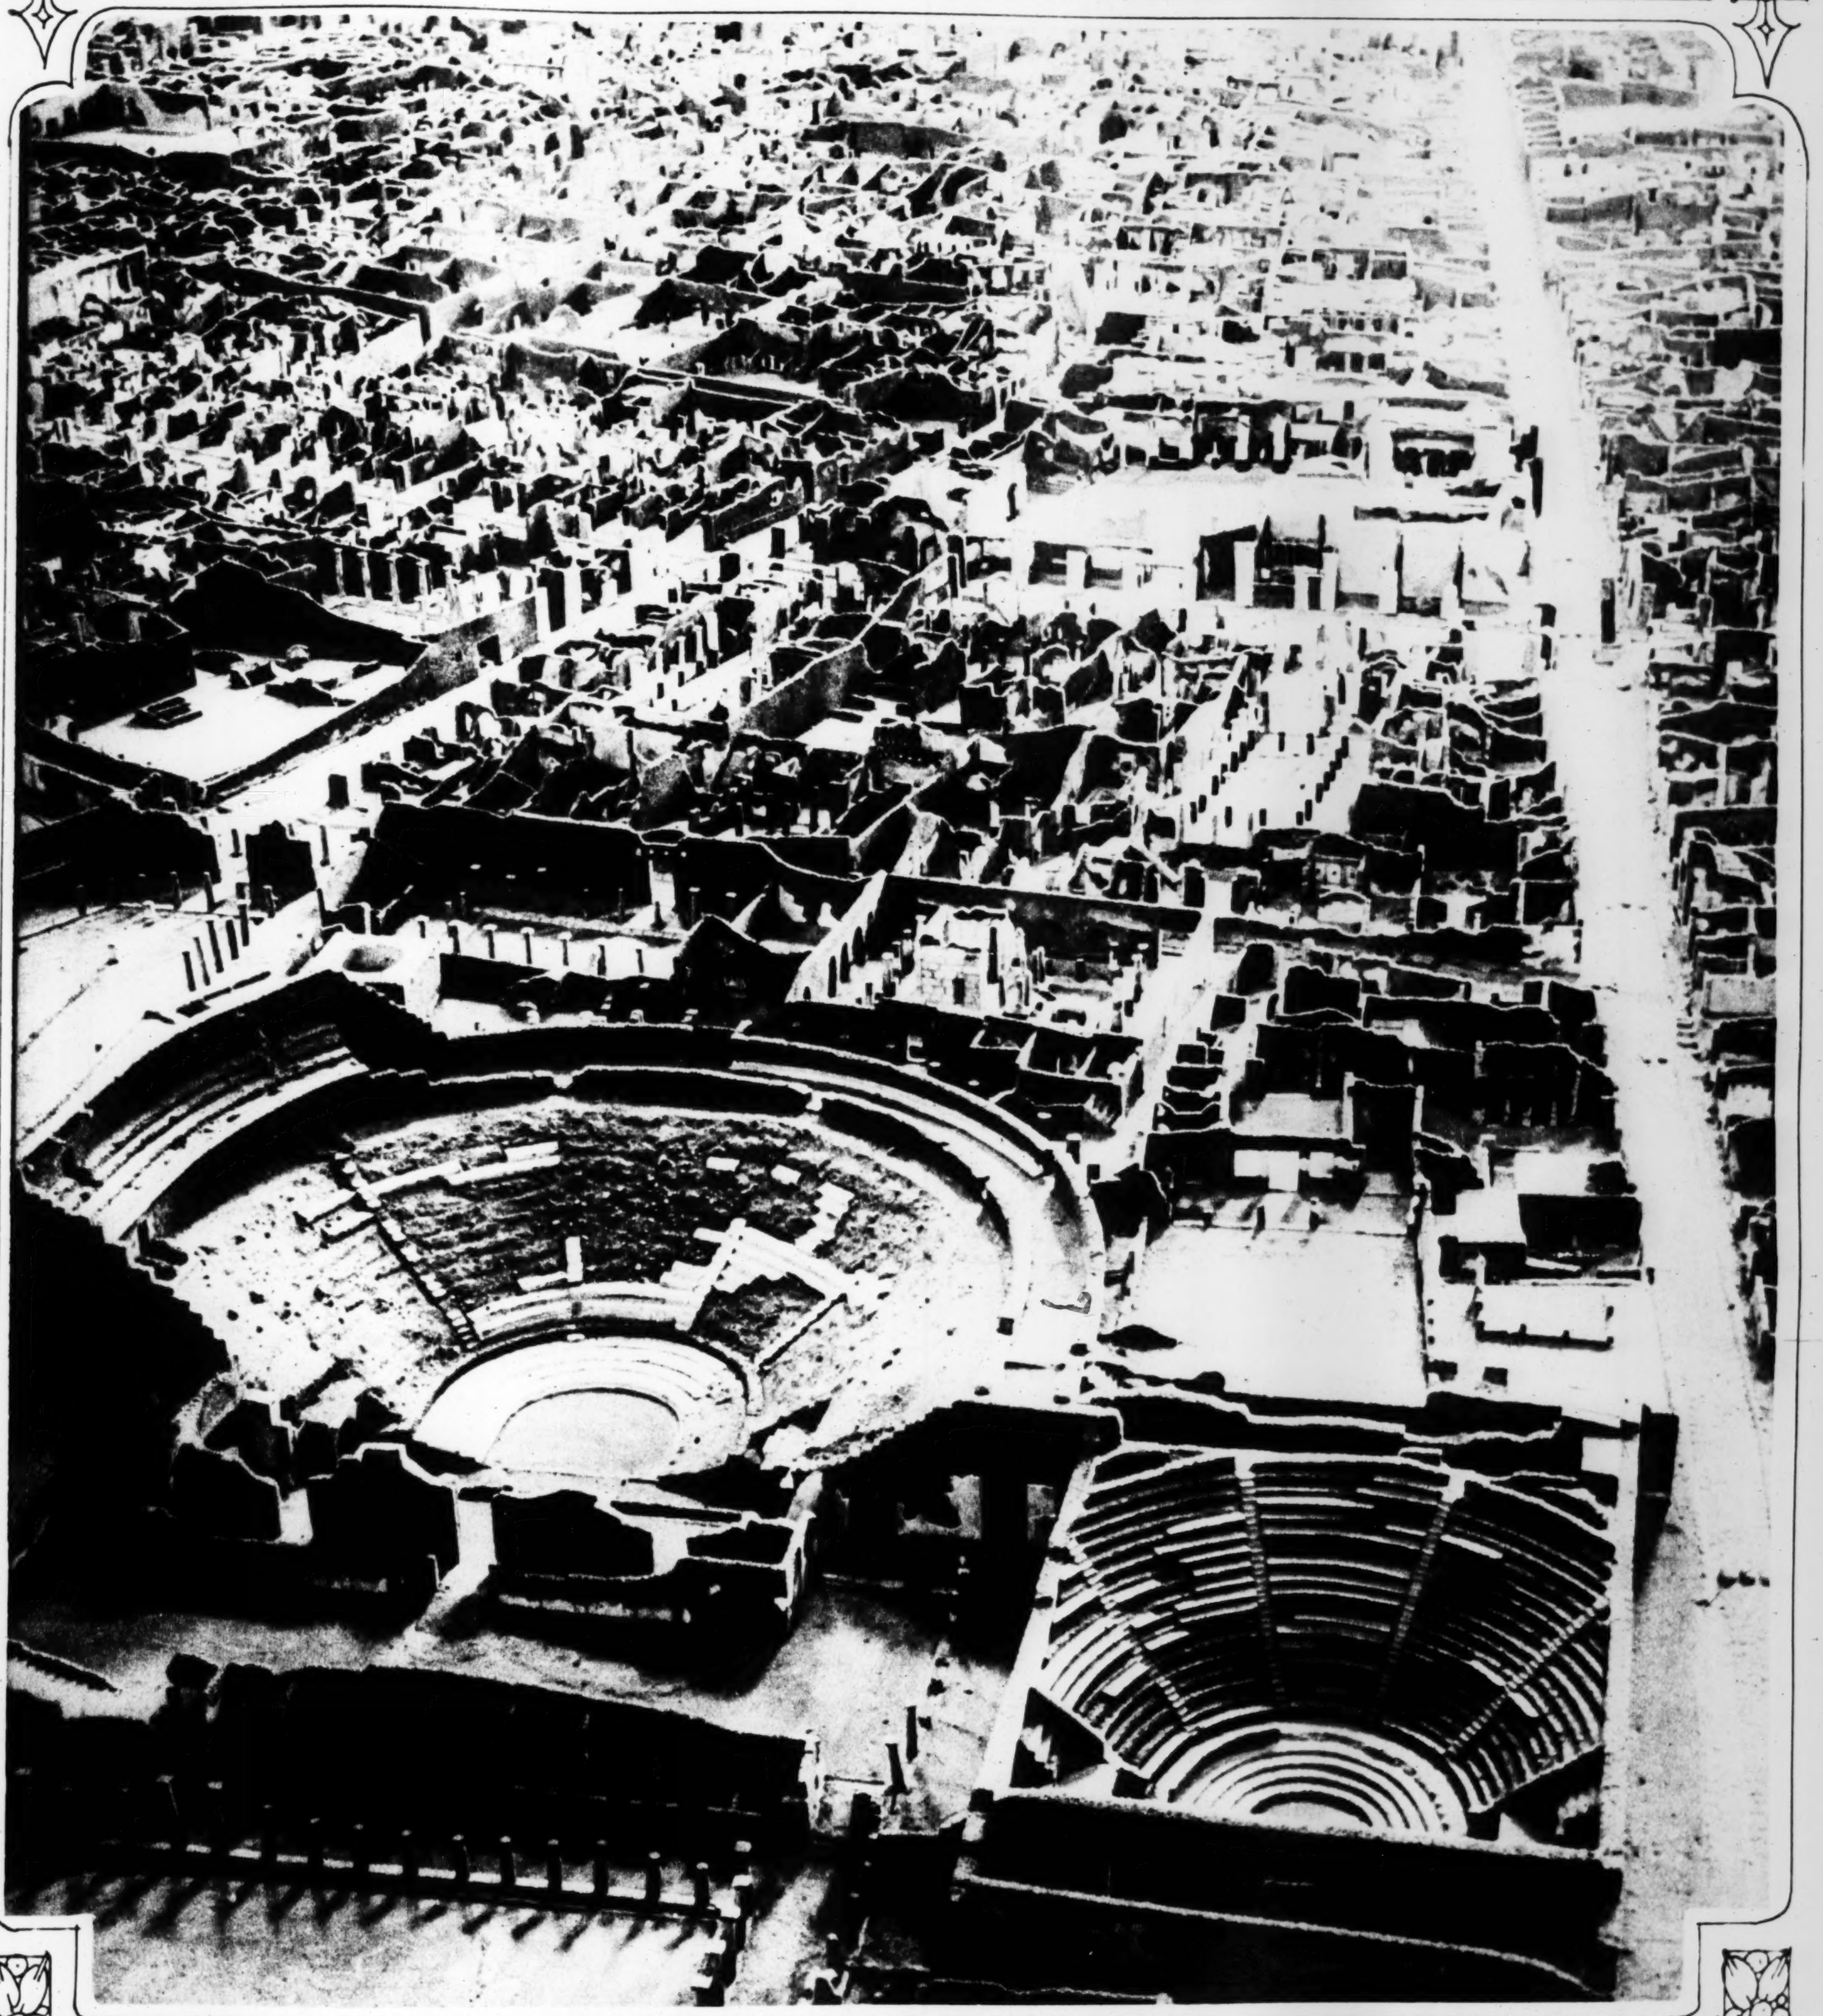
As You Would See the Ruins of Pompeii From Airplane



This model of Pompeii, in the Royal Museum at Naples, Italy, shows how that famous victim of Mount Vesuvius looks today, when largely excavated. The eruption occurred in 79 A. D., and the city was destroyed by showers of ashes and cinders instead of lava, which explains the remarkable preservation of articles found there. About 2000 lives were lost. Just lately, Vesuvius has been active again.

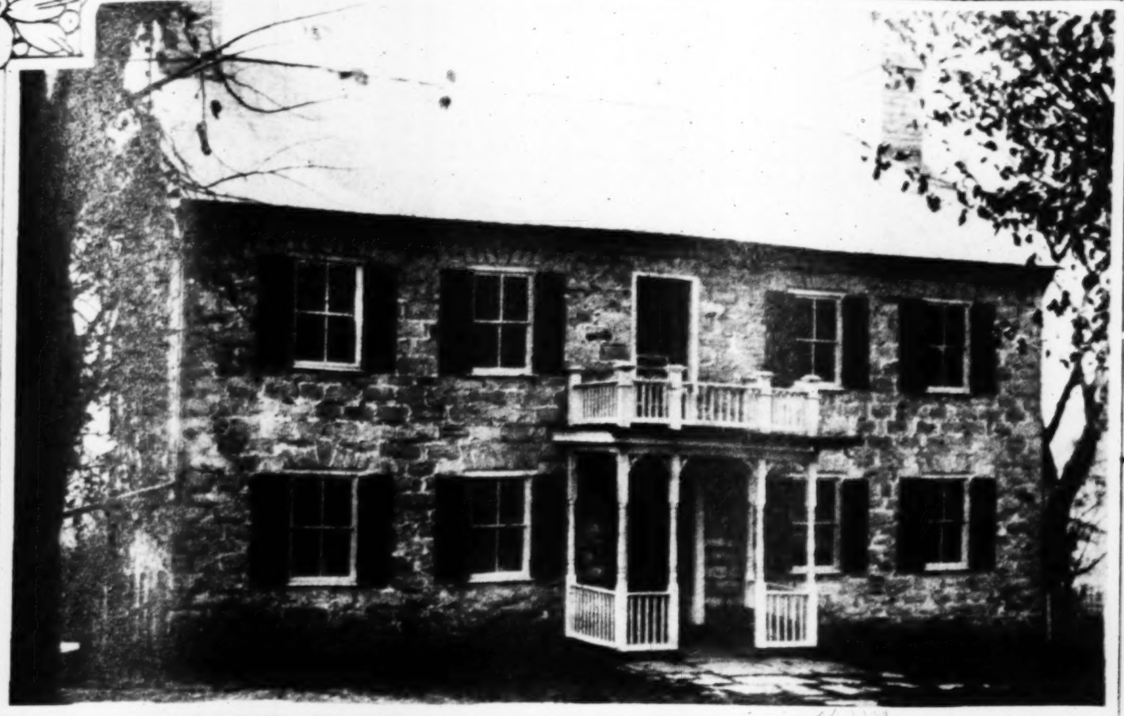
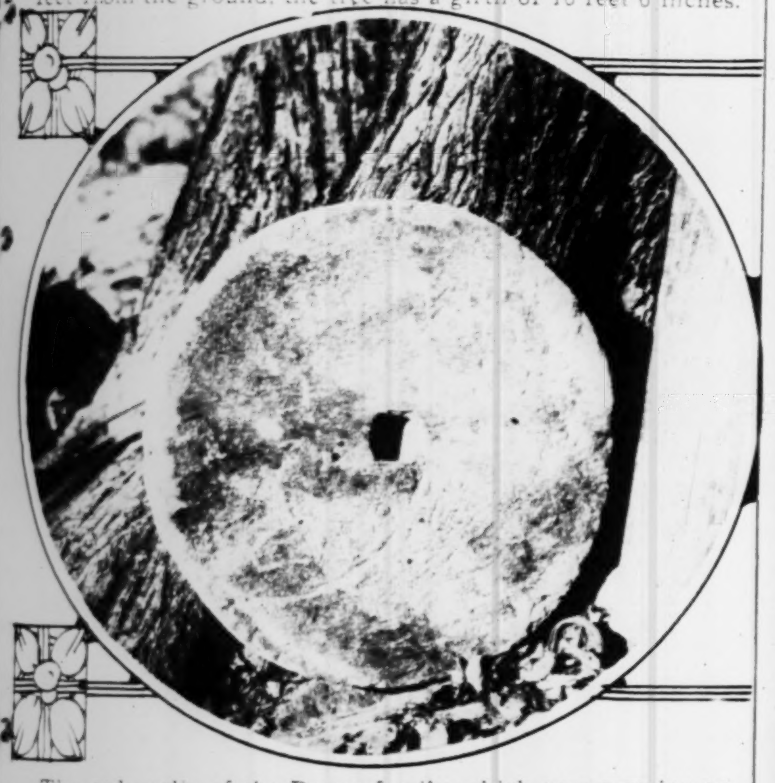
This is the "Daniel Boone judgment tree," at Femme Osage, St. Charles County, Mo., in the shade of which the famous pioneer meted out justice on summer days as syndic for the district, during Spanish rule of Louisiana. Measured two feet from the ground, the tree has a girth of 16 feet 6 inches.



The Daniel Boone house at Femme Osage, as it looks today. The first stone house in Missouri, it was erected by Boone's sons, with the assistance of their father, who preferred the old log cabin on the place. The porch is a later addition, and the building has a new roof.



The only relic of the Boone family which now remains on the old homestead at Femme Osage. The grindstone is said to have been used by Daniel Boone, and chiseled on it is "John B.," probably the mark of Daniel's son, John.

Let Fatima smokers tell you
"Nothing else will do"
Copyright, 1922, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

You, too, can have "A skin you love to touch"

A BEAUTIFUL skin, soft, smooth, faultlessly clear—any girl can have this charm.

For your skin is constantly changing—each day old skin dies and new takes its place. Give this new skin the right treatment, and see how soft and lovely you can keep it.

If your skin is very sensitive and easily irritated, use each night this special treatment:

DIP a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to your face.

Now make a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft, white lather.

Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed.

Rinse first with warm, then with clear, cool water and dry carefully.

THE very first time you use this treatment it will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. Do not regard this as a disadvantage—it is an indication that the treatment is doing you good, for it means that your skin is responding in the right way to this method of cleansing. After a few treatments the drawn feeling will disappear and your skin will gain a new, healthful sense of softness and smoothness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter, and begin this treatment tonight. A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's will last for a month or six weeks. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

Bourjois' Java Face Powder will make you more beautiful

It will give a deeper, richer tone to your natural coloring, soften the glow of your complexion, enhance the beauty of your face.

The chiefest charm of Java is naturalness. It never prompts the whispered comment "too much powder."

Originally, Java was made for a distinguished French woman who wanted a Face Powder that enhanced her own natural complexion and coloring.

She knew that this was the most effective way to display her beauty.

And you, too, shall know it, if you use Java. You, too, shall say that Bourjois' Java Face Powder is indeed a compliment to your complexion.

Bourjois JAVA Face Powder

A compliment to your Complexion

Do you know how to rouge?

No woman rouges so successfully as the petite Parisienne who uses Bourjois' hand-made rouge, "ASHES of ROSES." It gives color to the cheek that is too pale, and expression to the face that is too "still." ASHES of ROSES is as exquisite as Java Face Powder, and, when rightly used, as difficult to detect. For the woman who prefers a lighter shade, we suggest Rouge Mandarin. All of these are included in the 12 leading preparations to be found in the Bourjois Cabinet Assortment at leading dealers.
